WIDESPREAD DROUGHT RAISES 'DUST BOWL' FEAR

Editor's note: A searing drought in the North and West has raised fears that the dust bowl years could be coming back. United Press International reporters in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, California, Canada and Washington, D.C., have asked state officials, scientists and dirt farmers how bad the drought is. The following is their report.

By United Press International

Drought reminiscent of the dust bowl years is scorching farmlands and forests across vast reaches of the Northwestern United States and Western Canada.

Baked earth is cracking open. Grasshoppers have sprung up like flying popcorn in Montana and the Dakotas. Canadian church congregations have prayed for rain, some cities have rationed water, and rainmakers have tried to squeeze moisture from clouds over the northern plains.

The governments of the United States and Canada have stepped in with aid for farmers and ranchers whose fields are turning brown.

State officials told United Press International reporters the drought is critical in much of the wheat and grazing lands of the northern Great Plains and Western Canada and extends southwest into California.

Soaking rains — if they ever come — could save farmers millions of dollars, the officials said. But the assured losses already run into the millions.

Across the parched lands, the countryside has taken on some of the scars of the first droughts of the 1930s. Within a few years, those droughts led to flying dust which blotted out the sun and drifted over fencetops.

Forest fires are crackling in the dry heat—850 in California so far this year and 100 in South Dakota's Black Hills. The California fires have burned over 41,000 acres, compared to only 400 fires and 6,000 acres burned by this time last year.

The words of the men fighting the drought and paying its price were somber. Some samples:

—H. H. Hannan, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture: "A national calamity."

—J. B. Bonenberger, Marmarth, S. D., rancher: "Terrifying. What the drought hasn't killed the grasshoppers have."

—Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Duane Wil-

U.S. Planners Jolted by K's Arms Buildup

Policy Rift Hits Import Study Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Did the chief of staff of a House labor subcommittee studying the effect of imports quit or was he ousted by the chairman?

Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., subcommittee head, said Saturday he asked for and received the resignation of the staff chief, Stanley Metzger. But Metzger, a law professor at George Washington University, said he quit on his own initiative.

Both men acknowledged a policy difference between them on tariffs. Metzger favors a liberal approach on imports. Dent and most other subcommittee members take the position tariffs should be geared to protect unemployed Americans.

* * * *

WHILE DENT and Metzger were disagreeing on whether the staff chief quit or was pushed—Metzger said he resigned by letter Wednesday without consulting Dent—the chairman postponed indefinitely hearings scheduled in Pittsburgh tomorrow and Tuesday.

Testimony had been planned on the effect of imports on employment in the steel and aluminum industries.

Dent said subcommittee members asked for the postponement. He said they didn't want to be absent from Washington for two days when important House roll calls might come up.

The tentative schedule for the House next week lists only bills affecting the District of Columbia and a measure to authorize appropriations for the Atomic Energy Commission.

* * * *

DENT ALSO said there was a possibility that the House Rules Committee might hold hearings early next week on the federal school bill, considered of top priority by the Kennedy administration. Dent's group is a subcommittee of the House Education and Labor Committee and its members might want to testify before the rules group.

JFK, Aides Keep Berlin Talks Secret

HYANNIS PORT (AP) — President Kennedy spent nearly five hours Saturday with three of his top diplomatic and military advisers, pondering the problems of Germany and divided Berlin, and the situation in Southeast Asia.

The weighty talks, described as "wide ranging," began at Kennedy's summer home overlooking Nantucket Sound and continued aboard the Kennedy family's 52-foot cruiser Marlin during a cruise on the sunny sound.

CONFERRING with the President were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell B. Taylor, military adviser to Kennedy.

They began their conference at mid-morning, and conferred until late afternoon.

No details of the conference were revealed.

The four men lunched on hot dogs and fish chowder while the Marlin was anchored off Dead Neck Island, about eight miles off shore.

* * * *

McNAMARA and Taylor went for a swim. Kennedy and Rusk stayed aboard the cruiser.

Kennedy's wife, Jacqueline, joined the four men for the cruise.

She wore a blue jacket over a blue bathing suit as she boarded the cruiser. While the Marlin was anchored near the island, she slipped off the jacket to go water skiing—and took a spill.

The speedboat Caroline K. towed her at high speed for about 10 minutes before she toppled from the wide single ski she was using. She swam about until the speedboat

WHEN ONE GOES, THEY ALL FOLLOW

HYANNIS PORT (AP) — The seagoing Kennedys, their in-laws and their offspring had a busy time of it Saturday.

They had four boats out on the water at one time, not counting two Coast Guard boats, one police boat and a cruiser hired by newsmen—all there because the Kennedys were.

In one cruiser were President Kennedy, the First Lady and three of the President's top advisers. Three-year-old Caroline Kennedy went sailing with nine of her cousins in another boat.

Later, the speedboat towed the First Lady while she water skied. The fourth boat used by the Kennedy clan was another speedboat piloted by Stephen Smith, the President's brother-in-law.

Changes Due in Pentagon Strategies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev's decision to strengthen Soviet armed forces Saturday jarred Defense Department planners who had been assuming the United States and Russia were approaching a stage of "parity" in military manpower.

U. S. officials said every effort would be made to avoid an intensification of the arms race. But they also said Khrushchev's moves undoubtedly would force a sharp review of U. S. military planning.

The private diplomatic assessment of Khrushchev's declaration, which was made in a Moscow speech, was that it was another move to step up propaganda pressure over Berlin.

* * * *

THERE WAS NO official State Department comment, but the speech was seen as a sort of package propaganda maneuver designed to increase pressure on the Western powers, promote the idea that Russia is the one taking the initiative for peace, while simultaneously holding out bait for negotiations.

One of the main topics of interest to defense officials was the Soviet premier's declarations on the military front.

Last year he announced plans to reduce his military establishment to 2,433,000 men. This would have been slightly smaller than the United States' 2,500,000-man armed force.

With Khrushchev's cancellation Saturday of a 1,200,000 cut, the Soviet strength apparently will remain at 3,623,000.

Only slight increases, totaling 25,000 men, have been requested by President Kennedy for U. S. forces.

* * * *

THE SOVIET leader at the same time announced a boost amounting to $3,500,000,000 at the official rate of exchange in Russia's military budget.

President Kennedy has asked Congress to increase U. S. military spending by $1 billion above the request of former President Eisenhower for the current fiscal year.

One effect of Khrushchev's speech, officials conceded, will be to add strength to the Army's current campaign for an increase from 870,000 to

Russians Unveiling New Jet

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union is expected to unveil today a new supersonic jet bomber capable of Moscow-London nuclear missions.

Western observers Saturday said the as yet unnamed secret medium bomber would share a dual debut with a four-engine big brother at today's scheduled display of Soviet air might at Tushino Airport.

(In London, military experts said such a plane would indicate the Soviets are not, as some sources have claimed, abandoning development of new "conventional" weapons and concentrating almost completely on "rocketry.")

* * * *

THE SWEPT-WING, sleek medium bomber has two large turbojet engines mounted atop the rear fuselage—somewhat similar to the belly-hugging jets on France's civilian Caravelle jetliners.

Official details of the still unphotographed plane were lacking. But it has been seen zipping across Moscow's sky. Observers pronounced it probably capable of striking across the face of Western Europe from Iron Curtain bases.

Western air experts here said they had no advance knowledge of the new bomber's existence. However the Soviets have published photographs of its big brother, the new four-engine jet nicknamed "Bounder."

Fire Ravages Warehouse; Million Loss

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Fire swept a warehouse district in downtown Tampa late Saturday, causing damage estimated at $1,150,000.

The fire started in a warehouse of the Tuxedo Feed Co. at 5:40 p.m. (EST) and swept a string of warehouses owned by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad and located along the east side of the Hillsborough River opposite the University of Tampa.

For a time the blaze threatened the Lafayette Street bridge, at the south end of the warehouse district.

Value of equipment and inventory in the warehouses was set at $750,000 while the building loss was estimated at $400,000.

Several firemen were taken to a hospital for treatment after inhaling smoke but none was seriously hurt.

It Was 92, a New Top for July 8

In case you were wondering, it was a record.

High temperature Saturday —92—eclipsed the previous high for July 8 as shown in The Independent, Press-Telegram records, by three degrees.

Weather started off warmly at 8 a.m. Saturday when the mercury was at 75. By noon the temperature was 85. High was reached about 2 p.m.

The heat held on into the night, however. At 10 p.m. it still was a bit warmer than salutary room temperature; it was 73.

Boat-Fuel Blast and Fire Burn 5

By GEORGE ROBESON

Five persons were burned, two seriously, when a 35-foot cabin cruiser exploded and burned at a Wilmington yacht anchorage Saturday.

Los Angeles firemen at San Pedro said the boat, Jennie T, owned by Morris Teichner, 45, of Los Angeles, exploded in a fuel dock as Teichner started the engine.

Two fireboats fought the blaze. Damage to the Jennie T was estimated at $12,000, firemen said. Teichner and his party leaped from the boat to the pier as the flaming craft drifted out into Cerritos Channel.

* * * *

DOCK ATTENDANTS had shoved the boat away from the pier to prevent the flames from igniting the fuel pumps.

Teichner and a passenger, Harry Chapman, 44, of Los Angeles, suffered first-, second- and third-degree burns on their faces, hands arms and 25 per cent of their bodies, firemen said.

Three other persons suffered less serious burns. They are Alan Swansbrough, 19, of 5129 Adenmoor Ave., Lakewood a dock attendant, and passengers Steve Centamen, 15, and Martin Berger, 48, both of Los Angeles.

Passengers aboard the boat who escaped injury were Teichner's son, Richard, 19; Sidney Melman, 49, of Winnipeg, Canada, and Barbara Baron, 16, of Los Angeles.

All were given emergency treatment at Wilmington Emergency Hospital and then transferred to other hospitals.

* * * *

THE JENNY T had just finished taking on fuel when Teichner started the engine.

"I let go the stern lines, started the engine and then—pow!" Teichner said.

Miss Baron was asleep in a cabin when gasoline fumes which apparently had accumulated in the bilge exploded.

"Steve (Centamen) rushed in with his shirt in flames," Miss Baron said.

"I helped him beat the flames out and then he led me off the boat."

Trujillo Clashes in 2nd Day

CIUDAD TRUJILLO (UPI) — Progovernment crowds wrecked the headquarters of an anti-Trujillo political party Saturday and demonstrated in front of a second party headquarters. Several persons suffered minor hurts in clashes with police.

The attacks were carried out by followers of slain dictator Rafael L. Trujillo as political passions aroused in Friday's widespread rioting carried over into a second day.

Government authorities said 21 persons were injured in Friday's fighting and that Victor Manuel Perez, a technician of Radio Caribe, is missing and believed still in the ruins of the burned-out Radio Caribe building. Firemen were searching for his body.

* * * *

THE FIGHTING started Friday night when leftists staged the first anti-government demonstrations in the Dominican Republic in 30 years, and pro-Trujillo elements attacked. During this rioting the antigovernment group burned Radio Caribe.

Progovernment partisans at dawn wrecked the headquarters of the Dominican Popular Movement, an anti-Trujillo group. Radio Caribe, before it was wrecked, accused this group of communism and demanded its suppression.

Later a crowd formed in front of the headquarters of the Dominican Revolutionary Movement, another anti-Trujillo party, but police dispersed the demonstrators before they could attack. Several persons were injured.

L.A.C. Says:

Medical Insurance to Be Investigated

The State Assembly Insurance Committee is to make a study of health insurance policies sold in the state. It says it wants to find out if the people are getting their money's worth. In some cases it is charged insurance companies pay out less than half the amount of premiums they collect.

Before us are a number of health insurance policies we have sent for because of radio or other advertisements. We have received others in the mail. From reading these policies we would say the people get their money's worth. But they are not getting the protection they think they are getting. Thousands of low-priced policies of $2 to $3 a month are sold. But the benefits provided are so restricted very few people can ever hope to collect anything from them.

We often hear that 125 million Americans are covered by health insurance. But we doubt very much if more than a third of this number are covered to the extent they think they are. Under Blue Cross, Blue Shield and many other insurance policies, there is good coverage for doctor and hospital bills. The cost of this coverage is two to four times as high as many of the policies people buy through the mail or from radio and TV advertising—but the coverage is equally different.

One policy we received for a cost of $2.50 a month was advertised as the "solution to your medical costs." But reading the fine print disclosed that you could never hope to collect anything unless it was a rare illness or accident. For the person who expected hospital and doctor bills to be paid for ordinary illnesses, there was no coverage at all. But thousands of people buy such policies, thinking they are covered for most of their possible medical expenses.

Another policy widely sold to people past 65 years protects them for $10 a day for 31 days or $310 hospital, $200 for surgeon and $100 miscellaneous bills. This total insurance for one such illness or accident in one year is about $610. But the premium is $78 a year. Many oldsters think they are covered for all their medical costs and only awaken to the fact that they do not have such coverage when it is too late.

On the other hand, many of the plans that give wide coverage—such as that of the city employes, school teachers and many other group plans—are becoming very costly. In some cases, the insurance companies are paying out $1.15 for every dollar charged for premiums. Rates are being increased. But it is essential if the coverage promised is to be soundly financed.

Like most other services—you get what you pay for. A low-premium policy provides some protection. But if the insured person is wise, he will carefully read his policy so he will know what he is getting. It is tragic to think you have good medical insurance only to find out it covers so minor a part of the medical costs that are incurred. Know the company, the agent and what is provided before you feel secure in your medical insurance program.—L.A.C.

JFK, Aides Keep Berlin Talks Secret

swung around to pick her up.

THE WEEKEND White House said it was not an emergency conference, rather, another in a series of continuing discussions on Berlin.

Before he boarded the Marlin, Kennedy was advised of Premier Nikita Khrushchev's announcement the Soviet Union has suspended plans to reduce its armed forces, because of the tense world situation.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy also was informed of reports Khrushchev had called for a summit conference on Berlin and Germany.

(In a Kremlin speech, Khrushchev proposed a summit peace conference on Germnay. Without suggesting a time or place, he appealed directly to President Kennedy, British Prime Minister Macmillan and French President De Gaulle to "attend a conference together with other peace-loving states and to conclude a peace treaty" on Germany.

* * * *

("LET US SIT down at a table and calmly discuss all questions without resorting to threats," he said. "We propose the convocation of a peace conference and we shall go there with our draft treaty. Let the Western powers make their proposals, submit their drafts for a peace settlement.")

Salinger said the President had no immediate comment on Khrushchev's statements.

Ten California Counties Drought-Disaster Areas

son: "If a good rain would come there would be some recovery, although most of the small-grain crops in the drought area are almost completely lost."

—Farmer Vernie Jones of Glendive, Mont.: "This is the worst I've ever seen it since the 1930s."

The federal government has not been idle. U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has named 150 counties across the drought belt as disaster areas.

The government is making government-owned feed grain available to stricken farmers. It also is giving permission in many areas for farmers to graze or cut hay on land retired under the acreage program. This has been done so far in 35 Minnesota counties, 20 in Montana, all 53 counties in North Dakota, 17 in South Dakota, 3 in Wyoming and 11 in Wisconsin. Ten California counties also have been designated disaster areas.

Direct loans at three-percent interest were being made available to drought victims as the hard-hit areas qualified. Senators from North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana proposed a moratorium on payments of FHA loans in the drought area.

The government also was working with state and local officials on a spraying program to kill grasshoppers. The Department of Agriculture estimated the program will cover half a million acres.

An area by area look at the drought crisis:

NORTH DAKOTA—About 90 per cent of the state has been affected—all but counties along the Red River valley on the eastern border and the extreme southwest.

The worst drought areas were running short of water for livestock.

SOUTH DAKOTA — South Dakotans fought drought in the northwestern half of the state, plus grasshoppers, corn borers and the threat of forest fires.

About 80,000 acres along the Moreau river in Corson, Dewey and Ziebach Counties were infested with grasshoppers.

Rapid City, at the foot of the Black Hills, has been rationing water for some time.

MINNESOTA—Dr. O. C. Soine, agronomist at the Crookston Experiment Station, said the drought in Polk County is the worst in 60 years of record keeping.

MONTANA—About a fourth of Montana's crop and grazing land was suffering, mainly in eastern and central counties. Ranchers compared it with the state's worst drought in the early 1930's.

WYOMING—Northeastern and southwestern corners of Wyoming were hit by a drought which could be the worst in history.

The Agricultural Market Service at Cheyenne estimated about 4,000 acres of wheat worth more than $75,000 may be lost. Ranchers also faced heavy losses through forced sales of livestock.

IDAHO—Idaho soil conservationist John Fry said the drought in the southern part of the state was about as severe as the one in 1931. Gov. Robert E. Smylie said there will be "very substantial damage."

UTAH—Utah's drought probably is the worst in the state's history, according to Jay H. Bingham, director of the state Water and Power Board and chairman of the governor's Drought Committee. About three-fourths of the state has been affected.

CALIFORNIA—State agriculture director Charles Paul said the drought has hit hard in central and southern areas. He said he expects a "considerable number" of irrigation wells to go dry, damaging cotton, alfalfa and lake fruit crops.

925,000 in the size of its ground forces.

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union is increasing military spending and halting the cutback in its military manpower because of what he called threatening gestures by the West in the Berlin crisis.

But at the same time he called for a summit conference on Germany.

"One must call not for war but for peace," he said, without suggesting either time or place for such a conference.

Naming President Kennedy, British Prime Minister Macmillan and French President De Gaulle, he said the Soviet Union had the right to appeal to them "to display wisdom in the solution of the German problem, to attend a conference together with other peace-loving states and to conclude a peace treaty (on Germany)."

"Common sense and once again common sense is needed above all, now," Khrushchev went on.

"Let us sit down at a table and calmly discuss all questions without resorting to threats. We propose the convocation of a peace conference and we shall go there with our draft treaty. Let the Western powers make their proposals, submit their drafts for a peace settlement. We shall discuss all proposals and accept those which will in the best way facilitate the strengthening of peace and which pay due regard to the interests and sovereignty of all states."

Khrushchev is particularly interested in the sovereignty of Communist East Germany, which the Western powers refuse to recognize.

The premier coupled soft peace-conference talk and rocket-waving in a Kremlin speech. He declared the moves to heighten Soviet military effectiveness were forced measures.

Investigating Yacht-Boat Crash Which Killed One

Crew members of a 162-foot San Pedro-based schooner which Saturday rammed and sank a 42-foot fishing boat said they saw no lights on the craft.

Erwin Bauer, 50, of San Diego, was killed when the racing schooner Goodwill slashed through the smaller boat at 2 a.m. 45 miles off San Diego.

Cdr. William Benkert, officer in charge of marine inspection for the Coast Guard, said an investigation of the accident is underway. Benkert said he will talk to survivors Monday.

Survivors from the fishing craft were Walter Foote, 13, Yoshio Kawamoto, 41, and John Albert, all of San Diego. They were transferred from the Goodwill to a Coast Guard cutter after the Saturday accident.

The Coast Guard said the cause of the collision is not determined. The sea was calm and there was good visibility, officials reported.

Cdr. Benkert said the Goodwill "apparently took action in accordance with good seamanship, stopped, turned around and immediately got a boat over the side to assist the survivors.

The Goodwill suffered no damage in the crash. A world-famed racing vessel it won the Los Angeles-Honolulu race in 1953. It is the West Coast's biggest sailing yacht.

Two Dallas Women Lead First Leg of Powder Derby

DALLAS (UPI)—Two Dallas women piloting a light plane outdistanced all other entrants in the first leg of the cross-country 2,709-mile Powder Puff Derby by reaching Dallas Saturday night. Bad weather hampered the race.

The rest of the 97-plane field—with the pilots ranging from teen-agers to grandmothers—was scattered between Arizona and Texas.

Mrs. Frances Bera, of 4284 Pepperwood Ave., four-time Derby winner landed in Tucson in two hours, four minutes, and 55 seconds out of San Diego. Her average speed was 175 miles per hour. She reported very turbulent air and headwinds on the first leg of the race. She planned to proceed to Dallas today.

Boy Strives to Forget Sea Tragedy

By BOB SANDERS

A Huntington Beach mother Saturday paid modest tribute to her 14-year-old son, who survived the terrifying ordeal of watching his grandfather and a friend die aboard a 6x3-foot life raft drifting in the open sea last week.

"I'm proud of him," said Mrs. Verna H. McClelland, 7731 Newman St., of her husky son, Terry Wayne. "I always have been."

The 180-pound Huntington Beach sophomore was rescued 90 miles southwest of San Diego last Friday after spending three days on the life raft after his grandfather, Russell U. Bradford, 48, of 7715 Newman St., Huntington Beach, and a friend, Alvin Wesley Hartman, 55, of 2305 S. Towner St., Santa Ana, had died.

Although not completely recovered from the ordeal, Terry is "eating like a horse," according to his mother, but still "doesn't want to talk about what happened to him."

* * * *

"HE WANTS to forget it," Mrs. McClelland said. "He wants his feelings to return to what they were before he went away."

After considerable discussion, Terry and his mother decided he should attend the funeral service for Hartman.

Service for Bradford is being held up in the hope that his body, which lost off the raft, will be recovered.

Terry and the two men were forced to abandon their small cabin cruiser as it sank in heavy seas off San Diego while they were on a commercial fishing expedition.

"If he could get through that out there," Mrs. McClelland said, "I guess he could get through most things."

Air Passenger Disarmed, Held

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A vacationing salesman, enraged because a stewardess took away his bottle of whisky, threatened two persons with a pocket knife aboard a high-flying, crowded jet airliner Saturday, police said.

A young Marine, one of 119 passengers aboard United Air Lines Flight 853 from Chicago to Los Angeles, quickly disarmed the man, investigators reported.

The salesman, identified as Joseph Newkirk, 60, of Argo, Ill., was booked.

Extensive Flood Controls Built

By GEORGE WEEKS

County-financed flood control projects valued at nearly $9 million are under construction in the immediate Long Beach area.

In addition, final plans and specifications prepared by the city engineer's office for further drainage improvements totaling more than $3 million will be ready for approval by the flood control district by Sept. 1. In most instances construction is scheduled to start before Jan. 1, 1962, under contracts to be awarded by the county.

This summary of the long-range program to control flood waters — and run-off from ordinary storms — has just been issued by City Engineer Jess D. Gilkerson.

Within a few days the last of the local projects financed from the $179 million county bond issue of 1952 will be under construction.

This is drainage work incident to the realignment of Willow St. and construction of the San Diego Freeway between Lakewood Blvd. and Clark Ave. State engineers are about to award a $1,299,000 contract, of which about $150,000 will go for drainage.

Of storm drain projects now well advanced, the largest is the improvement of Cerritos and Heather Channels in the northeast section at an estimated $5,150,000.

North Long Beach pump stations and related works total almost $2.5 million, and the big drain in the Municipal Airport area amounts to $900,000.

Among the drains to be financed from the $225 million county bonds of 1958, top priority has been given the million-dollar flood-control district in the Alamitos Bay area.

Specifications provide that pipeline installations along the bay and peninsula will not take place during summer months. That prohibition has been lifted, however, for the construction of the pump station adjacent to Alamitos Bay Yacht Club. Certain reservations will be imposed to prevent conflict with beach use, Gilkerson said.

Final plans for the bay-area improvements are already complete, as are those for an even larger drainage system in the El Dorado Park section. The latter is estimated at $1,270,000. Also on file with the county are plans for a $700,000 extension of the North Long Beach storm control system.

Plans for a $270,000 project in the West Long Beach area, nearing completion, including two lines designed by Harbor Department engineers.

Drivers Save 6 From Fire

Two Compton motorists Saturday were credited with saving the lives of five children and their father by leading them from their burning house in Lynwood.

Tony Hill, 31, of 1340½ E. 152nd St., and Dennis Nason, 29, of 117 W. Bennett St., both of Compton, heard screams coming from a house.

* * * *

AFTER BREAKING in several windows, the two men led Fred Jameson, 35, and his five children to safety.

3 in Hospital After U-Turn on Freeway

Busy Saturday afternoon traffic was diverted off the northbound Long Beach Freeway for 40 minutes after a 60-year-old motorist made a U-turn and drove head-on into another car, sending three persons to the hospital.

The motorist, Thomas J. Brooks, of 637 Magnolia Ave., was arrested for drunk driving, according to police.

He had been driving north on the freeway near Willow Street when, according to witnesses, he made a U-turn and drove south, hitting a northbound car driven by Daniel B. Hamburg, 35, of Monterey Park.

* * * *

HAMBURG'S CAR was spun around by the impact, colliding with a car driven by Sylvia J. Alvarez, 18, of 119 Willow St., Compton.

Bomb Hoax Stalls Mail Deliveries

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A bomb scare delayed mail deliveries in the Los Angeles area for two hours Saturday.

Police and postal inspectors checked thousands of sacks of mail with fluoroscopes and hearing devices to detect time mechanisms in packages. They found nothing suspicious.

An anonymous telephone caller had said bombs were scattered through Southern California mail. The caller, an unidentified woman, had warned authorities in Ventura and Oxnard that bombs mailed in Oxnard were set to explode at 6 a.m. Officials said she sounded hysterical.

Mail bags from Oxnard were traced to the Los Angeles International Airport, the Downtown Terminal Annex and a mail truck driving in the Bakersfield area. Long Beach mail was not affected.

Patrolman Feared Kidnaped

LUCAS, Iowa (UPI)—Iowa state police Saturday feared that a patrolman, missing since early morning, was kidnaped.

ROBERT WILKE
Abducted?

Authorities said Patrolman Robert Wilke's squad car was found on a side road about four miles south of Lucas. Wilke's empty gun belt and summons book was found about a mile away in a ditch.

State Safety Commissioner Carl Pesch said it was believed Wilke had been abducted by "persons unknown."

A massive air and ground search was launched. Four planes and a helicopter from Iowa and Missouri were spearheading the search which was centered on the state's Grand River Forest preserve area.

Wilke was reported missing by his wife who became alarmed when he did not return home from work.

MOAB, Utah (AP)—Western lawmen, left without clues by the suicide of their prime suspect, searched the Utah badlands Saturday for a teen-aged girl who was kidnaped by a highway robber after he murdered her mother.

They said they are certain they will find Denise Sullivan dead, that the 15-year-old Connecticut tourist was probably killed by her abductor soon after he fled with her down a desert road Tuesday night.

Her abductor was Abel B. Aragon, 36, an unemployed coal miner who won the nation's second highest medal for valor as a 19-year-old Marine fighting the Japanese on Guam in 1944. He killed himself when arrested by officers Friday night near Moab.

Assassination Grenade Fails

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Saturday two men tried to assassinate Frederick L. Nolting, U. S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, by throwing a homemade hand grenade into his car in Saigon.

The assassination attempt failed when the grenade did not go off. A State Department spokesman said.

108 Perish in Mine Blaze

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A roaring fire swept through a coal mine in the Carpathian Mountains killing 108 miners Friday night, the official news agency Ceteka reported Saturday.

Ceteka said the rapidly spreading fire in Dulka mine was battled until early Saturday morning by rescue teams rushed in from throughout the Ostrava Karvina coal basin. Cause of the fire was not announced.

"In spite of superhuman efforts to save the trapped men," Ceteka said, "108 miners lost their lives."

Cooley on Trial Monday; Slates Not Guilty Plea

By GEORGE FLOWERS
Staff Writer

BAKERSFIELD — Donnell (Spade) Cooley, one-time "king of Western swing," goes on trial for his life in Kern County Superior Court here Monday.

Charged with beating and torturing his wife, Ella Mae, to death last April, in their Water Wonderland ranch home at Rosamond, near Bakersfield, Cooley has pleaded not guilty, and not guilty by reason of insanity.

The state's star witness will be Cooley's 14-year-old daughter, Melody, who told a coroner's jury that her father forced her to watch him kill her mother.

* * * *

MELODY HAS been a plainly hostile witness against her father. Defense attorney P. Basil Lambros says frankly: "She hates him."

District Attorney Kip I. Nelson, who heads the prosecution, said Saturday that he expects the selection of a jury to take only a few days. A total of 120 prospective jurors has been summoned.

Nelson refuses to say if he will ask the death penalty.

LAMBROS HAS frankly indicated that the Cooley defense will hinge largely on the insanity plea. Although psychiatrists appointed by the court have already determined that Cooley is sane, and thus must stand trial, the ultimate decision will be made by the jury.

If Cooley is found guilty of murder in the trial beginning Monday, he may make two more appearances before the jury. The first will be to determine his sanity. If found sane, he will go back before the jury for its decision on the death penalty.

Fat Lady Dies

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Texas Dolly, a professional fat lady with circuses and carnivals, died Saturday at a St. Joseph hospital at the age of 63.

Once she had weighed nearly 800 pounds dut due to illness had dropped down to 400.

UNIFORMS STAND OUT

To quiet the fears of nervous householders, the city has now outfitted meter readers in uniforms so they will not be mistaken for burglars or Peeping Toms. Here William O. Spear, 236½ Chestnut Ave., peers from his rear door as John De Graff, outfitted in new uniform, reads a meter.—(Staff Photo)

NEW GARB, EMBLEM

Meter Readers Now Distinctive

City meter readers no longer have to worry about being mistaken for burglars or Peeping Toms.

For the first time, the Municipal Gas Department last week outfitted the 20 metermen with uniforms designed to quiet the fears of nervous householders.

Supt. L. L. Bendinger of the gas department ordered the uniforms after some embarrassing incidents involving hasty police alarms.

The metermen read both gas and water meters.

Singapore Bans Costume

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (UPI)—Tony Moynihan, son of a British peer, said Saturday that Singapore authorities have refused to allow his wife to perform her belly dance there unless she changes her costume.

Moynihan's wife bills herself as "Princess Amina." The couple arrived from Bangkok to work at a night club here after being told that Amina would have to modify her two-piece costume in order to wiggle to Moynihan's bongo beat in Singapore.

"Nothing in my wife's act could possibly be termed indecent," Moynihan protested. "But my wife will not change her costume so we will not be going to Singapore."

Moynihan is the oldest son of a distant cousin of Queen Elizabeth, Lord Moynihan of Leeds.

70,000 Tractors-for-Freedom Letters to Be Returned Unopened

DETROIT (AP)—Nearly 70,000 letters—most of them believed to contain contributions to the ill-fated tractors-for-Cuban invasion prisoners swap — will be returned unopened.

This decision was announced Saturday by the tractors for freedom committee. It said Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's unreasonable demands made the deal impossible.

The committee, which has disbanded, is headed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, honorary chairman; Walter P. Reuther, United Auto Workers president, and Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University, co-chairmen, and Joseph M. Dodge, Detroit banker, treasurer.

The committee had proposed to exchange 500 farm tractors for Cuban freedom fighters held prisoner by Castro. The committee put the number of prisoners at 1,214.

John Hooker Jr., executive secretary of the disbanded committee, earlier this month told 10 members of a prisoners' delegation sent from Cuba to Key West, Fla., that "in the name of honor the committee feels it cannot send Dr. Castro tractors, money or credits for indemnity. Not $28 million or $28."

The citizens' group Thursday rejected a request by a committee that contributions be turned over to them in an effort to revive the project.

The committee said it had set out in "all good faith and with the approval of President Kennedy" to provide the Cuban people with agricultural tractors in exchange for the prisoners.

Mrs. Roosevelt, widow of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, had suggested that each contribution be returned with a note of thanks and an explanation of why the prisoners' swap failed.

However, each returned envelope will have imprinted on it:

"'At the request of the Tractors for Freedom Committee this mail is being returned with sincere appreciation for your interest and with regret its purpose could not be consummated."

The committee said letters without return addresses will go to the post office's dead letter office, where they will be opened for possible identification of the sender.

1962 WILL BE 'YEAR OF THE FACELIFT' IN CARS

Detroit to Offer in-Between Size

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (UPI)—Once upon a time, says an old Detroit legend, there were low price cars, medium price cars and high price cars.

The low price cars were smaller, plainer and less powerful than the others. The mediums were just that—medium size, medium fancy, medium powerful. And the high price cars were the big ones with the big engines and the fancy doodads.

But change—some diehard supporters of chrome and tail-fins called it progress—set in and the neat designations disappeared. First came the rush to make every car bigger, fancier and more expensive.

Then, in a typical turn-around, Detroit decided the new magic words were economy and compact. So everything got smaller.

The traditional low price names of a decade ago all had little brothers. This past year the old medium price names also had little brothers.

* * * *

INTO THIS confused market the manufacturers next fall will introduce yet another member of their growing families—the in-between or little bigger brothers.

Ford, Chevrolet and Mercury will be the first into this field. In size their new entries will be throwbacks to about 1949 or 1950, but with lighter weight, peppier engines.

These three will high light a model year marked by generally modest change. The 1962s as a whole will bear a strong resemblence to the 1961 models. For almost everyone it is the year of the face lift, rather than a year of full restyling.

These things will be new:

A 221-cubic-inch V-8 engine for the new Fords. The original Ford V-8 was of this size but considerably heavier and only half as powerful.

Two new engines for the new-size Chevrolets, a six and a four-cylinder. A new V-8 probably is a year away. So is a small, small car if Chevrolet decides to have one.

Convertibles for Corvair, Buick Special, Olds F-85 and Pontiac Tempest — possibly later in the model year.

Luxury bucket-seat versions of both Valiant and Lancer to match the Corvair Monza and the other luxury compacts.

* * * *

LONG-LIFE lubrication for the entire Chrysler lineup, with an interval of more than 30,000 miles between grease jobs. Ford introduced this for 1961.

The industry's first V-6 passenger engine, to be used in the Buick Special. The Special will continue to offer an aluminum V-8. The V-6 will be of cast iron and will be the standard engine. Olds may have a similar V-6 as an option for its F-85.

The Rambler American will continue to be the shortest, both in wheelbase (100 inches) and overall length (173 inches). Ford definitely has a smaller car in the wings but it won't show up until a year from now.

Along with the American in the definitely compact size will be Studebaker-Packard's Lark, Chevrolet's Corvair, Ford's Falcon and Plymouth's Valiant, with the Valiant 6½ inches longer than the American.

Trailing this group, roughly in order of ascending overall size, will be the Olds F-85, Buick Special, Dodge Lancer, Pontiac Tempest, Rambler Classic and the Comet.

The new Ford Fairlane and Fairlane 500 and the smaller Chevrolets will be only fractionally larger than the Comet. Both of them are smaller than the Rambler Ambassador and the wheelbase on the prototypes of the new Chevys is only 110 inches, or two inches less than the B-O-P compacts.

The new Mercury Meteor, however, will be just over the 200-inch-overall mark which George Romney personally defined as the upper limit for a compact car.

Much of the rest of the industry feels Romney picked that arbitrary figure just so he could class his Rambler Ambasador series as a compact.

The new-sized Fords bear the familiar Fairlane and Fairlane 500 series designations, leaving the Galaxie as the top of the line, in size as well as price. As a starter the Fairlanes will come only in two-door and four-door sedan models.

Ford's Falcon and Galaxie will get a more squared-off look in front and back. Falcon will have a new, fancier wagon with simulated wood panelling. Mercury's Meteor will be a slightly stretched version of the Fairlanes. Mercury Monterey again will duplicate the Galaxie. Lincoln Continental and Thunderbird will continue virtually untouched.

* * * *

PLYMOUTH AND Dodge Dart get new body sheils, slimmed down and several inches shorter than the 1961 models. Dart and the Dodge Polara both lose their fins. Chrysler and Imperial fins will shrink to a very modest size. Valiant and Lancer will lose some of their identical twin looks.

Most General Motors' changes also are minor—a little shifting in the roof lines and the usual grille changes.

Studebaker's Lark lines will be continued another year and Rambler, too, will remain basically the same, most especially in the American series.

U.N. Discord Binds Africa, Asia Lands

By WALTER RIDDER
Chief, I. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—It's a long way from Outer Mongolia, Asia, to Mauretania, Africa, but for the moment they are bound together by diplomatic chords. This unlikely pair of nations—if indeed Outer Mongolia is really a nation—are and will continue to be in the headlines as peripheral victims—or perhaps victors—of the gigantic struggle now shaping up over admission of Red China to the United Nations.

How those two small and remote countries got embroiled in the Red China admission to the UN fight is a long and complicated story, but it does show that not even the herdsmen of faraway Asian vastnesses are safe these days from the world power struggle.

* * * *

OUTER MONGOLIA was the first satellite state to be erected by the Soviets. It voted independence from China on Aug. 14, 1945, an independence which was recognized by the Red Chinese when they took over in Peiping. In 1946, Outer Mongolia applied for membership in the UN, but was turned down, largely on the grounds that it was not truly independent and that it was merely a vassal state of Russia. It tried for admission again in 1955 but was vetoed by Nationalist China. Over the years, Outer Mongolia, which at first was recognized only by Soviet Russia, picked up diplomatic recognition from a number of other countries, such as India and the nations of Southeast Asia. It has not been recognized by the U. S. It's only claim to international fame before recent events came in 1957 when after his fall from Kremlin grace, Vyacheslav Molotov, former Soviet foreign minister and close friend of Stalin, was appointed ambassador in the Mongolian capital of Ulan Bator—a post which may have been more important than it then seemed.

* * * *

THE MATTER of U. S. recognition was revived recently and talks were held on the subject in Moscow between American diplomats and representatives of Outer Mongolia. The State Department is now studying the pros and cons of recognition, a study which brought the cry of "incredible" from Rep. Walter Judd, R., Minn., a vigorous opponent of having anything whatever to do with Outer Mongolia.

The reasoning behind the flirtation with Outer Mongolia goes something like this—recognition of Outer Mongolia and its admission to the UN might be enough of a sop to the Communist bloc to stall, at least for another year, recognition of Red China and give us a talking point; recognition of Outer Mongolia would allow U. S. diplomatic representatives to be stationed in Ulan Bator and give us a knothole which we don't have now for peeking at eastern Siberia and Asia. And—this is where Mauretania comes in—we might do ourselves some good with the new Africa nations by bartering admission of Outer Mongolia for admission of Mauretania.

* * * *

MAURETANIA, which only attained independence last year, had also applied for UN membership. It got caught, as so many small countries do, in the fight between the East and the West and its application was vetoed by the Soviet Union. Early this year, the question of Mauretania's admission was again raised, this time its bid was coupled with a similar bid by Outer Mongolia. The U. S. turned down this so-called "package" deal and while supporting Mauretania declared it would not vote for Outer Mongolia until the latter country could prove it was truly independent. The package deal fell through, but it is now being revived.

So as matters now stand, the U. S. is taking another look at the status of Outer Mongolia, a fact which has already soured relations between the U. S. and Nationalist China, which vehemently opposes any contact with the Communist government of Outer Mongolia.

That Other Beauty Pageant (in That Other State) Starts Today

MIAMI BEACH (AP)—The Miss Universe beauty pageant today begins its 10th annual contribution to international understanding—"through the mutual appreciation of beauty."

"That official description is really our purpose," said Philip Bottfeld, the pageant's executive director. "I think, though, that the greatest understanding comes to the girls themselves mixing with each other and representing their countries."

Miss Linda Bement of Utah, the Miss Universe winner last year, agrees with Bottfeld, but she adds a few thoughts of her own.

"You get out of this contest what you put into it," said the 19-year-old girl on the eve of her departure from the throne. "You're used, of course, because you're Miss Universe. People don't give you a wardrobe for nothing. They want a picture of you in their shoes or their dress. Generally, this is a business, like being a secretary. It's a job and I floated around on a cloud the first few months before I realized it.

Ninety-five girls from 51 countries are entered in the week-long contest, held for the second-straight year at this resort city. The first three days have been set aside for parades, picture taking, bathing suit fittings and various ceremonies.

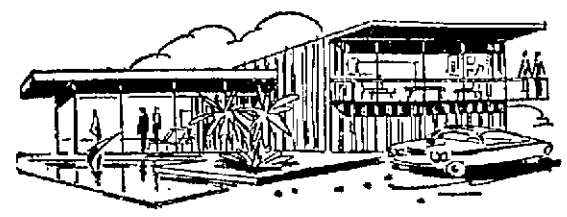

Forty-five entries are from the United States. They will compete Wednesday and Thursday for the Miss U.S.A. title.

Some Unpublished Hemingway Work Locked Up in Bank

By WILLIAM BEBOUT

KETCHUM, Idaho (AP)—Mrs. Ernest Hemingway said Saturday her husband left a number of unpublished works, including some poetry and a manuscript locked in an Idaho bank.

She said she isn't even sure where some of the author's unfinished work is, but confirmed there is an unpublished novel in a Cuban bank and another in the nearby Hailey, Idaho, bank.

Mrs. Hemingway, insisting again that she is certain her husband's death last Sunday from a shotgun blast was accidental, met four reporters in the living room of the secluded mountain home where she found the body a week ago.

She said Hemingway regarded his unfinished works as "part of his bank account" and didn't feel it would be wise to publish them now because of the tax situation.

The one novel was left in the Hailey bank when Hemingway went to the Mayo Clinic in Minnesota last month for treatment of hypertension (high blood pressure), she said.

She said he planned to get it last Monday and resume his work on the manuscript.

* * * *

MRS. HEMINGWAY, the fourth wife of the 61-year-old Nobel prizewinner, has been in seclusion except for the Thursday funeral since her husband died.

At the request of the Associated Press, she agreed to meet four reporters in her home Saturday to answer questions submitted in advance.

She said she wanted to "correct inaccuracies" in early reporting of Hemingway's death. To the newsmen, these seemed to be little things—she was not born in England as reported in one paper; her husband did not walk out of the movie "The Killer" and call it a bad production; her husband did not ever play in big-stake poker games or ever win $25,000 on a two-queen bluff; he did not walk out alive from an African plane crash with his wife on one arm, a bottle of gin in the other and say, "I feel wonderful."

"I just want to keep things straight," she said.

Mrs. Hemingway, dressed simply in blue slacks and blue blouse, kept her noted composure through most of the interview, conducted in the living room just a few steps away from a wall rack of guns.

One shotgun was missing. The sheriff has it. It is the gun that killed Hemingway. Coroner Ray McGoldrick said it could have been accidental or suicide, that he was making no final judgment.

Mrs. Hemingway first put out a statement saying her husband killed himself accidentally while cleaning a gun. She was asleep upstairs at the time and was awakened by the shot.

Saturday, she said he wasn't cleaning the gun, only looking at it. She said she sometimes examines her camera, even though she has no intention of shooting a picture.

* * * *

"I STILL FEEL that in some way this was an accident," she said.

Mrs. Hemingway, herself a writer, said she plans to do some work, but doesn't know when or what subjects she'll explore.

She told the reporters she and her husband had dinner at their favorite Sun Valley restaurant the night before he died, that they returned home early and that he was in good spirits.

He even joined in with the final line of "A silly little Italian folk song" she was singing, she said.

Mrs. Hemingway told of plans to go to Europe with her husband next fall, of hopes to return to Cuba—"that's our home, everything we have is there"—of plans for more hunting.

She talked lovingly of her husband and of his love for every sport — evidenced by the hunting guns, the big game rugs on the floor, the bullfighting pictures on the wall, the autographed picture of boxer Archie Moore.

But for all his gruffness, she said, "people don't really know what really, quiet, gentle . . ."

She couldn't finish, rose quickly, left the room and retired to her bedroom upstairs.

State to Pay $5 on Employes' Insurance Plan

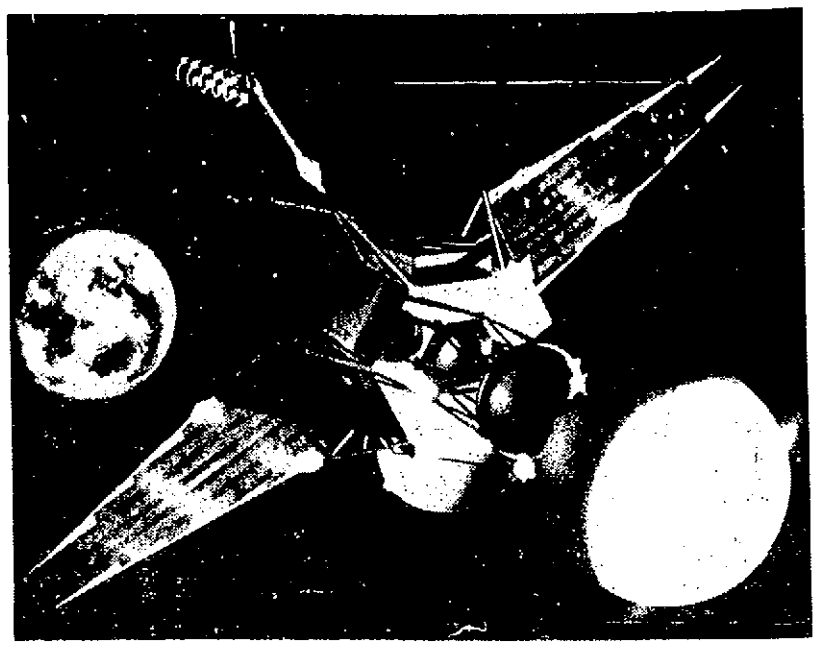

SACRAMENTO (AP)—State contributions of $5 a month toward medical and hospital insurance for state employes starting Jan. 1 is provided under a bill signed Saturday by Gov. Brown.

The employe can choose any insurance plan approved by the State Employes Retirement System Board.

* * * *

THE MEASURE, by Assemblyman Charles Meyers, D-San Francisco, and Sen. Samuel Geddes, D-Napa, will cost $6.6 million a year for the 110,000 state employes automatically covered.

If the University of California Board of Regents approves, another 22,000 university employes would be included, pushing the annual cost to $7.9 million.

MOON-BEAMED

This is the three-foot sphere which the United States plans to shoot to the moon next year. Inside will be a 50-pound seismometer to send back information needed to prepare a manshoot to the moon. In the background is the moon.—(Associated Press photo.)

U. S. to Send 'Eyeball' to Test Moon Surface

By RALPH DIGHTON

PASADENA (AP) — Sometime next year, if President Kennedy's new timetable is met, a three-foot sphere bearing the words "United States" will crash on the moon and break open.

Out will pop a smaller ball, painted to resemble a human eye, which will roll crazily around on the lunar surface until it comes to rest with its "iris" pointed toward the earth.

The "eyeball" will not be able to see anything. Its function will be to sense, with a delicate shock meter, any moon quakes or meteorite impacts that occur during its 60 to 90 days of operating life and radio them back to earth.

And that's all.

Before man can land safely on the moon, he needs to know what it's made of. Will he step out of his spaceship onto jagged rocks, or into soft smothering dust hundreds of feet deep? Will he need steel-spiked shoes or wide air cushions on his feet?

The seismometer, a miniature version of the shock gauges that measure earth's quakes, will help answer these questions in advance.

Hand-built over long months at the seismological laboratory of the California Institute of Technology, the seismometer will measure any shock waves that come to it through the lunar crust. The intensity and speed of the waves will tell earth scientists what kind of material the waves traveled through, hard or soft.

If there is a volcanic action, the seismometer will reveal it.

Eventually the United States hopes to put heavier, more elaborate equipment on the moon—such as remotely controlled tricycles with television cameras to show what the surface actually looks like—but this will require more powerful rockets than this country has yet perfected.

At the moment, moon planning must be laid around rockets now ready for use—the 360,000-pound-thrust Atlas Intercontinental Missile and a 15,000-pound-thrust Agena B second stage.

At least two shots will be made, probably later this year, to test the Atlas-Agena B combination. They will be aimed away from the moon, not toward it, because their purpose is primarily to check out the hardware.

If these are successful, an attempt to land a seismometer capsule on the moon may come as early as January.

Basic space truck for the capsule will be a skeletonized structure called Ranger.

This vehicle, to be fastened on the nose of the booster rocket's second stage, is already being built at JPL. It is 12 feet high and weighs 800 pounds including the capsule. At its base, like the arms of a windmill, are two large solar panels to collect energy from the sun to power Ranger's television camera.

After separation from the Atlas booster, the second stage Agena B will go into orbit around the earth for an undetermined period. A tracking station at Woomera, Australia, is scheduled to send the signal which will start the Agena rocket engine again on a trajectory toward the moon.

Somewhere in mid-course the Agena will drop away and Ranger's own small guidance rockets will take over.

About 20 miles above the surface the capsule will be detached from the Ranger vehicle and at this point the TV camera stops operating. The Ranger goes on to crash into the moon at 6,500 miles an hour.

A backward-firing rocket slows the capsule's fall, then it, too, drops away. The capsule itself hits the moon at a speed of about 300 miles an hour.

The problems of protecting a delicate instrument at impact speeds of 300 m.p.h. have taken thousands of man hours to solve.

In final tests the seismometer survived a 1,000-foot drop from a helicopter. The impact gouged a crater in a strip of blacktopping but the seismometer operated perfectly afterward.

Another improvement in design put the seismometer itself in a sphereical casing. Originally it was in a turret-shaped case with antennas pointing out in several directions. There was a chance it might topple over after impact, however, in such a way that none of the antennas beamed directly at earth.

Scientists figured a sphere might roll around, but it would always come to rest upright if the side opposite the antenna were weighted.

By accident rather than design, the flat, circular antenna portion of the sphere was painted a lighter color, giving the whole thing the appearance of an eyeball.

Navy Opens Big Air Base at Lemoore

LEMOORE (AP)—The Navy commissioned Saturday its largest air base — the $100-million Lemoore Naval Air Station designed to supply pilots and planes for the aircraft carriers of the Pacific Fleet.

The 31-square-mile installation, under construction for five years, includes two 13,500-foot landing strips, four large hangars, and housing for 5,000 officers and men.

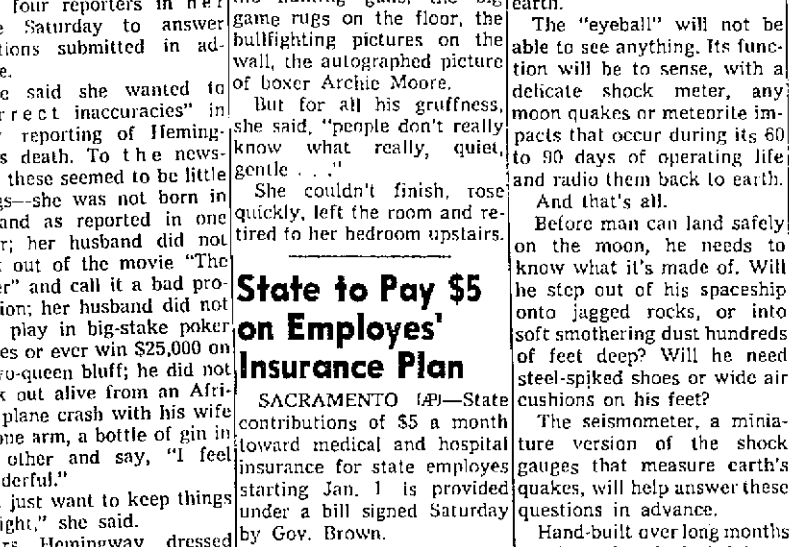

Paul B. Fay Jr., Navy undersecretary, said in the commissioning-ceremony address that Lemoore was being activated 50 years after the first takeoff and landing of an aircraft on a vessel.

"In 1911 the Navy made aviation history when a Navy pilot, Eugene Ely, took off and landed his Curtiss biplane on the wooden deck of the cruiser USS Pennsylvania in San Francisco Bay," Fay said.

Capt. Howard M. Avery commands the new air station. When it reaches full operational status in 1962, it will be the base for 20 squadrons, mainly of A4D Sky Hawks. These aircraft can carry their own weight in Sidewinder missiles or nuclear bombs.

VIVIAN LAIRD HILL BECAME L.B. BYWORD

Retired Restaurateur Muses Over Early Days

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

The repeal of prohibition caught Vivian Laird napping. She didn't know how to mix a drink.

So, although she had one of the first liquor licenses in Long Beach, she had to hire a bartender for a night to teach her how to mix.

"I didn't even know the crazy names the drinks had," she recalls, "and I was curious. So I took a sip from each drink with a straw (in the kitchen).

"By the time the night was over, I had forgotten everything I had been taught. So I had to bring the bartender back again next night."

But Vivian Laird was rarely caught napping after that.

* * * *

VIVIAN LAIRD (although she married Frank Hill in 1944 nobody ever calls her Mrs. Hill — in fact, they often call Frank Mr. Laird) operated restaurants in Long Beach and Seal Beach for 30 years, beginning in 1927.

When she retired in 1957, people said an era had ended.

* * * *

IF SO, that era began on a "wide place in the road" called Hillbourne, Ill., when Vivian Connor was born. About 39 years ago.

Her father, a farmer, also owned a bank and an elevator. He sold the works in 1912 and moved to Los Angeles for two years, then to Idaho. Vivian married an oil driller and roamed Southern California until 1927 when the marriage broke up and she wound up with $2,500—"my half of the loot."

* * * *

IN THOSE DAYS that represented more than a car payment. In fact, Vivian Laird used it to open a restaurant called the "Garden of Allah" on East Second Street.

"We served hot biscuits, corn pones, home-made pastry, chicken and steak," she recalls.

"Things were pretty simple in those days. They got a lot more simple in 1929, when the depression came. There were nights when we didn't serve a single customer.

"Even our bookkeeping system was simple. The paid bills went in a cigar box, the unpaid ones on top. We always knew how much money we had—we could count it in the cash register."

When business got so bad that the waiters had been cut to $23 a week, Mrs. Laird got a little desperate. She borrowed $100 from a bank and put in an asphalt dance floor and a phonograph.

"Then I figured out a lot of crazy ideas for sundaes and sodas, and advertised for the high school kids."

* * * *

THEY RESPONDED by the hundreds. Business got so good that: "We couldn't serve them fast enough. They'd come out in the kitchen and help us, and stick around after closing time to help us do the dishes."

The crowd stuck with Mrs. Laird until she retired. In 1936 she sold her first restaurant and built the "Garden of Allah" in Seal Beach.

"We couldn't get it built fast enough. The customers sat on piles of lumber and nail kegs."

Vivian started that place with an 11-stool bar, wound up with a 30-place drinkery.

* * * *

MRS. LAIRD remembers the repeal of prohibition—She had the first beer license in Long Beach.

"I'll never forget the first night.

"Everybody said our beer was the best in town. I didn't know much about beer, so I just thanked them. In fact, I thought all we had was near beer."

Then she caught a waiter. Disturbed because Laird's had no real beer, he had been spiking the near beer with straight alcohol.

There are those who say that beer has not reached that height in Long Beach since.

WITH A START like that, Vivian Lard's golden era was soon booming. She opened the Bohemia Lounge in the Robinson hotel in 1938, the South Seas in Anaheim and the Brass Rail in Laguna Beach.

In 1944 a friend, the late Paul Pierce, introduced her to his fellow Shriner and friend, Frank Hill.

"I invited him over for breakfast," she recalls, "and from then on he could not stay away from my cooking."

They married in 1944, and she sold out her restaurant interests.

* * * *

ON DECEMBER 23, 1947, the Hills were back in the restaurant business up to their necks. They built and opened "Vivian Laird's" on Alamitos Avenue, where, her book advised employes:

"We are selling food and drinks, but more important, we are selling happiness, or at least an illusion of happiness."

Ten years later, however, that high school gang that bailed the Garden of Allah out of the red was beginning to fatten up and thin out. The boom was over. The Hills sold out, went on a trip around the world.

* * * *

THEY WENT on another this year that nearly took them out of the world.

While motoring on a road 40 miles out of Colombo, Ceylon, on March 25, their driver suffered a fatal heart attack.

"His number was up, and he nearly took us with him," Frank explains.

The car hit a coconut tree. Mrs. Hill suffered a broken pelvis and smashed jaw.

Tied in a canvas belt, and raised or lowered from planes like a piece of baggage, Mrs. Hill was flown to the United States in 44 hours by jets."

"Another 10 hours would have been too late," the doctors told her.

* * * *

THE HILLS were each badly smashed up in the accident, and each has made a remarkable recovery.

And each was well insured. They bought a $3,000 travel policy to provide for their 8-year-old poodle, Mitzie.

"So she would be taken care of in case anything happened to us," Hill explained, "and our wills wouldn't be disturbed. We made her the beneficiary."

"We thought we'd come back dead or alive, but never like we did."

In the fine print of the policy, as it turned out, there was an accident clause that also protected them.

* * * *

THE HILLS live in what's left of the mansion bought by the late J. J. Haggerty of Los Angeles at 1800 Ocean Blvd. It was the home of movie star Fatty Arbuckle. Haggerty, an eccentric who went broke in 1929, had an unusual hobby — he dug caves under his 18,000-square-foot home.

One of the caves survives, having been converted into a bar by Hill.

The Haggerty mansion was reportedly foreclosed on a $13,000 mortgage in the depression. Later it became the Army and Navy Club. The Hills bought it nine years ago. The place was so big they carved 10 own-your-own apartments from the mansion, and built themselves a 3,000-square-foot, two-level apartment along the 13th Place wing.

* * * *

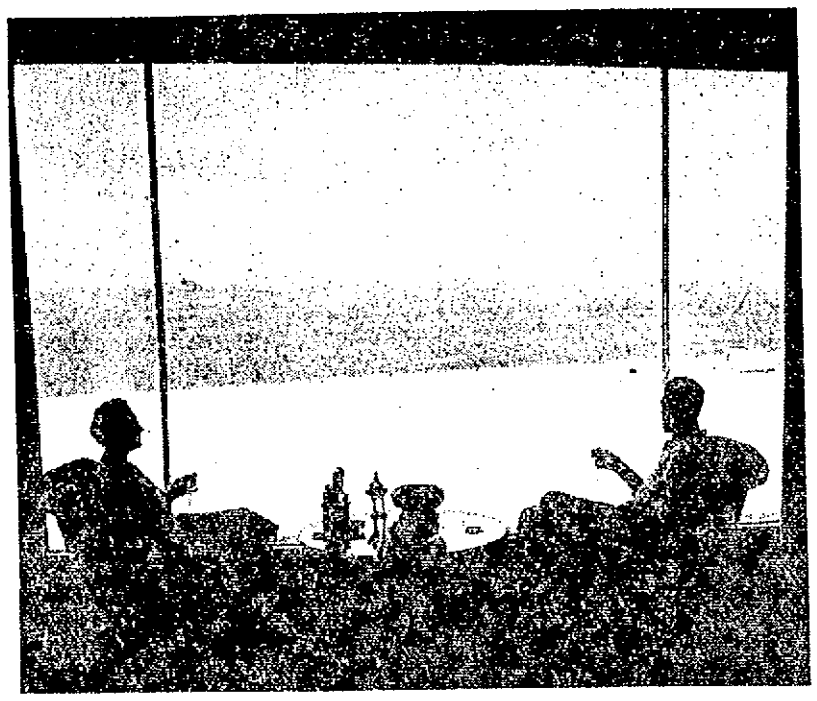

IN THE EVENING Mrs. Hill cooks their meal, Frank mixes a couple of martinis (he has his choice of two bars for this function).

Then they like to sit in the living room, looking out over the waterfront, and contemplate going back into the restaurant business.

"But I don't know," Mrs. Hill sighs. "I am afraid I left most of my ambition against that coconut tree."

They were getting so downcast, Hill reveals, that last week he went out and bought a brand new red Cadillac convertible.

"I figure it might give us a lift," he said.

Cuba Transfers Prisoners to Ancient Fortress

MIAMI (UPI)—The approximately 1,200 prisoners of the Pigs' Bay invasion of Cuba were moved Friday night to Castillo del Principe Prison, according to reliable reports reaching here Saturday.

Castillo del Principe is an old Spanish fortress converted many years ago into a jail for common criminals. When families of the prisoners went Friday to the Navy hospital, the provisional jail for the prisoners, they were told the prisoners were being moved to another location.

Visiting Throngs Fill Avalon's Streets

CATALINA ISLAND believes in making its visitors both welcome and well fed. For example, when the S.S. Catalina docked recently, 1,635 passengers debarked. Within three hours the restaurants on the island had sold 3,600 hamburgers, 4,100 glasses or bottles of soft drinks, and 2,250 souvenirs which ran the gamut from postcards to sports shirts. The day on the island really lasts until about 4:30 p.m. Continually adding to tourist traffic are planes and other boats bringing people fro m the mainland.

AIRLINE TRAFFIC to Catalina daily increases tourist trade on the island. Here, framed by the wing and a pontoon of one of the planes which conduct the shuttle service from the mainland is the harbor, clogged with small craft. At right is famed Avalon Casino.

Beach Combing

With MALCOLM EPLEY

THE dedication ceremonies for the new Long Beach water dept. building on Wardlow Rd. should serve as a model for such affairs.

Though all the amenities were taken care of, they were short—about half an hour — and speechmaking was confined to some cogent information about Long Beach water.

Moreover, some special side-entertainment was provided when City Councilman (former Mayor) Ray Kealer came in late and took a seat on the platform. The chair had evidently been sitting exposed in the sun for a long time. The dignified official sat down in his thin summer suit, then jumped as if hit by a shot of electricity.

Kealer was surprised but not flustered. He's been on a hot seat before.

CONSIDERING the immensity of the undertaking in all of its details, a production of the Long Beach Civic Light Opera Assn. is simply astounding.

In such a show as the current Kismet — tonight, next Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights at Muni. Aud. Concert Hall — scores of people cooperate in a civic endeavor of outstanding merit. Most of these people have their regular living-making jobs to do, but give so much to this extra-curricular activity that it comes out as a polished achievement.

Kismet's stage sets, lighting and costuming are most impressive, and of course it exhibits a lot of dramatic and vocal talent. The choreography is simply terrific. As one who gets impatient with dilly-dallying, I am pleased to report that the show moves and keeps moving.

One deficiency I noted early at the opening show was in the sound amplification. Maybe the old Concert Hall acoustics are to blame. But this seemed to get better as it went along.

Some people, when they can't hear, tend to somnolence. This can add snoring to the listening problems of those about them. Turn up the volume, Harvey.

THE aircraft carrier Kearsarge, based in Long Beach, and a task group of the Seventh Fleet currently are visting Kobe.

Sunday the Kearsarge flagship of the group, will hold open house for Kobe's municipal, civic and business leaders. The Kearsarge also is hosting Japanese and American exchange students under the American Field Service international scholarship program. The task group has contributed more than $4,000 to the student exchange project.

The Kearsarge and its escorts officially are a hunter-killer group, a deadly business essential to the nation's defense. Once again the Navy has shown that it can combine the onerous duties of the cold war with the warmth of global good will. The young men of the Kearsarge and her sister ships are a peace corps in uniform.

DRIFTWOOD—With some, last week's Independence Day celebration must have been rather moist. The day after, our question-answering dept. got three quick calls asking for the location of an alcoholic clinic. And an anonymous spokesmen for the fellows at the roque court in Lincoln Park said they are unhappy because the Flag was not displayed on either City Hall or Vets Memorial Hall on the Fourth. If true, it was a bad municipal slip. . . . Leonard Friedman, just named by Gov. Brown to a superior judgeship in Sacramento, represented the state in the early tidelands struggles with L.B. He was honorable and fair-minded in that critical situation, as I can testify personally, and it's nice to see him go up.

Island Keys Pitch to Family Trade

The big white steamer docked at Avalon at 12:30 p.m., and discharged 1,635 passengers.

Within three hours, the restaurants of Catalina Island had sold 3,600 hamburgers, 4,100 glasses or bottles of soft drinks and 2,250 souveniers that ranged from sports shirts to postcards—according to their best estimates.

Until 4:30 p.m., the beaches and streets were crowded with tourists. Then, when the big white boat sailed back to the mainland, a sort of quiet settled on the island.

During the day, planes and other boats had added another 1,000 tourists to the steamer Catalina's disgorgement.

By the end of this summer, Bob Cage of the Catalina Chamber of Commerce estimates, about 300,000 persons will have visited the island for a day—or a week—of relaxation. If that figure holds, it will be a gain of about 50,000 over last year.

Catalina is fighting back from a slump, Gage says. Once again a band of musicians strolls the streets; more excursions cover the island and the sea about it; there are big-name bands at the Casino again.

Keying its pitch to the family trade, Catalina has emphasized tourist attractions this year, and it's paying off. Gage—spokesman for the business people of the island—feels that Catalina's comeback is tied to parents and children.

Airlines, such as Catalina Channel Airways maintain a constant shuttle service from Long Beach Municipal Airport. A third of their business, a spokesman says, consists of children, traveling with their parents.

CHOW'S DOWN even for poodles when they belong to Robert (Bob) Brown, Santa Ana bookshop proprietor, who owns a house on Catalina Island and has been visiting there for 41 years. Brown serves his dogs—three generations of them which he brings over with him by air—hamburgers.

Warn Bar Owners of Tax Obligation

Bar and beer bar owners who are planning to apply for a dancing entertainment cafe license have been warned they will have to pay the 10 per cent federal entertainment tax on all sales.

Lt. E. H. Kennedy and L. H. Jacobsen said the Police Department had received many requests for the licenses since the city fee was reduced from $1,000 to $350.

"Because many of the applicants plan to have only juke box music they believed they would not have to pay the entertainment tax, but the Federal Internal Revenue Bureau advises that the 10 per cent tax will have to be paid," Kennedy and Jacobsen said.

Nebraska Staters Plan All-Day Picnic

The Nebraska State picnic will be held Saturday at Bixby Park, Cherry Street and Ocean Boulevard. The all-day affair will begin at 11 a.m.

The Long Beach Junior Concert Band will perform.

Registration will be by counties. Those attending are asked to bring a basket lunch.

The chief is expected to remain in the hospital an additional week and is not permitted to have visitors. Deputy Fire Chief Leonard V. Foster is acting chief.

577 VA Hospital Workers Feted at Recognition Day

A total of 577 employes of Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital received awards in the hospital's recent Recognition Day program.

The manager's special annual award was presented to Dr. Simon J. Moglowsky, head of outpatient and admission services, for "outsanding proficiency."

Dr. Michael L. Matte, hospital manager, also presented commendation awards to John H. Driggs, chief, engineering division; Joseph H. Ferry, chief, fiscal division; Walter Hoeke, chief storage and distribution section; and Estella Mann, R. N., assistant chief, nursing section.

Special awards went to Mildred Pavey, registrar division, and Johnnie L. Johnson, housekeeping division, for performance in an emergency situation "far beyond the normal requirements of their positions."

Trade Envoys Slated to Address Forum

Trade envoys from Sweden, Israel and Thailand will address the Chamber of Commerce Community Forum at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday in the Crown Cafeteria.

They are in Long Beach to prepare for the International Trade Show which opens a three-day stand next Friday in Municipal Auditorium.

Ticonderoga Leads Honolulu Yacht Race

The Ticonderoga, winner of 22 East Coast yacht racing victories, Saturday led the 22nd biennial run of the Los Angeles-Honolulu yacht race.

The famed New York racing ketch covered 228 miles in the 24 hours before Saturday's roll call, placing herself 905 miles from the starting point last Tuesday and at the top of fleet and handicap standings.

THE SIRIUS II, pace-setter since the race's start on July 4, held second place. The Sirius, owned by Howard Ahmanson of Los Angeles, logged 200 miles between roll calls. It was 60 miles behind the Ticonderoga.

The two leaders were well ahead of the record pace attained by the yacht Morning Star at the same point in the 1955 race. The Ticonderoga is owned by William Brittain of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Far behind were two Japanese entries racing in a special tall ships class. Nipon Maru was 615 miles from the start, with her sister, Kaiwo Maru, having covered 555 miles.

Class leaders were:

A—Ticonderoga, Chubasco, Nam Sang, Kamailii, Escapade.

B—Ichiban, Ondine, Vixen, Santana, Roland Von Bremen.

C—Rascal Nalu II, Starlight, Kialoa, Mary Bower.

D—No Hu Hu, Rough & Ready, Tyboon, Vamanos, Viaje.

The Ticonderoga's weather report included winds of 15 knots and moderate seas.

EDITORIAL

Survival Versus Right to Know

FOLLOWING THE FIASCO of the Cuban freedom fighters, whose plans were public knowledge before they hit the beach in the Bay of Pigs, we suggested editorially that the American press should undertake a program of self-censorship such as that which proved necessary and effective in World War II.

We considered—and we consider—that proposal justified by the fact that the United States is engaged in a cold war whose stakes are as high as those of any hot war this nation ever fought.

President Kennedy felt the same way, for a few days later he suggested some form of self-censorship to the press. His suggestion received a generally cool reception, the reaction ranging from James Reston's restrained appeal for "discretion" to Westbrook Pegler's choleric observation that "with all the spies there have been in our government since Roosevelt moved in in 1933, the odds are that Moscow had (the inside story) long before I got it."

THE DEBATE CONTINUES. A dispassionate exploration of the issue by Theodore F. Koop, Washington vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, appears in the July bulletin of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Koop notes that two main arguments can be advanced against the proposal: 1. Most of the stories which have worried the government appear to have been deliberate leaks by government officials. 2. The value of self-censorship here is questionable as long as the international channels of information remain open.

The answers to these arguments are: 1. Indiscretion does not justify further indiscretion. 2. Foreign agents can't pick up information as readily as American newsmen can; in any event, why make the enemy's job any easier for him?

The plans for the Normandy invasion and the story of the development of the atomic bomb were kept secret by a responsible and patriotic press in World War II. Even today, few newspapermen would claim that those stories should have been published. In matters of national security, sometimes, the public's right to survive outweighs the public's right to know.

MANY PERSONS DO NOT REALIZE that the British press has had a workable system of voluntary censorship for many years. The program derives its strength, in the words of William Hardcastle, editor of the London Daily Mail, "from the British editors' own conviction that, especially in the present state of world affairs, certain items and areas of information must be withheld from publication in the interest of national welfare and security."

It seems to us contradictory that American editors resist that viewpoint while editorially describing the present era of world conflict as one of the most critical in the history of the republic.

Heavy, Heavy Jesse M. Unruh Hangs Over Republican Head

BIG DADDY Jesse Unruh said it's his physical heft and not bludgeon or blackjack which saddled him with the Big D reputation among California's Democratic politicians.

The Los Angeles Assemblyman unloaded his big chest Friday on Paul Coates' Channel 11 show. It will be repeated at 2 p.m. Monday.

HOUSER

Unruh, who weighs 20 stone if he weighs a gram, charged that the Time Magazine profile which characterized him as the leader of a Praetorian Guard who snake-whipped state legislators to his point of view is an attempt by that publication to divide this state's Democrats.

Similar attempts elsewhere to make Unruh a political heavy are the first resort of reactionary Republicans to cope with Unruh's political success, he said.

Bludgeoning and blackjacking are inferior implements in the legislative process here, he contends. "You can only scare a guy so long." He accepted the label "tough and clever politician" as tribute, but explained his own concept of these terms:

POLITICS is a game of acquiring and holding the confidence of your colleagues. I would like to be considered a disciplinarian in all phases of my life. A central core of authority is needed in political leadership. You can't enforce legislation with pure bludgeon. It's a matter of how good your word is, legislators' overall feeling for you, your integrity and the respect it commands.

Unruh denied any rift with Gov. Pat Brown over state political power or over cordiality of relations with the White House. He admitted he was offered a choice of a couple of federal appointments for his vanguard work for JFK in this state but declined to identify what the choices were. It is believed, however, one was the postmaster generalship.

Top state Republicans will weigh Unruh's political might at least twice in the coming week. Former Vice President Richard Nixon hosts about 20 GOP leaders in his home Tuesday. State Chairman John Krehbiel will lead a 75-member brainstorming parley next Saturday in the Statler Hilton.

Among prominent courses to set: what to do about reapportionment, absentee balloting and literacy challenges at the polls. Recent GOP polls have virtually abandoned the idea of a ballot referendum seeking to have state voters overthrow reapportionment. This bill passed with a majority vote of Assembly Republicans as well as Democrats.

UNRUH WROTE the absentee ballot revision which requires that they be returned three days prior to election day rather than six days after. His stated aim is to avoid the long count of results which delays California's tally by several days. The GOP says it disenfranchises travelers and servicemen.

But Unruh's strength here again is to be reckoned with. He said on the Coates' program he now has more than 60 Assembly votes pledged to give him the speakership when Speaker Ralph Brown vacates for a judgeship appointment. To have more than 60 pledges means he has a significant number of GOP votes.

On people, Unruh pulled no punches: Nixon would be a formidable challenge in any field.

Chairman Krehbiel has been taken care of by GOP legislators themselves, "giving no credence to his leadership and very little to his veracity."

SAN FRANCISCO Mayor George Christopher, who depicts Unruh as the man who effects or kills the Governor's program at whim, "should return to the calling for which he is best equipped—milking cows."

Despite the Big Daddy tag, Unruh can be cut. The Time piece put him in a two-day funk. He claims Time wrote his jests as formidable codes of conduct, and learned thereby: "It's dangerous to jest when Time is near."

DAVID LAWRENCE

Reception for Gen. M'Arthur Also Tribute to His Country

WASHINGTON—Of all the roving ambassadors who have gone abroad, none has produced so profound and useful an impression in behalf of the United States as has Gen. Douglas MacArthur this week in the Philippines.

"A sentimental journey" is what the retired commander of America's armed forces in the Far East during World War II called his trip on the occasion of the 15th anniversary of Philippine independence. The outpouring of millions of emotion-filled citizens of the Philippines proved that the ties between the two countries are stronger than ever. This was a tribute to America as well as to its "old soldier."

* * * *

THE EXAMPLE to the world is a significant one. For it was the United States which, over a period of years, helped to educate and train a whole generation of leaders for the new republic. No better illustration of how to deal with "colonialism" could be given in the modern world. It contrasts with the failure of various European nations to train their colonies in Africa for self-government. What a travesty on fair play that the United States, which liberated first Cuba and then the Philippines, should still be chastised as "imperialistic" by certain orators and organs in Latin America!

Gen. MacArthur's trip, therefore, is a timely reminder of the record of the United States, which sacrificed the lives of many of its soldiers to secure the freedom of both the Philippines and Cuba following the Spanish-American War in 1898.

Gen. MacArthur's wise counsel and careful handling of the American occupation of Japan helped, moreover, to contribute to the setting up of a democratic government in Japan. It is too bad that his record was marred by the arbitrary recall from his entire command which he experienced at the hands of President Truman in 1951.

But, unhappily, impulsive men in the White House make mistakes which they live to regret some day, though they do not always concede that they erred.

Gen. MacArthur symbolizes today the heroism of millions of Americans who fought in two wars in the Far East—eight thousand miles from home. The wars in that region have proved that the United States will defend its interests in any quarter of the globe and that it will not follow concepts of isolationism.

Gen. MacArthur is 81 years old and doubts that he will ever see the Philippines again. But the record of an American soldier who stood up bravely under the most discouraging circumstances and steadfastly promised to rescue the people of the Philippines will live long in the memory of all peoples in the Far East. It is a record of Americanism—of courage, of kindliness toward the citizens of the Philippines, and of wisdom in administering the delicate task of a military occupation of Japan.

M'ARTHUR
Sentimental Journey

* * * *

IT IS ALWAYS easy to speak of what might have been. Had Gen. MacArthur's advice been followed by President Truman with respect to the bombing of the Red Chinese bases in 1950, the Communists might never have gotten North Korea, and a telling blow might have been struck against Communist aggression in the Far East. The saddest words of tongue or pen are indeed, "It might has been."

Reds Undermine Religious Tenets

EDITOR:

The ruling of the Supreme Court that a candidate for public office in either state or federal government need not take an oath that he believes in God should make all who do, stop for a second look at the Communists' credo! (Or is it a first look?)

This undermining of religious principles is the very core of their beliefs — and the highest governing body of our land is playing into their hands.

* * * *

DAVID Lawrence's column very aptly pointed out that this could be but the beginning. We must wake up before it is too late. We need to become informed and take an active interest in our local, state and federal governments.

As Edmund Burke stated in 1769, "There is, however, a limit at which forbearance ceases to be a virtue." (And hasn't it?) Again in 1770, he said, "When bad men combine, the good must associate; else they will fall one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle."

Knows We Print Demo Letters

EDITOR:

I read in your Public Forum column a letter a man wrote complaining that you never seem to print anything from a Democrat, especially him.

I can't speak for him, but I can say you have printed letters from Democrats.

Maybe too many Republicans write in and not enough Democrats have the time too; however, they make themselves known at the polls come voting time.

Speaking of the polls, I wonder what kind of a government the 40 per cent that don't vote want.

Economic Freedom Greatest Weapon

EDITOR:

The State Legislature recently referred for further study the Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 43, which allows home rule in local property taxation. As this is a proposition that affects the economy of all of us and to extend it further, even our freedom, may I point out that all the world's troubles are directly traceable to the management of land. In China Mao Tse-tung used agrarian reform as a wedge to gain support and then control. In Cuba we see a Latin repeat preformance. Brazil is now in the throes of a similar scheme.

How can we stop this from happening here? Only by a just system of taxation. If your freedom, ideologically, and economically, mean anything to you, assume the responsibility to educate yourself and then stand up and be counted as a free American ready to defend your country, individuality and freedom. Our greatest "secret weapon" against communism is economic freedom. If we lose this we are slaves.

Therefore, it is incumbent upon every anti-communist and American to discover a just means of taxation to allow our country its full natural growth without impairing or infringing upon the liberties of her citizens. Freedom is up to you; you inherited it but are you going to pass it on to your children or are you going to give them into Khrushchev's slavery? Slavery is never more than one generation away. Educate yourself in the principles laid down in our Declaration of Independence, how to apply them and how to defend them or all will be lost.

Cuts Due in Latin Affairs Personnel

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE and WILLIAM BROOM

WASHINGTON — White House braintrusters are being moved about like chess pieces in an effort to bring order out of the chaotic administration of our Latin American policy.

There's been a widespread feeling that President Kennedy has too many people working on the problem. Net effect of the changes will be to diminish by two men the impressive array of talent who have been stumbling all over themselves.

Appointment of Robert F. Woodward as assistant secretary of state for Latin American affairs was the necessary first move. The theory is that he will become the central clearing house for ideas about Latin America, but whether this will work out in practice remains yet to be seen.

After Woodward is settled down, Adolph A. Berle, the President's special assistant on Latin American affairs, will return to private life.

Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. will be eased over to other duties as the White House's general handy man. This will leave presidential assistant Richard N. Goodwin, 29-year-old campaign speech writer, as the only survivor of the existing special White House team still assigned to Latin American affairs. Of course, national security advisers McGeorge Bundy and Walt W. Rostow will be on tap for assistance at any time.

One of those most pleased by the changes is Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who at times during the Berle-Schlesinger-Goodwin regime had trouble figuring out what Latin American move was coming next.

TWO "OUTS" were discussing the "Ins" the other day. They were, respectively, a Republican who served in the last administration and a Democrat who failed to get a job in this one.

"Trouble with the New Frontier is that everynne reports directly to the President," said the Republican Out. "He can't possibly digest all the advice he gets."

"Trouble with you Eisenhower guys is that no one knew which President to report to—Ike, Sherm, George Humphrey or Bob Anderson," replied the Democratic Out.

Ike Official Hired After Aiding Turks

WASHINGTON — An interesting aftermath has turned up in the wake of the huge $19,600,000 loan by the Eisenhower administration to establish a steel mill in Turkey.

PEARSON

The loan, one of the biggest made by the Development Loan Fund, is partly credited to the skill and influence of ex-Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who was retained by the Turkish government for $150,000. The loan caused considerable criticism among some American allies, especially Greece, which has stood firmly beside the United States but doesn't get anywhere near as much aid as Turkey.

The American companies which benefit from the loan are the Koppers Co., of Pittsburgh, Westinghouse Electric and the Blaw-Knox Co. They joined together to form Koppers Associates to design, buy the materials and supervise the construction of the new steel mill.

The director of the Development Loan Fund who negotiated the huge $129,600,000 loan for Turkey, which in turn will benefit Koppers Associates, was Vance Brand.

And here is the interesting aftermath. After retiring from the Development Loan Fund with the exit of the Eisenhower administration, Mr. Brand went to work for Koppers.

BEHIND THE SCENES—Vice President Lyndon Johnson and Senator Yarborough, both of Texas, got on an airplane the other morning to fly to Texas to dedicate a new de-salting water plant. Both opened up the Washington Post, both read George Dixon's story on the rivalry between two Texans—the two Texans seated on the airplane. One of Dixon's statements: "Yarborough's hobby is detesting LBJ." . . . Congratulations to Sen. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia on the 25th anniversary of his bill permitting blind people to operate newsstands in government buildings. As a result, scores of blind people are now self-respecting citizens; also operate very efficient newsstands.

Languages in the News

By Charles F. Berlitz and Robert Sturrgen Davis

NOW that summer is here and the thoughts of the young are turning to romance the words "I love you" are very much in the spring breeze. Here is how they are said in various languages around the world.

French: Je t'aime—(zhuh tehm)

Spanish: Te quiero—(Teh K'YEH-roh)

Italian: Ti voglio bene — (Tee VOH-l'yoh BEH-neh)

German: Ich liebe Dich—(Ikh LEE-beh deekh)

Russian: Ya vas lioubliou —(Yah vahs LOOB-l'yoo)

Greek: S'agapo—(s'ah-gah POH)

Hebrew: Ani ohev otah—(ah-NEE oh-HEHF oh-TAHKH)

Chinese: Wa ai ni—(wah eye nee)

Japanese: Watakushi-wa-anata-wo ai-masu — (wah-tah-koo-shee wah ah-nah-tah-woh eye-mahss)

MEDICINE AND YOU

New Drug Aids in Sinus Treatment

(Prepared in collaboration with George X. Trimble, M.D., medical education director, Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.)

By BEN ZINSER

An enzyme preparation derived from beef pancreas has proved worthwhile in the treatment of sinus infection, reports Dr. Walter E. Loch of John Hopkins School of Medicine.

The drug is Dornavac. It's administered as a spray or as an irrigant.

Dr. Loch, reporting in Archives of Otolaryngology, said patients experienced an increase in nasal discharge following treatment. The discharge became thinner, and by the following day often clear. Swelling declined.

Patients were treated one to four times weekly. As a rule three to six treatments were required. Some needed only one, however.

Dornavac, which liquefies thick secretions, does not affect living tissue. No adverse side reactions were noted in its use to treat sinus infections, Dr. Loch says.

PATIENTS TAKING several blood-pressure-reducing drugs should quit the drugs for at least two weeks before undergoing surgery that requires general anesthesia.

The advice is that of Drs. Carolyn H. Ziegler and John B. Lovette of the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine.

Recent treatment with the drugs reserpine, rauwolfia or guanethidine (Ismelin) can cause a sudden, dangerous blood-pressure drop when anesthesia is administered, the doctors say in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Therefore, they say, if you're taking one of the aforementioned drugs, remind your surgeon when he schedules you for an operation. He may want you to stop taking the drug for two weeks or longer before your operation.

DIFFERENT BRANDS of DPT vaccines—those to protect against diptheria, whooping cough and tetanus—should not be interchanged in the middle of an inoculation series, says a consultant to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Reason: Each commercial laboratory prepares its three-way vaccine in a different manner. Some vaccines have different strengths, different chemical bases. Consequently, says Dr. Louis W. Sauer, DPT vaccines should not be interchanged either during the basic series of three injections nor afterward when a booster shot is given.

So if you change doctors for your child midway in a shot series, be sure the new doctor learns the vaccine brand given by the previous doctor.

ALTHOUGH THE ODOR of fresh newsprint is stimulating to the newspaperman, it cannot be tolerated by some persons, says a report in Annals of Allergy. The mere presence of freshly printed newspapers in the house is objectionable to some allergic persons, says Dr. Theron G. Randolph of Chicago.

The most troublesome exposure comes when the newspaper is first opened, he says.

The doctor's recommendations: Let someone else read the paper first. Or, place the paper in a warm oven for a few minutes, then allow to cool before reading.

THE POPULAR BELIEF that certain foods are gas producers has no scientific basis, reports a special committee set up by the American Dietetic Association and the American Medical Association.

A combination of high fat intake and consumption of vegetables may create gas to some extent, the committee reports in the AMA Journal. But classification of individual foods on the basis of gas-forming properties has very little valid basis, the committee says.

MATILDA AND JAMES HORSLEY . . . Married for Eternity

HE'S 95, SHE'S 94

Horsleys Observe Their Anniversary 75 Today

By VERA WILLIAMS

James M. Horsley and Matilda Jensen were married "for eternity" on July 9, 1886 in the Mormon Temple in Logan, Utah.

Today is their 75th wedding anniversary—the diamond anniversary—and close friends are invited to an open house between 2 and 5 p.m. in their pleasant apartment, No. 3, at 1530 Pine Ave.

"Come in. The door is open," invites the white-haired, white-goateed Horsley. He is 95; his "bride" is 94.

Residents of Long Beach since 1923, Horsley retired in 1959 after 17 years as manager of the Bishop's Storehouse, a Mormon church agency. He drove a car until two years ago.

* * * *

THE HORSLEYS say they have never had a quarrel.

"My husband never has said a cross word to me," Mrs. Horsley told The Independent, Press-Telegram photographer and reporter.

"We've never had a quarrel," he agreed. Then he teased her a little. "When anything went wrong, I took her across my knee and spanked her."

Mrs. Horsley looked scandalized.

Her husband roared with laughter. "No! No! She has never needed a spanking. She is the finest woman in the world!"

Any advice to newlyweds?

Horsley laid his hand over his wife's. "Respect each other, love each other, until death does you part."

She nodded.

* * * *

MEMBERS OF pioneer families, Horsley was born in Provo, and Mrs. Horsley in Logan, Utah. They met in 1884 in Soda Springs, Ida., where Horsley was working at his father's store and sawmill. Matilda had come from Logan to visit her sister in Soda Springs.

The courtship blossomed, sustained by letters that traveled by stagecoach from Soda Springs to Logan.

Horsley worked as a freighter in Idaho and Utah and he had an automobile agency in Soda Springs. "I had the first car in Soda Springs!" he beams. It was a Studebaker, he says.

The Horsleys have had no children. They have an adopted son, Newell J. Horsley, 4121 E. Fourth St.

Boy Niagara Survivor, 8, a Swim Fan

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI)—One year ago today Roger Woodward became the first person to survive an accidental fall over the giant Niagara cataract.

Little has changed since then for the now 8-year-old boy. He loved swimming then and he hopes to celebrate today by going swimming.

Roger, 7 at the time, came out of the fall over the 162-foot Horseshoe Falls with only bumps and scratches. He also came out of it without a fear of water.

"I wanted to go swimming today," Roger said Saturday, "but my folks thought it was too cold. So I'm hoping for a good day tomorrow."

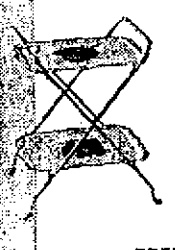

The boy was boating last July 9 on the Upper Niagara River with his sister, Deanne, now 18, and a friend. The surging current caught their tiny boat, overturning it.

Deanne was swept near the American shore and was rescued by two men. The friend drowned. Roger, wearing only a swim suit and life jacket, was swept over the falls and rescued below.

Jack's Back Causing Stir, Magazine Says

LONDON (UPI)—President Kennedy's back ailment "and the suspicious efforts by the White House to play it down, has frightened the Western world," the Swedish picture magazine Se (See) said this week.

In a story illustrated by a 30-inch high picture of Kennedy leaning on his crutches and headlined "this year's pictorial shock," the magazine said:

"The young man who is leaning against his crutches with his face tense from pain is the leader of the free world, President John F. Kennedy. Around the world people are now asking:

"Is the President seriously, maybe fatally ill?

"Were the American voters fooled by his healthy look and charm (during the election campaign)?

"Is he, in reality, as weak—physically and politically—as Eisenhower?

"The picture of Kennedy with crutches, and the suspicious efforts by the White House to play it down, has frightened the Western world. Polls in the U.S. show that Kennedy's popularity is dropping. The confidence in the 'strong, young and dynamic leader' is seriously hurt.

Statistics Challenge Eichmann's Denials

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel's prosecutors plucked out of the Nazi files Saturday simple statistics to challenge Adolf Eichmann's story of being a tiny figure in the mass slaughter of the Jews.

The statistics are taken from a chart of Eichmann's Gestapo bureau IVB4 "Jewish affairs" in a building in Berlin.

Eichmann stated all through his 14-day defense ended Friday that he was only a transportation officer assigned to ship Jews to concentration camps.

He admitted ethical guilt but denied all legal responsibility and strove to show that on many occasions he had very little to do with the extermination program under the Nazis in World War II.

Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner, resuming his cross-examination on Monday, is armed with data showing that Eichmann's bureau took up three entire floors, and spread through 13 huge rooms.

What Hausner wants to know from Eichmann is this:

If his bureau was only a little one receiving orders and passing them on to the railways for deportation trains, why was he given such a big office, fully staffed, including deputies with the ranks of majors and captains?

13 May Get New Trials as Lawyer Fraud Bared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirteen persons, including four sentenced to death, may get new trials in federal district court here because they were represented by a phoney lawyer in their trials.

At least one of the 13, however, does not want his case reopened.

Chief Judge David A. Pine summoned the baker's dozen to his chamber this week. He informed them that lawyers would be appointed, at their request, to advise them on whether to set new trials on grounds their Constitutional right to counsel was denied.

All were represented by a man known locally as "L. A. Harris" who was arrested by the FBI in San Francisco on a charge of practicing law here without a license. The FBI identified the fake lawyer as Daniel Morgan.

Among the men represented by Morgan here were Orson G. White, 20, Joseph R. Sampsl, 22, and Eddie M. Harrison, all of whom were sentenced to death on April 21 for the murder of reputed gambler George (Cider) Brown. Another Morgan client, Emanuel Pea, Jr., was sentenced to death April 14 for the slaying of his wife.

Leon J. Davis Jr. also was represented by Morgan but he immediately informed Judge Pine that he did not want a new trial.

Davis was sentenced to a year in jail for a narcotics dismeanor. He pleaded guilty to the charge after it was reduced from a felony.

Flaming Food Appetizing at Informal Dinner Fetes

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Food Editor

FLAMING FOOD! One of the most festive ways to entertain informally is also one of the most practical — the host or hostess cooking (or completing the cooking) at the table before the guests' eyes. Quick, hot, on-the-scene preparation improves the flavor of many good dishes, whets the appetite of the diners and adds drama to the occasion.

So . . . why not sit down right now and send in your best and prettiest FLAMING DISH recipe to the I. P-T Cook Book contest.

Grand prize is a deluxe Gaffers & Sattler automatic gas or electric range. Second grand prize is $100 worth of bakery goods from Helms Bakeries Co. delivered by your Helms man!

Members of 36 local women's and two men's clubs will do the preliminary judging. After they select the best recipes submitted in the 38 classifications, the clubs will then send their choices to a committee of five graduate home economists who will select the winner and the second and third place recipes in each.

* * * *

ALL RECIPES must be mailed to Mildred Flanary, Cook Book Contest Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, July 23. Hundreds of the outstanding recipes will appear in a special cookbook supplement to The Sunday Independent, Press-Telegram which will be published Sept. 3.

Under the contest rules all persons participating must use only one side of the paper to type, print or write legibly their recipes.

They must designate in which classification they are entering each recipe.

All ingredients must be listed completely with accurate measurements.

They must include their name, address and telephone number on each recipe.

* * * *

NAMES OF the persons submitting the recipes will be published with the recipes and none of the entries will be returned, all becoming the property of The Independent, Press-Telegram when submitted. In case the same recipe is submitted by more than one person, the one bearing the earliest postmark will be the only one considered.

In the judging, simplicity will count. Availability of ingredients against difficulty of purchasing some ingredients will be another factor. Other points the judges will consider include: length of preparation, cost, involvement in preparation, uniqueness.

* * * *

HERE ARE the classifications which may be entered:

1. Appetizers canapes, hors d'oeuvres.
2. Barbecue dishes.
3. Beverages (hot or cold).
4. Cakes.
5. Candy & nuts.

Paratroop Chaplain Jumps With Parishioners

FT. CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)—After services are over, the Rev. Thomas Waldie straps on a parachute and joins his parishioners.

They may be jumping as part of a regular Army exercise, or for fun, Father Waldie does both; he believes in leadership by example.

"To be an effective chaplain, you have to do what the men do," says the Roman Catholic priest, a lieutenant colonel with 101st Airborne Division.

He volunteered for the airborne eight years ago at the age of 42, after service in two wars that took him to China and Korea. Both earned him decorations, including the Silver Star, Bronze Star and the Legion of Merit.

Like most combat veterans, he is reluctant to speak of his experiences, but his piercing blue eyes light up when the conversation turns to jumping.

* * * *

"IT'S FASCINATING, exhilarating and easy," he explains in a soft voice that carries no trace of his native New York City.

Prayer led him into the priesthood along with two of his six brothers. One is a missionary in Peru; the other, the Rev. George Waldie, is assistant pastor at St. Pius Church, Louisville.

After graduation from Fordham University, he joined the Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament. In April, 1943, he went into the Air Force as a chaplain.

"I got into China toward the end of the war, spent six months in Shanghai and Peiking," Father Waldie said.

During that time, he traveled with an Allied mission that was trying to work out a peace treaty between the Chinese Communists and the Nationalist government of Chang Kai-shek.

The Korean war brought him back into uniform as a member of the 5th Regimental Combat Team which, he says, "is one of the finest in the world."

* * * *

THE ROUGH COMBAT soldiers felt the same way about their chaplain.

They remember seeing him dart from foxhole to foxhole, chatting, joking and talking seriously to those who needed his help.

They remember seeing him dig for four hours into an almost impossible Korean mountainside to set up a temporary altar.

And they remember July 1951 and July 1952, when Father Waldie won the Silver Star and Bronze Star for rescuing badly wounded men under a heavy gunfire of the Communists.

After two years, Father Waldie came home.

"A friend got me interested in jumping, so I volunteered for the paratroopers."

He plans to stay with them "as long as my parachute keeps opening."

Price Hike on Coffee Forecast

By BILL BROOM
I. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The administration's decision to help Latin America stabilize world coffee prices will make a cup of coffee cost more—but not much more—officials said Saturday.

They cautioned housewives against worrying that prices may jump to $1 or more a pound. But they conceded that if coffee imports are controlled and prices set internationally, coffee would cost a little more than it now does at the grocery store.

* * * *

SINCE SEVERAL U. S. missions have returned from Latin American survey trips, the Kennedy administration has become seriously concerned about improving relations with those countries. Approximately 14 countries there depend either wholly or in part on coffee imports for American dollars.

American proposals have been under study for the past three months. They will be presented at next month's Inter-American Economic Conference in Montevideo, Uruguay, called at the request of President Kennedy to set up machinery for the alliance for progress program.

The basic problem is the continuing overproduction of coffee. At the moment, the world is 40 million 132-pound bags. The administration is prepared to demand production curbs in return for entering into a price stabilization agreement as the world's largest consuming nation.

* * * *

TO STOP THE overproduction and resulting price decreases, U. S. officials are considering several steps.

A new international coffee agreement between producing and consuming countries to guarantee stable prices over a period of years.

Producing countries would agree to enforce production controls according to assigned quotas so that higher prices would not result in more production.

An international organization to buy buffer stocks which would be stored in big production years and sold when production drops thereby guaranteeing a stable market.

Some assurance whereby Latin American countries would agree to diversify their agriculture in return for the American assistance.

Administration officials agree that the United States would have to pay a major share of the cost of buffer stocks. But the tab would be picked up by the taxpayer, not by the housewife when she buys a pound of coffee at the store.

Submitted to the judges were 600 original prints. Out of the 259 were selected and judged by two panels of experts under various classifications.

The Art Directors Award, presented by Ted Poyser, immediate past president of the Los Angeles Art Directors Club, went to Ricard Lopez of Fresno for his print, "A Study in Blue."

Receiving the award for the "Best Print in the Whole Show" was J. Gordon Maughn of Pasadena.

IN OTHER classifications six trophies were awarded by a professional photographers panel.

Recipients of these were: Dennis Hodgson of San Francisco, and Russ Clift of Bellingham, Wash., for the best portrait; Mickey Prim of Tuscon, Ariz., and Dennis Hodgson for the best commercial entry submitted, and Herb Radin of El Segundo and J. Gordon Maughn for the best industrial print entered.

Horrifying Spill Mars Rich Derby

Eddie Burns is Thrown From Mr. America

Pete Moreno Topples Off Ronnie's Ace

4-&-Twenty by 4; Destroy Mr. America

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

A horrifying two-horse spill marred the 21st running of the Hollywood Derby Saturday as favored Four-and-Twenty galloped to a four-length victory in the $122,900 three-year-old classic.

The accident was one of the most dramatic that ever occured on any race track—and almost the most tragic. It quieted the roar of 45,218 fans into a murmur as the winning horse crossed the finish line.

It took place on the stretch curve and involved Mr. America and Ronnie's Ace—and jockeys Eddie Burns and Pete Moreno.

Mr. America shattered his right foreleg and had to be destroyed. Ronnie's Ace had the wind knocked out of him and lay still on the track a full minute.

Burns suffered a severe back wrench and was taken to Centinela Hospital. Moreno incurred bruises and suffered shock, but was permitted to go home.

Only split-second reactions by the two jockeys—and a moment's cloak of protection from Someone above—saved both Burns and Moreno from instant death.

Mr. America was racing alongside We're Hoping—and apparently making a big move to overtake pacesetting Four-and-Twenty and Bushel-N-Peck—when tragedy struck!

In a twinkling of the eye, Mr. America's leg snapped and the huge colt broke stride and staggered. Unable to control his horse, Burns instantly jumped off feet first like a parachutist fleeing a flaming plane.

Miraculous Escape for Both Riders

Mr. America then hobbled toward the rail—and right in the path of the onrushing Ronnie's Ace.

Ronnie's Ace smashed into Mr. America, then plowed into the rail. At the moment of impact with Mr. America, Moreno was thrown over his mount's head like a snowflake caught in the wind.

Pete rolled with the fall and whirled over, over and over until he miraculously bounced under the rail and out of danger.

Burns landed on his feet and snapped back as he fell forward. Patrol movies later proved that Lady Luck indeed was with Burns, for the jockey's neck and back seemed to snap in opposite directions at the same instant.

Burns remained on the ground as the rest of the field thundered past him, while Moreno shakily got to his feet in the infield.

Mr. America hobbled crazily to the outside rail and remained standing on three legs until the track ambulance reached him. Ronnie's Ace, meanwhile, crashed into the inside rail with his belly. Both his forelegs and head were dangling over the rail and when the colt finally extricated himself, he laid motionless on the track completely out of breath.

All this time, Four-and-Twenty continued romping to his one-sided victory.

Longden Had It in Bag All the Way

Johnny Longden took his colt to the front immediately after the gate opened and whizzed to a wire-to-wire triumph. We're Hoping, a 31-1 shot, wound up second, five lengths ahead of the Derby's only filly, Bushel-N-Peck (8-1). Ballpoint (35-1) was fourth.

Four-and-Twenty paid $4.60 straight.

The touted Eastern invaders, Guadalcanal and Sherluck, never were in contention. Guadalcanal finished sixth, Sherluck eighth in the 10-horse field.

We're Hoping, Ballpoint and Sherluck were the only other horses bothered by the accident. We're Hoping was turned sideways when Mr. America stumbled and hit him in the rear . . . Ballpoint came within inches of smashing into the injured colt and only a magnificent flick of the reins by Ralph Neves prevented further tragedy . . . Sherluck threaded a needle between Mr. America and his fallen jockey and only another sensational piloting job by Tommy Barrow saved yet another colt's plunge.

Longden divided praise for his winning colt with sincere sorrow over the accident, saying "there isn't a three-year-old in the country that could beat him the way he is now," then "I was real sorry there was all that trouble behind me—I know Mr. America's a nice colt and it takes the edge off the race that he got hurt."

Good Lord Was With Me . . . Burns

"I'm real sick inside," cried Burns. "I was just making my move outside Harmatz (astride We're Hoping) when Mr. America's leg snapped. Me and Pete were lucky, I guess, but this big colt was sure a good one and I hate to see him go out this way."

"It happened so fast, I couldn't do anything," commented Moreno. "I just flew into the air and curled up and started rolling when I hit the ground. I thought I hit the rail post on the way down, but I guess not. When Mr. America cracked into us, we had not place to go but the rail. I guess the good Lord was with me today."

Barrow said his Belmont Stakes winner, Sherluck, refused to extend himself, while Manuel Ycaza claimed Guadalcanal "just couldn't get hold of the track."

Four-and-Twenty proved himself one of the nation's truly outstanding three-year-olds Saturday at Hollywood Park . . . but the sound of "Taps" sadly still was echoing for Mr. America as dusk settled over the Inglewood track.

WE'RE HOPING moved up strongly between horses after reaching backstretch, made a bold bid entering stretch, held on with good courage. BUSHEL-N-PECK raced closest to winner in early stages, made a fast move to challenge midway of backstretch then gave way in stretch. BALLPOINT made up some ground in last quarter. SONOFAGUN was never in serious contention. GUADALCANAL trailed field to last quarter, then made up some ground. GAY LANDING was forced to take up to avoid a spill on far turn. SHERLUCK lacked speed enough to threaten leaders, was wide on far turn. RONNIE'S ACE fell when he ran into the falling MR. AMERICA. The latter fell while making a strong move on far turn. No scratches.

MOUND LIFT FROM PODRES

Dodgers Erupt, Bomb Reds, 10-1

By GEORGE LEDERER

Thanks to a strong pitching performance by Johnny Podres and some robust hitting by the entire club, the Dodgers are still in the league today.

A seven-hit, 10-1 victory by Podres replaced one half of the bottom that had fallen out Friday night when the Dodgers dropped a double-header to the league leading Cincinnati Reds.

Podres closed the gap between first and second place to four games with his first route-going effort since May 10. His ninth victory of the year came after seven successive incomplete starts and convinced the ladies night audience of 49,797 that the Dodgers are very much back in the picture.

* * * *

A VICTORY in the closing game of the series this afternoon would put the Dodgers back where they started, three games out. Manager Walter Alston is undecided, however, as to whom he will trust with the important pitching assignment.

Alston narrowed his choice between Sandy Koufax (11-5) and Roger Craig (3-4). Joey Jay (11-4) is a definite starter for the Reds.

Wally Moon, Ron Fairly and John Roseboro did most of the damage Saturday as the Dodgers gave Podres a breather with a 14-hit display. Moon, now 10-for-13 in the series, had four successive singles. Fairly and Roseboro each drove in three runs as Cincy's winning streak ended at eight.

The Dodgers had a 2-0 lead Saturday before Maloney could retire the first batter.

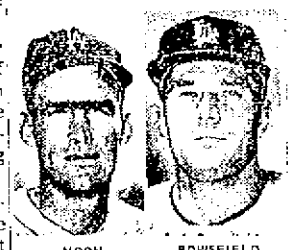

Maury Wills led off with a single and Jim Gilliam walked. Fairly's single delivered the first run and Moon's single scored Gilliam from third. The inning ended abruptly, however, when Tommy Davis popped up and Fairly was doubled off second on Norm Larker's fly to left.

* * * *

ANOTHER left field assist by Wally Post took the Dodgers out of a second inning scoring chance. Charlie Neal singled with one down, but was doubled at first when

Angels Stopped, Tackle Tigers Twice

By ROSS NEWHAN
L.P-T Staff Writer

DETROIT — The weight of the Angeles' first defeat after seven straight victories weighed heavy on the shoulders of manager Bill Rigney.

The Seraphs had just lost a tough 3-2 decision to the Tigers Saturday afternoon and the Angeles' clubhouse was as quiet as Pine Ave. on Sunday evening. The fact that it was only the Seraphs' second defeat in their last 12 games and only the seventh in their last 21 was of little consolation.

With head bowed Rigney shuffled back and forth through the clubhouse, then slumped dejectedly on a stool.

"Oh, I'm not second-guessing myself for leaving the pitcher in (Ted Bowsfield in the seventh), but I sure should have gone for the big inning in the ninth instead of having Yost (Eddie) bunt (which he failed to do)."

However, press box observers agreed that the weight of defeat should have been placed on the shoulders of first base umpire Frank Umont.

"I thought I was going blind when he called him safe," said Rigney. "I thought we had him by a half-mile," agreed Steve Bilko.

The play in question occurred in the seventh inning with the Angeles leading, 2-1.

Bowsfield had been pitching brilliantly. He had held the Tigers hitless until Al Kaline opened the fourth with a double and one out later Norm Cash singled to tie the score 1-1.

Following Cash's single—which was his 100th hit and

HAIL MOFFITT'S CLASSIC WIN

Finest Hour for Long Beach Star

Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach and Karen Hantze of Chula Vista, a pair of unseeded California girls, pulled off the upset of the diamond jubilee tennis championships by winning the doubles crown Saturday at Wimbledon, England.

The 17-year-old Miss Moffitt and 18-year-old Miss Hantze gave the United States its only major title. They became the youngest winning women's doubles champions in many years by beating the third-seeded Australians, Margaret Smith and Jan Lehane, 6-3, 6-4.

Wimbledon does not keep a record of ages but no one could remember a younger pair winning since World War I.

"It was just great," Miss Moffitt chortled as she came off center court. "Everything went right."

The Americans broke through Miss Smith in the second game of the first set and were on top all the way. Billie Jean carried a slightly larger load of the attack with placements from the net. They concentrated on Miss Lehane whose two-handed backhand seemed too slow for the Americans' swift volleying.

WHEN THE MATCH ENDED WITH Miss Lehane netting a pickup, Billie Jean threw a ball into the air and shouted "wheel" in triumph.

Miss Moffitt's folks and friends in Long Beach greeted the news with the same reaction.

Billie Jean's dad, Bill Moffitt, first heard the outcome when a neighbor called. "I'd been out fighting a fire most of the night and was napping when the phone rang. It couldn't have been a more welcome call."

Mrs. Moffitt said she felt Billie Jean and Karen would win all along. The Moffitts reside at 528 W. 36th St.

Clyde Walker, Billie Jean's long-time coach, was thrilled when he heard the results from his hospital bed

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH

The Most Valuable Redleg

On a club that sports such stars as Vada Pinson, Frank Robinson and Joey Jay, you might think I've flipped more than usual if I suggested the Cincinnati Reds' most valuable member was a gent named Otis Douglas.

A fantastic person, Douglas officially is listed as the red-hot Reds' physical conditioner.

"Otis is much more than that," enthused a Cincinnati baseball writer. "Otis is the greatest cheerleader in baseball. He's put more zip into the Reds than a barrel of pep pills. You might say he personally has escorted this surprising baseball club into first place."

OTIS DOUGLAS
In Grid Heyday

Considering the Reds were figured no higher than a sixth-place team in most pre-season calculations, Mr. Douglas has to be considered a cross between Svengali and Mandrake the Magician.

The writer's introduction to Otis Douglas came just before Friday's twi-night doubleheader in the Coliseum. After manager Fred Hutchinson had regalled the writers with snappy tales of his wondrous Reds—and left them with little information about the strange success formula he had concocted thus far—he straggled from the dugout to the Coliseum's baking pits to view batting practice . . . with the other writers paddling behind him like so many sheep.

Not me. It was too lazy and it was too hot.

Then, this grey-haired gent in his fifties bounced into the dugout, chirping:

"Man, this weather is great. Really gets a fellow into shape."

Who's this character, I wondered, someone who jumped the fence at Norwalk State Hospital? Noticing the number "23" on his uniform, I stole a quick glance at my program and was certain my first hunch was correct.

No number "23" was listed in the program.

GOING ALONG with the nonsense (well, it was 100 degrees at the batting cage, so why not?), I asked:

"What's keeping this ball club in first place? It doesn't look like you people have changed much from the usual run of second-division teams from Cincinnati."

"You're dead wrong, boy," he barked. "This team's got spirit and guts. That's the difference. Those boys hatting out there are no more afraid of these big, tough Dodgers than I'd be of stamping out an ant.

"Look at old gaffers like Freese and Post. They're running around like they were bonus kids. And that Pinson's the greatest outfielder in baseball. He's so charged up now that he almost climbed into the bay at San Francisco this week to make two of the greatest catches I've ever seen.

"Robinson and Coleman are hitting like fiends. Hunt, Jay, Purkey, Maloney and O'Toole are pitching dervishes. And there's not a tougher bullpen than Brosnan and Henry.

"That's what's keeping Cincinnati in first place."

He may be a kook, I thought, but this old guy gives out more information than F. Hutchinson.

AFTER CASUALLY INQUIRING of a Cincinnati writer the identity of number "23," I was in for a rude shock when I learned the background of Otis Douglas. Now listen:

He was a former player-trainer for the Philadelphia Eagles and was line coach for the Baltimore Colts and Chicago Cardinals.

He was head football coach at Arkansas, Villanova and Akron U.

He coached the Calgary team in the Canadian League the past four seasons.

He was head talent scout for Norm Van Brocklin's Minnesota Vikings during the past winter.

He is a licensed pilot for both single and multi-engine aircraft.

He has earned Bachelor of Science, Master of Arts and Doctor of Education degrees.

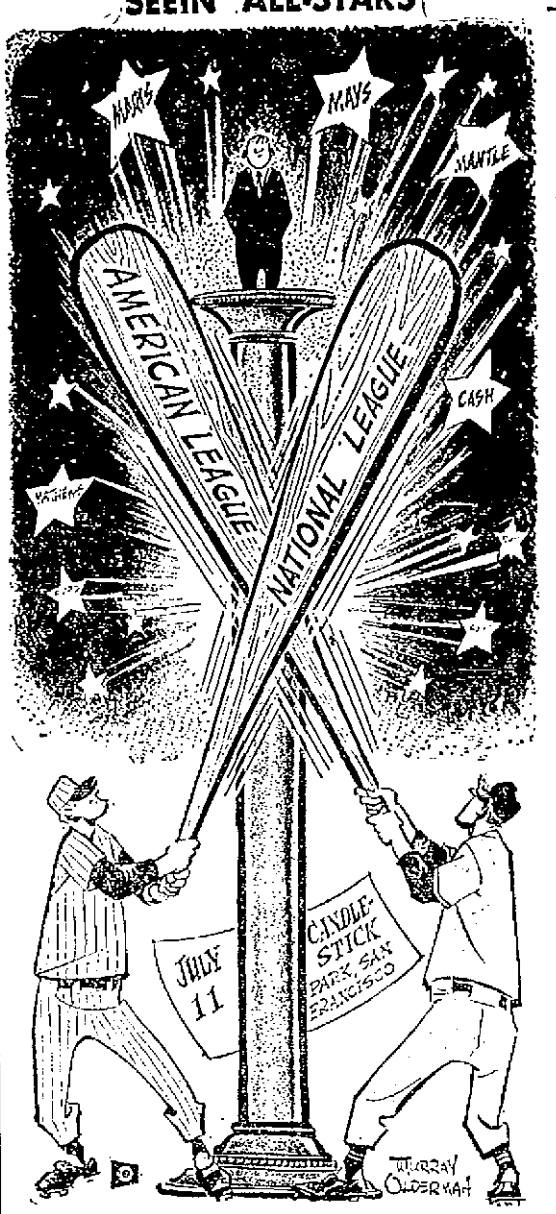

Who escaped from Norwalk? Me, not Otis.

THOROUGHLY IMPRESSED, I hustled back to the Reds' dugout and asked the whereabouts of number "23," er—Mr. Douglas.

"Leave my man alone, he's resting," snapped the boss, Hutchinson. "He got us into first place and I got to keep him in shape for the doubleheader."

You better believe it . . . or haven't you noticed who won both ends of that doubleheader?

BASEBALL CLASSIC ON TV TUESDAY

BY HAL WOOD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Baseball's travelling sideshow, the All-Star game, comes to San Francisco for the first time on Tuesday—and the fans by the Golden Gate are agog at the prospect of seeing American Leaguers in action for the first time.

The game has been a sell-out for two weeks and the gross for the players' pension fund will run around $300,000. Ticket scalpers are getting as high as $25 a copy for $8 ducats—and more for choice seats.

National League competition here is old hat now after three and one-half seasons. But very few of the regional fans have seen the likes of Norm Cash and Rocky Colavito of the Tigers; Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris of the Yankees and Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles in action.

* * * *

TO THE FAN on the street, they are just names he reads about—and are not living heroes like Willie Mays, Eddie Mathews or Orlando Cepeda.

The consensus is that they'll find out before the game is over that the American League has super-men in the lineup, too.

Manager Freddie Hutchinson of the league-leading Cincinnati Reds, avers that the American Leaguers will present a tough front.

"But we'll be able to cope with them," says Freddie. "Our pitchers are a strange breed. They rise to the heights.

"And I can't wait to see those American Leaguers chasing high flies in this park for the first time. They'll be running around in circles until they get dizzy."

Candlestick Park, home of the extravaganza, has earned a reputation as the toughest park in the majors in which to field fly balls. In fact, many players claim baseball shouldn't be played in the park at all. It should be left for the sea-gulls who glide gracefully above it—riding the up and down-drafts that give the athletes such headaches.

The game will be televised nationally and regionally. It is the first live local telecast from Candlestick Park, which opened for business at the start of the 1960 campaign.

There has been no indication from manager Danny Murtaugh of the Nationals or manager Paul Richards of the Americans on pitching rotation.

But it is possible that the left-handers on the mound will see more action than the right-handers. The prevailing wind carries to right field and many of the home run shots clear the barrier with ease.

4 Homers, Arroyo Assist Ford in Notching 16th Win

NEW YORK (UPI)—Whitey Ford, backed by a four-homer barrage and given late-inning relief by Luis Arroyo, scored his 16th victory of the season Saturday when the league-leading New York Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox, 8-5.

Johnny Blanchard, Mickey Mantle, Tony Kubek, and Bill Skowron all blasted home runs to lead the Yankees' 13-hit attack against four Boston pitchers. Mantle's blast in the fifth inning was his 29th of the year, a total second in the majors only to teammate Roger Maris' 32.

Arroyo was summoned from the bullpen with two men on base and none out in the seventh inning. The Red Sox scored two runs on Chuck Schilling's double, a walk and a force out before Arroyo retired the side. The Puerto Rican left-hander struck out six batters, including five of the six he faced in the last two innings.

THE RED SOX jumped on Ford for a 3-0 lead in the first inning when Jackie Jensen hit a three-run homer. However, the Yankees knocked out Boston starter Ike Delock and also reliever Wilbur Wood with a five-run rally in the third.

Indians Nip Chisox Behind Mudcat, 3-2

CLEVELAND, (AP)—Cleveland beat the Chicago White Sox, 3-2, Saturday as Jim (Mudcat) Grant's shutout bid was spoiled by Al Smith's two-run homer in the ninth inning.

Grant, who hadn't won since June 7, had a five-hitter going until Smith's blast. It was Smith's 19th round-tripper of the year. Frank Funk came on to relieve Grant in the ninth—retiring two batters—to preserve Grant's eighth victory against two losses.

The Indians jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Jim Piersall walked and scored on Tito Francona's triple. Bubba Phillips then doubled—the first of three hits for him—to bring in Francona.

Vic Power's fourth home run of the year, in the second inning, made it 3-0.

Cardinals Knock Skidding Giants Down to Fourth, 9-7

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ken Boyer and Charley James knocked in four runs apiece for the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday, overcoming a 5-0 San Francisco lead, and giving the Redbirds a 9-7 victory.

It was the fading Giants' fifth straight loss, their longest losing streak of the season. The loss dropped them to fourth place.

The Cards scored their last two runs in the eighth off loser Ed Fisher (0-2), the Giants' third pitcher. Those runs scored on Boyer's third hit, James' double, and Joe Cunningham's pinch single.

Righthander Larry Jackson gave up 11 hits but got stronger and went the distance. He retired the final 10 Giants in order. Jackson's record now is 4-8.

* * * *

THE GIANTS, who had lost four straight games by identical scores of 3-2, gave rookie southpaw Dick LaMay a 5-0 lead in three innings.

Joe Amalfitano led off the Giants' first with a walk, and scored on Harvey Kuenn's double.

Kuenn moved to third on Mattie Alou's single and tallied when Willie Mays grounded into a double play.

Nats Maintain Home Mastery Over Twins

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Senators scored three runs in the eighth inning Saturday to maintain their home park mastery over the Minnesota Twins, 3-2.

It marked the fifth time in as many tries by the Twins to win in the park they used to call home.

Jack Kralick, the Twins' winningest pitcher, was coasting along with a 2-0 lead when the roof caved in in the eighth.

Chuck Cottier doubled down the left field line. In quick succession pinch-hitter Harry Bright was thrown out, Danny O'Conneli hit his first triple of the year, and Jim Kaat replaced Kralick on the mound.

Bill Klaus greeted the newcomer with a run-scoring single. Gene Woodling forced Klaus, but Gene Green singled to center and Ray Moore came in to replace Kaat.

Bucs Nudge Braves on Logan's Pinch Hit

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Scrappy Johnny Logan came home for the first time since being traded nearly a month ago and hit a pinch-hit single in the sixth inning that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday.

Little Bobby Shantz saved Joe Gibbon's seventh victory with four innings of shutout pitching, giving up only two singles. Gibbon, who has lost four, had allowed only three hits before being lifted for Logan in the sixth.

Roberto Clemente, the National League's second best hitter before the game, got four singles for a perfect day.

Hawks, San Pedro Clash Tonight in Showdown Tilt

Long Beach Nitehawks travel to San Pedro tonight where they bump heads with Mary Star of the Sea in a Western Softball Congress game which could very well decide the league championship. Game time is 8:15 at Daniels Field.

The Stars boast a mark of 11-1 in league play, having lost only to the Hawks 2-1 in 10 innings earlier this season. The Hawks are 13-3 on the season.

Jack Randall, who seems to have shaken his leg injury, will get the starting nod for the Hawks. George Pearson, the one-man mound staff for Mary Star, will start for Doug Ballard's harbor club.

Daniels Field is located at 13th and B Street.

Santo Sparks Cubs 6-4 Win

CHICAGO (UPI)—Chicago third baseman Ron Santo drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and a single in a 6-4 come-from-behind Cubs victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

The Cubs spotted the last place Phillies two runs, tied it up in the fourth inning, and then took the lead for good in a four-run fifth inning.

Cub reliefer Barney Schultz took over for starter Jack Curtis in the sixth inning after the Phils had scored a pair of runs on doubles by Pancho Herrera, Don Demeter and Ken Walters. He retired the side and went on to pitch three additional innings of no-hit ball to give Curtis his sixth win in eight decisions and fourth straight victory.

Pappas Flips 2-Hitter, 7-2

BALTIMORE, (UPI) — Milt Pappas pitched a two-hitter and won his fifth consecutive game when the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Kansas City Athletics for the seventh straight time, 7-2, Saturday night.

The win, Pappas' sixth against three losses, was the 15th for the surging Orioles in the last 19 games and kept them in a third place tie with Cleveland. It was the fourth loss in a row and 13th in the last 15 games for the A's.

Lew Krausse, the A's 18-year-old bonus baby, went the first five innings and lost his fourth straight verdict after breaking in with a sensational three-hit shutout over Los Angeles.

Barber, 185 Pros Set for Big L.B. Tourney

By JERRY WYNN

Jerry Barber, golf's little giant, will head a field of 185 in the $5,000 Southern California Professional Match Tournament at Recreation Park Wednesday through Sunday.

Joining Barber on the first tee for Wednesday's 18-hole medal qualifying round will be such talented shotmakers as Tommy Jacobs, Bud Holscher, Jimmy Clark, Mac Hunter, Mike Austin, Zell Eaton, Jimmy Thompson, Dick Lundahl, Jimmy Hines, Smiley Quick, Ralph Evans and Howard Capps.

The 128 qualifiers will advance into match play Thursday with a schedule of two rounds a day leading into Sunday's 36-hole finals for the $1,000 winner's purse.

Maintaining the popular match play format, the tournament is a substitute for the old Southern California PGA Championship, which was cancelled this year beacause of a racial-restrictive clause in the National PGA Constitution.

BARBER

The Southern California PGA section, which had opposed the clause, then adopted the new tournament which is open to all pros instead of only SCPGA members. The action brought this response of praise from State Attorney General Stanley Mosk:

"We are greatly pleased that you have opened your tournament to all qualifying professional golfers in Southern California. It is a fine recognition of the right of athletes to compete solely on the basis of ability. Your section's cooperation from the beginning has been a great help to us in this matter."

Although Charlie Sifford, the outstanding Negro golfer, now is on the PGA tour which this week engages in the $30,000 Canadian Open, three Negro pros are entered here. They are Bill Spiller, Jimmy DeVe and Willie Jefferson. Also entered is Japanese pro George Koyama.

The tournament will mark the pro-debut of two well-known former amateur stars . . . Pinky Stevenson, who needs no introduction, and Dick Foote of Santa Ana, a past semifinalist in the National Amateur.

Practically all Long Beach area pros are in the lineup including SC-PGA Seniors champion Johnny Jurus of the Pioneer Range, and Monty Blodgett, Lakewood's sharp-shooting assistant pro.

Missing will be two familiar faces. Four-time SC-PGA champ Eric Monti is unable to compete, and Paul Runyan is in England for the World Senior Championship.

TICKET DEADLINE

Today is the deadline for purchasing $1 season's tickets for the Southern California Professional Match Play Tournament. Starting Monday, the price is $2. Daily tickets will cost $1. Tickets are available at all golf shops.

EDDIE ALVARADO . . . Faces Tough Foe

Predict Torrid Battle in First Aud Ring Card

By FRANK HARVEY

Francisco Sanchez, highly-rated Mexican bantamweight, will be shooting for his fourth straight knockout win north of the border when he faces tough Eddie Alvarado in the 10-round main event at Municipal Auditorium Wednesday night.

In three U.S. starts, all in Texas, Sanchez scored first round knockouts over Chico Rameriz and Tony Rivera at Brownsville and disposed of Eddie Douglas in four rounds at Houston.

However, he is taking on a tough character in Alvarado. Eddie has never been knocked off his feet, and he, too, can punch.

ACCORDING TO MATCHMAKER Earl Beebe, who has watched both fighters in action several times, the pair figure to wage quite a brawl.

Light heavyweights Lee Turner and Jimmy Anderson collide in the six-round semi-windup. It is a rematch in which Turner hopes to avenge an earlier defeat at the hands of Anderson.

Four rounders show Phil Barba vs. Raul Munoz, lightweights; Pelon Chasco vs. Kid Velvet, featherweights, and Adrian Iberra vs. Andy Montoya, lightweights.

Alvarado, Sanchez, and several other fighters appearing on the card will drill at the gymnasium in Morgan Hall this afternoon. Other fighters also scheduled to workout today include Danny Valdez, Don Johnson and Johnny Newman. Workouts start at 1 p.m.

Angels' Success Fine, But AL Weak Loop

I haven't as yet run across anyone who wasn't genuinely rooting for the Angels. But by the same token, we have found few who aren't surprised at their good showing lately. Amazed may be an even better way of putting it.

Here's a club that was figured to win less than 50 of 162 games while finishing dead last. Yet it has passed the halfway point with 34 victories: has boosted its potential number of wins to around 60 or more, and currently eighth, are now conceded to have an excellent chance by scouts to finish as high as seventh . . . possibly even sixth.

DAVE LEWIS

A good sign has been the fact that the club rarely has been knocked out of a ball game so far. It has been in the running right up to the last out . . . even when losing. And earlier they were losing in in the late innings when they faded, but now it's the other way around. They're coming on.

No great amount of optimism should be generated for the Angels at this point . . . but they nevertheless appear certain to do much better than anyone anticipated. And they are generally respected by rivals when it had been figured they would be mere pushovers.

The big question, of course, is how they have been able to win so consistently of late with rejects, castoffs and youngsters up from the minors. In order to get a true picture, we checked with a group of scouts who have been following the club.

THE ANGELS, THEY QUICKLY point out, are no longer the rag-tag outfit they were at the beginning, which, of course, is plain to see. They have added several players who have tightened up the defense considerably, given them more clutch hitting and some "bench."

While every new man has given the team a big lift, not a single player obtained from rivals in the draft for $75,000 and subsequently traded or waived have done anything for their new clubs.

What does the Angels' recent surge prove? Well, for one thing, scouts point out, it shows what they've been saying for some time . . . that the American League is greatly over-rated. Several teams are little more than Triple-A clubs.

As one points out, if you attend the games regularly at Wrigley Field and the Coliseum and see all of the other clubs come through, you would readily see that the National League is much stronger from top to bottom. Even the last-place Phillies would make some noise in the junior circuit.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE has been deteriorating for some time and is probably at its lowest ebb this season than since the war years in the early 1940's.

The loop's "reputation" has been based solely on the Yankees. It has been taken for granted the loop was still strong because of New York's success in the World Series. But while still a fine club, even the Yankees have tailed off somewhat in recent seasons.

If you check the records, the only clubs that beat out the Yanks in the past 12 years—Cleveland in '54 and the White Sox in '59—were beaten in the World Series. And the Yanks have dropped three of the five series in which they participated.

The Yanks, of course, are still a solid club that would still be a winner in the National League, too. It is considered the only real ball club in the American at present. Detroit is rated a "one-shot club" and are considered to be playing "15 feet over their head," according to the scouts.

One of these scouts picked the Angels to finish sixth during spring training even before their recent deals which improved the club. He did so because of the condition of the rest of the league.

MANY OBSERVERS contend that the league was weakened by the draft through which the Angels and Washington were stocked. But this isn't true. Not a single club was hurt . . . not even in their second-line corps.

The Angels are in the position this year of being able to take a chance on playing talent. And the minor leaguers, the rejects and castoffs are responding with a new lease on life.

Scouts point out that there are a lot of kids playing in the minors today who could help most of the major clubs, but there is a great reluctance among managers to take a chance on them. If the scouts had their way, these kids would be moved up. In most cases, they know more about talent than the pilots themselves and should have more say. But more about this early this week.

Anyway, after talking with these scouts, my hopes for the Angels have risen several notches.

Cupit's 68 Keeps Lead at St. Paul

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Buster Cupit, part-time tournament player from Ft. Smith, Ark., fired a four-under-par 68 Saturday to hold the 54-hole lead in the St. Paul Open with 201, 13 under par.

Cupit, making his sixth tournament start of 1961, played precision golf to take a two-stroke lead over young Dave Hill.

The leader had four birdies and fourteen pars for his 35-33—68. He birdied the 3rd, 11th and 12th holes with three foot putts and hit the 462-yard par five 18th with his second shot, two-putting for an easy birdie.

HILL, WHO bolted among the leaders Friday with a 65, came back with a 68 Saturday also for the second spot. He needed a four-under-par 32 on the back nine to avoid sliding into a tie with two other young pros, Johnny Pott and Tommy Aaron, who were knotted at 204.

Mac Main, an unheralded circuit sophomore, fired a 64, the best round of the tournament, to jump from far back in the field.

'DRIVING WON FOR ME'---RICHARDSON

State King Eyes U.S. Amateur

By JERRY WYNN

What does a golfer do after 10 straight arduous rounds of golf to win the California Amateur Championship?

Why, naturally, he goes out to play more golf.

Thus did John Richardson Tuesday after returning home to Long Beach from Pebble Beach Monday evening. He took his son, Kemp, 15, out to Skylinks for a few holes.

"I beat you, dad," said son.

"You haven't seen the day you can beat me," answered dad.

While Richardson laughs at being classified a celebrity, there's been plenty of excitement at 6571 Rosebay Ave, since John's momentous victory in the finals of the 50th annual State classic last Sunday.

"The phone hasn't stopped ringing," says his blonde wife, Wina. "Everyone's been so nice, and called to congratulate John."

Friday night, the Richardsons were guests of honor at a press gathering at the Apple Valley Steak House.

In reviewing his long week of play at Pebble Beach, Long Beach's first State champion called the 16th hole of his fifth round match against Lloyd Rossi of Diablo as the turning point that led to the championship.

"I was 2 down, and he had a one-foot putt for his par," said Richardson. "Then I chipped into the hole for a birdie."

He won the match on the 20th hole.

In all his rounds, the 40-year-old petroleum engineer never went over par on the 16th, 17th and 18th holes, three of the mightiest at Pebble Beach. He won the 17th, a 212-yard par three, every time.

"Most players use a 4-wood off the 17th tee," said Richardson, "but I don't carry that club. I used a 2-iron, and in the finals, a 1-iron."

Pros will tell you there are no more difficult clubs.

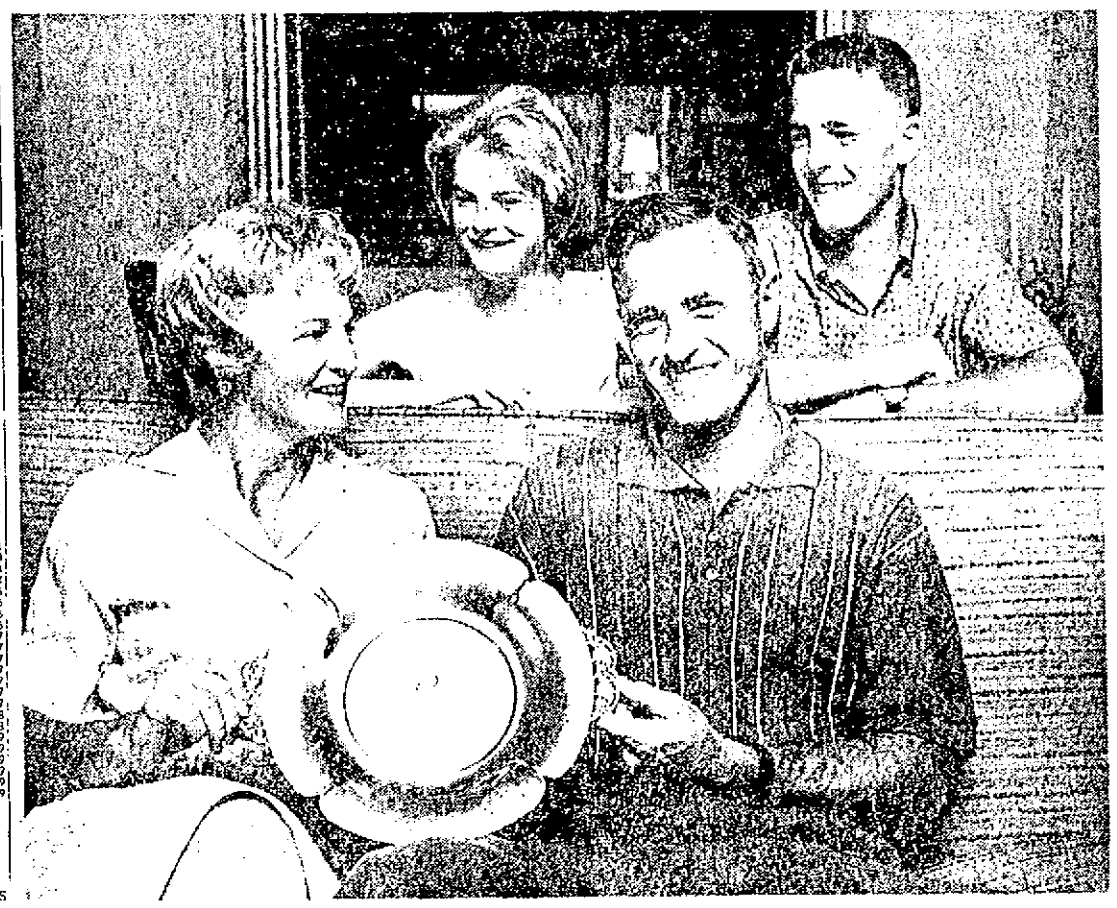

"My putting helped me the last two days. I advanced the ball slightly, and got the right roll. But the more I think about it, it was my driving that enabled me to win. They're letting the rough grow at Pebble Beach for the National Amateur, and you miss a fairway or a green, and you're in serious trouble. I've seldom seen rough as hard to hit from."

* * *

RICHARDSON plans to try to qualify for the National Amateur, scheduled for Sept. 11-16. But first, business allowing, he will play in the Southern California Amateur Championship, July 27-30. In private course competition, he represents Palos Verdes Country Club; in public course, Lakewood.

"The one tournament I always look forward to is the City Championship," volunteered the 1959 City champion. "It's always tough for me to get by the first couple of rounds."

And who won't be gunning next year to beat the champion of all California!

Nieder Hurls New Blast as AAU Revolt Spreads

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Writer

World shotput champion Bill Nieder today urged a campaign to "clean up the ranks of officials and policies of the National AAU and give the athletes a break."

The recommendation was another spark in a "revolt" touched off last week by a host of track and field stars against the AAU.

Giant-sized Nieder holds the world record in the shot at 65-10 and won the gold medal for the United States at the Rome Olympics. He has retired from amateur sports.

"Since the AAU no longer has any say over me, I can speak freely. The younger fellows still in track and field can't be so independent." Nieder declared, adding sharply:

'The AAU (officials) think only of themselves. The athletes come way down the line."

Nieder's observations were triggered when several other world famous athletes, including discus champion Al Oerter, two-time Olympic shot king Parry O'Brien and others, publicly criticized the AAU for its approaching sponsorship of a U. S. team to Europe in general and Russia in particular.

O'BRIEN

NIEDER

The main theme of most complaints was that the AAU insisted the eligible athletes agree to a tour of several weeks or forfeit a chance to go at all.

Said O'Brien:

"The Russians use sports as a political tool and we can be sure Russia will field its strongest team.

"The AAU should recognize that a lot of our athletes are working and can't afford a month away. It should make some provision to let them compete in Moscow and come home."

Said discus star Rink Babka:

"I could go to Russia for 10 days or so but I can't afford to take a long trip. They (the AAU) don't care about the athletes, all they care about is a long vacation in Europe.

"Maybe all this will open everybody's eyes."

Eagles Open Training With New Coach, No Dutchman

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)— The Philadelphia Eagles open training Monday for the defense of their National Football League title minus the two men who carried them to the championship.

Buck Shaw, their former coach, and quarterback Norm Van Brocklin, who thought he was going to be their new one, will not be on the Hershey, Pa., scene for the 1961 training grind.

The silver-thatched Shaw retired after leading the Eagles to their first title in 11 years last fall. The peerless Van Brocklin, who lifted the Eagles from the cellar to the NFL championship in three years, left in a huff when he failed to succeed Shaw. He claimed he had been promised the job as "bait" to lure him here as a player. Van Brocklin consoled himself by signing to coach the Minnesota Vikings, latest addition to the NFL.

SKORICH

VAN BROCKLIN

The Eagles will be the third NFL team to start training for the coming season. The Minnesota Vikings opened camp at Bemidji, Minn., last Friday and the Dallas Cowboys start training at Northfield, Minn., today. (The Rams open at Redlands July 17.)

The new Eagles coach is Nick Skorich, who was moved up from a post as Shaw's assistant. His biggest problem will be to replace Van Brocklin, a superb passer with a facility for picking apart an opponent's defensive system.

Skorich has announced the 1961 edition of the Eagles will do more running than in the past, but he is directing major attention to schooling the three quarterbacks now on the squad.

He has Sonny Jurgenson, who waited long hours in the wings as Van Brocklin's understudy; Jerry Reichow, who was on the roster last season as combination quarterback-end, and King Hill, former Rice star obtained from the St. Louis Cardinals last winter.

HUSTLING L.B. PLAYER 'HATES IT' ON S.F. BENCH, EYES MANAGERIAL CAREER

'Forgotten Man' Marshall Yearns for Chance

By SCOTT BAILLIE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Shortstop Ed Bressnud, an artistic needler, calls out from across the dressing room, "There he goes, folks! Jim Marshall is about to grant an interview!"

And Long Beach's Rufus James Marshall, the forgotten man in the San Francisco Giants' master plan, only smiles and continues to button up the flannel uniform which often is just as clean after a game as before it.

At 29, Jim still is waiting for the great future which appeared to be his seven or eight years ago. In the meantime, he isn't making any bones about "hating it on the bench" although he is picking up managerial tips from Alvin Dark.

"I want to be a manager someday and I've really learned a lot from Alvin," Marshall says. "He's really shown me something about how ball games ought to be won. Still, I wish I could break into that lineup."

Jim, who prefers to play first base, was batting .260 virtually as a pinch hitter. Of his 25 trips to the plate this season only two had found him already in the lineup. And even then he was a late starter.

The regular first base job belongs to Willie McCovey, whose bat is supposed to make up for fielding deficiencies and several tangle-footed incidents. Big Willie has detractors who claim that the first base job should go to Marshall or Orlando Cepeda on a full time basis.

Marshall, a lefty, is a renowned hustler who gives even the most impossible foul flies "the big try" and is swift and sure on the base paths. He also is a power hitter although most of it has been displayed in the Pacific Coast League.

Jim goes along with the possibility that he may wind up with Houston or the New York Mets next season after the National League stocks its two additional members.

"Actually, I'm not too anxious to leave the Giants," he says. "And maybe I actually am helping them by being used sparingly. But I'm sure I could do even more if I got that chance to play daily."

The husky guy with a scrap-iron workers' shoulders was riding high after 1955 when the Chicago White Sox bought him from the old Oakland Oaks.

But it only meant the start of a long safari from one major league club to another with occasional stops back in the minors.

"I still don't know why Chicago bought me," Marshall says. "They had seven first basemen already."

Never quite able to find himself, he batted .215 at Baltimore in 1958 then put in two seasons with the Chicago Cubs. In 1960 he came to the Giants by way of the Boston Red Sox and batted .237 on a part time basis.

This could be his best season in the major percentagewise, but he isn't satisfied.

"If only I could actually work up a sweat," he says. "Yeah, I'd like to do it even if in danger of making a couple of errors!"

Dodgers Eye Split in Reds Series Today

Padres lined out. Neal was the eighth Dodger to be thrown out on the bases, exclusive of steal attempts, in the last five games.

Frank Robinson's 21st homer, a 420-foot drive over the center field fence, made it a 2-1 contest midway in the fourth.

* * * *

BEFORE it could be termed a pitching duel, the Dodgers struck for three runs in the home half on a bases-loaded triple by John Roseboro. Moon singled, T. Davis walked and Larker, bunting, was safe on first baseman Gordy Coleman's error to fill the bases.

Roseboro's liner into the right field corner bounced away from Robinson and the fleet Dodger catcher went into third, standing.

Maloney was lifted for a hitter in the fifth and Jay Hook, a recent victim of mumps, came out of the bullpen for some more lumps in the same round.

Gilliam greeted him with a singled and the Dodgers turned a foul bunt into quick runs for a 7-1 edge. Fairly, with instructions to sacrifice, missed twice, then stroked home run No. 6 over the right field fence.

Moon singled for the third straight time and scored the eighth run on Larker's double to left.

Padres, a .310 hitter, got into the act with a single that scored Larker before Wills ended the nine-man merry-go-round by striking out.

* * * *

LARKER'S second double and Neal's second single made it 10-1 off Roadblock Jones in the seventh and put the Dodgers in the double figure scoring column for the fifth time this year.

Neal was taken out for a runner when he reinjured his right knee. A similar injury kept Neal out of 12 games in May.

Donnelly Scores Upset Over Rosi

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Unrated Jackie Donnelly of Buffalo used in-and-out tactics Saturday night to gain an upset split decision over contender Paolo Rosi of New York and the vacant state lightweight championship.

An estimated crowd of 6,500 cheered Irish Jackie heartily when the decision was announced at the end of their excellent nationally televised 10-rounder in Memorial Auditorium.

On a rounds basis, referee Mark Conn favored Donnelly, 6-4, and judge Dick Fay also favored him 6-4. But judge Lou Goldstein called the fight even on rounds, 5-5, and on back-stopping points, 5-5.

Cantrell, Durade Battle Today in Hot Rod Races

Riverside's Bill Cantrell and George Duarde from Los Angeles, who each won separate 40-lap feature races July 4th, square off against each other in today's feature CJA Hot Rod races at Western Speedway.

Despite the recent rise of Cantrell and Durade, neither have been able to break into the top ten point standings. Barstow's Jim Rossier, who hasn't been in the money for three weeks, still holds a comfortable lead with a total of 2,260. Downey's Jack Austin is second with 1,445. The nine-event card starts at 2:30 p.m.

At Ascot Park tonight, Moorpark's Giff Runkle will try and make it two in a row and also increase his PRA stock car point lead that he holds over Marvin Hienis.

A Boy and His BB Gun

There's disturbing news for the hunters at Sacramento. A recapitulation of bills proposed, introduced, passed and set aside for interim study by the Legislature shows that so-called humane groups again are after the hunters' scalps. Some individuals would stop at nothing to stop all hunting in California.

The busy antihunting lobbyists will be working hard between now and the next bill-passing session of the Legislature in 1963 to curtail rifles, shotguns, bows and arrows and even BB guns.

You'd think, to hear them whisper in the ears of some legislators, that most of us who handle sporting arms for fun are putting our sights on every living thing in California. Naturally, that's ridiculous, but how many of us are sitting in easy rockers and letting the whispering campaign get the green light at every Sacramento intersection?

It might be well to put our sights (verbal, not guns) on those who are causing this disturbance. Otherwise, we might well find our shotguns, bows and arrows and BB guns in 100 fathoms of water offshore.

INSTEAD OF JUST SITTING and allowing curtailment of shooting for fun in the state, every red-blooded sportsman should be taking part in programs that will lead to all kinds of competitive target practice and legal hunting. We should be encouraging—and taking part—in every class that teaches youngsters how to handle firearms safely.

The California Hunter Safely Program has done much in this respect, teaching mostly teen-agers what to do with a gun before they go into the field.

It could go farther. It could start with the BB gun. That's a heritage of every American boy, but city ordinances and frowning parents have all but ended it.

It's my feeling that every boy should learn to use a BB gun properly. I'm not saying that he should swagger around city streets, shooting out windows and killing songbirds. He shouldn't keep that gun loaded and cocked any more than his father should carry a loaded gun into a house, or transport it in a car.

A boy, under proper supervision, can be taught how to handle a BB gun long before he is ready to graduate into the .22-class and take his Hunter Safety Program. He should know so much about handling a gun by that time that little instruction would be necessary.

THREE HUNDRED SCHOOL DISTRICTS in California have seen the value of training boys and girls in outdoor skills. That's real vision. There are 35,000,000 youngsters in this nation's schools. More than three-fourths of those were born in cities and never had the opportunity to learn about hunting and fishing as some of us did in the early part of the century.

So where will they learn? In the schools. In Long Beach, the Recreation Department could institute a BB training program as an additive to its present Tackle Buster activities.

I don't think that any boy should grow up without the experiences of a BB gun. I well remember my first. It came the hard way. I pestered my mother until she bought one—how, I don't know. My experiences also began the hard way. No one told me what to shoot and what not to shoot.

Then one day I shot a cardinal (there is such a bird, remember?). An older brother walloped me until I felt sure that there were no pants left to cover that place which I used for sitting. I learned quickly when he set up a target range in a safe place and taught me that BB guns' targets were tin cans, bottles and crudely marked targets on cardboard.

Robins, cardinals, even sparrows were on the taboo list—and he enforced it! Even to this day, I still get a kick out of practicing with a BB. And I've never killed another songbird in all that time.

JUST BECAUSE A BOY is learning to handle a BB gun, or a .22 or a light shotgun as he grows, it doesn't mean that he's a potential killer. The problem comes when he is told he can never use a gun. Therein lies a lot of danger because he will get one the hard way. And he'll never learn to handle it properly.

Give a boy a BB gun, teach him the laws of his town or city, take him to a target range in the country and let him learn what he can shoot and what he shouldn't shoot. But don't buy him one unless you do those things. You wouldn't send him on the freeway with his first bicycle, would you?

A BB gun is a useful tool, an instrument for training, and should never be used for destruction. Once a boy gets that in his mind, he will be satisfied until he grows enough to handle firearms. Then he can go along with dad into the field for waterfowl and upland game, which is another heritage we all should enjoy.

And speaking of dad: Perhaps he, too, grew up in the city-age and doesn't even know the difference between a BB and a shotgun. Then, by all means, get the boy into a training class where he can learn. Dad, if he's wise, should go with him and learn at the same time. Most instructors beam with pleasure when the parent comes along to learn with junior.

Drake Wins Pomona Sports Car Feature

POMONA (UPI) — Bob Drake of Los Angeles, behind the wheel of Old Yaller No. 4, averaged 80.5 miles an hour to win Saturday's feature at the semi-annual Pomona Sports Car Races.

The eight-lap run around the two-mile course at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds here was a preliminary to today's main event in the Sports Car Club of America competition.

Drake, a veteran driver who has won many races in the West, covered the 16 miles in just 12 minutes, 6 seconds to win the event handily. Old Yaller No. 4 is the latest in a series of "back yard" creations by Max Balchowsky, all of which have been successful in various events.

About 10 seconds behind Drake in second place was Don Hulette of Reseda, Calif., piloting a Jaguar-Corvette, followed by Jim Connor of Phoenix, Ariz., in a Ferrari-Chevy.

A total of 225 cars are entered in the weekend meet, which will conclude today with a program of nine races starting at 11 a.m.

STEPPING UP TO THE TITLE

Angela Mortimer of Britain takes a big step as she returns a shot during her victory over Christine Truman, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, in finals at Wimbledon Saturday.—(AP Wirephoto)

CLARK, WELLS OPEN PUBLINX PLAY MONDAY

Bob Clark of Lakewood and Al Wells of Garden Grove will be the Long Beach area's representatives in the 36th National Public Links Golf Championship at Royal Oak, Mich., which starts Monday.

Clark and Wells qualified from Southern California along with Dennis Cook of Pasadena and Eddie Major of Los Angeles.

Two 18-hole medal rounds Monday and Tuesday will cut the starting field of 150 to 64 for match play beginning Wednesday. Defending champion is Verne Callison of Sacramento.

at City of Hope. Walker launched the Long Beach star on her road to success when she was only 10 years old. He started her in the city's recreation classes.

Darlene Hard, who teamed with Miss Moffitt last year to win the national clay doubles title, said 'I'm thrilled for her" after hearing the results.

Miss Hard won the Wimbledon doubles crown the last two years, but was unable to defend her championship when she suffered a severe case of jaundice at Paris six weeks ago.

For Billie Jean it was her first hour. It also marks the first time a Long Beach-developed player has ever emerged victorious at Wimbledon.

* * * *

ANGELA Mortimer, 29, was crowned the first British queen of the Wimbledon courts since 1937 but only after Christine Truman saw victory literally slip from her grasp in the first all-British final in 47 years.

Miss Truman slipped and twisted her leg during the crucial second set and finally was beaten 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Australian Davis Cuppers Roy Emerson and Neale Fraser won the men's doubles for the second time in three years by downing Bob Hewitt and Fred Stolle 6-4, 6-8, 6-4, 6-8, 8-6 in an all-Aussie final.

Poker-faced Angela, who took the French title six years ago and hasn't won anything big since, was making her ninth Wimbledon attempt.

* * * *

BUT CHRISTINE—tall, brawny and nine years younger than Angela—had victory almost within her grasp in the second set. She appeared on the point of breaking through to a 5-4 lead when she slipped on the rain-slicked grass and strained the leg she hurt on the Caribbean circuit earlier this year.

Clark Graebner of Lakewood, Ohio, won the junior Wimbledon boys title but Kathy Chabot of San Diego, Calif., lost the girls crown to Galina Baksheeva of Russia, 6-4, 8-6. Graebner beat E. Blanke of Austria, 6-3, 9-7.

Angels, Tigers Play Doubleheader Today

produced his 70th RBI—the Seraph southpaw retired 10 men in a row before Chico Fernandez singled with two out in the seventh.

* * * *

THEN CATCHER Miko Roarke tapped a bouncer to third, Yost bare-handed the ball and pegged perfectly to Bilko. The play was closer than Bilko's "half-mile," but there still appeared little doubt that Roarke was out.

Umont ruled otherwise, kept the inning alive and Bubba Morton, batting for Don Mossi, drilled a single through the box to knot the count, 2-2.

An inning later, the Tigers got the decider. Bowsfield walked Billy Bruton to open the frame, but then got Detroit's deadly duo of Kaline and Rocky Colavito on easy flys.

But Cash walked and so did Rigney—to the mound. "No, he didn't talk me into letting him stay in. I'd do the same thing again."

* * * *

BOWSFIELD remained on the hill to face Steve Boros and the Tigers' dandy rookie third baseman brought home the decider with a single through the box.

That was all for Bowsfield and Art Fowler came on to get Charlie Maxwell on a called third strike.

But the Tigers found themselves in the midst of lions in the ninth as the Angels roared back.

Pinch-hitter Lee Thomas opened the inning with a single off Fred Gladding and when Earl Averill walked, Bob Sheffing called right-hander Terry Fox to the mound.

"That's when I should have put Wagner up," said Rigney.

Instead, Yost attempted to bunt, failed, and struck out swinging.

* * * *

THEN RIGNEY decided to pinch-hit Wagner for Billy Moran and Sheffing countered with lefthander Hank Aquirre, who forced Wagner to fly to right. Del Rice, along with Rocky Bridges the only righthander remaining on the Angel bench, batted for Fowler but fouled to Cash to end the game and the Angels' streak.

A two-base throwing error by Fernandez on Joe Koppe's grounder and a double by Bilko accounted for an unearned Angel run in the first and Averill put the Seraphs ahead, 2-1, in the seventh with his 14th home run into the upper deck in left. A crowd of 28,785 witnessed the game. Attendance may hit 50,000 for today's doubleheader which pits Frank Lary (12-4) and Jim Bunning (8-6) against Eli Grba (5-8) and Ryne Duren (3-8).

* * * *

ANGEL ANGLES: Mossi gave up only five hits in the seven innings he worked. He did not allow a walk and has fabulous control record of only 27 walks in 125 innings.

Koppe's hit in the sixth stretched his batting streak to 11 games, while Bilko has now hit in 12 straight. Big Steve has driven in 13 runs in the last seven games and eight in the last four.

The Angels are 3-1 on the current trip and 12-21 overall on the road. They split the Tigers 5-5 on the season and are 1-3 at Tiger Stadium.

WE ARE HONORED

Within one week during the month of June, your Independent and Press-Telegram received eight citations for accomplishments in newspaper publishing in four different fields . . . news features, circulation and advertising, and for general over-all excellence.

The Press-Telegram won first place for general excellence at the 76th annual convention of the National Editorial Association. The notification states: "The selection of your newspaper for this high award is indeed an honor since the judges were confronted with a great number of entries . . . nearly 2,000." (Last year the Independent won honorable mention in this same category.)

Independent, Press-Telegram reporters, Jim McCauley (1) and William Jones (2), placed first and second respectively in a field of 200 entries at Beta Sigma Phi's 27th annual Matrix Journalism Awards dinner in Los Angeles. Their awards were for distinction in the special features series category.

The same week, the circulation department of these newspapers won two first place trophies (3 & 4) for its circulation promotion program among the nation's metropolitan newspapers with more than 100,000 circulation. The national awards in competition with 222 other newspapers were made at an International Circulation Managers Association convention in New York.

The Independent, Press-Telegram won two first place honors (5 & 6) among all California daily newspapers in the California Newspaper Advertising Executives Association 36th annual conference in San Diego. Plaques were given for best city-wide promotional edition or section (annual Cook Book) and for best promotion of retail advertising (testimonial letters). In addition, the National Advertising Department was awarded second place (7) for excellence in merchandising of advertising programs.

We want to share our rewards with you in the form of progressively better newspapers. The men and women who are employed by the Independent, Press-Telegram will continue striving to make these newspapers worthy of continued honors in the field of journalism.

MONROE, MANSFIELD

2 Sexpots Bring Woe to Designer

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Designer Charles LeMaire says Hollywood has only two glamor girls life—Marilyn Monroe and Jayne Mansfield—and he could write a book on the problems of dressing them.

LeMaire was the fashion designer at 20th Century-Fox for many years. Marilyn, he says, gave him his most anxious and embarrassing moments.

LeMaire now can tell the behind-the-scenes story of a large dinner in 1953 when Marilyn in a traffic-stopping gown put on a hip-waving exhibition that shocked Hollywood.

Joan Crawford, in an interview with AP columnist Bob Thomas, later lambasted Marilyn for allegedly believing her own publicity. Few stories he has written have caused so much fuss. Out of this one came a more conservative Monroe.

HERE'S LeMaire's version:

Marilyn's sexy publicity had brought on some blasts from women's clubs and her latest picture, as a result, was not doing well. The studio was worried.

"Then came this dinner. Darryl Zanuck, head of the studio, ordered me to dress Marilyn for the dinner. Even Joe DiMaggio, then her boy friend, called me to make sure there would be no slip-ups.

"I designed a dress that was chic and in good taste. It looked sexy on her. That couldn't be helped because we once proved that even a burlap bag looked sexy on Marilyn's form.

"WE ORDERED a special foundation garment that gave her nice lines. Then a mink stole was added. I coached her how to walk. I told her that when her name was called, she should keep the stole on until she reached the podium. There she could remove it and make a stunning appearance in receiving the award. She promised to follow my orders.

"When her name was called, she suddenly came through a door at the back of the hall, immediately threw off the mink stole and started that hip-shaking walk. It looked like two puppies fighting under a silk bedspread.

"Marilyn had shed the foundation garment.

"THE NEXT DAY she called me: 'Charlie, I'm sorry, but that foundation felt uncomfortable. I just couldn't wear it.'"

A few years later came Miss Mansfield and some gowns that made Monroe's look like Muu-muus. LeMaire continued:

"One day Jayne calmly announced to me that she was to be presented to Queen Elizabeth at a command performance. I got an instant ulcer.

"All I could envision was Jayne, in a low-cut, skin-tight gown, curtsying and sprawling. But Jayne was serious about making a good impression, so I laid down the law. Therem ust be no cleavage; There must be no cleavage; elegance, yes, but no obvious sex appeal.

"Jayne agreed—and it was against her mode of dress—but, most important, she obeyed. The result was a presentation in ladylike elegance."

Kennedys Leading Gag Targets in Night Clubs

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—The capers of the Kennedys—particularly Jackie and Bobby—stole the attention of comedians and gag writers away from other world figures and made them most mentioned in the "Best Laughs" for the first six months of '61.

"Every woman coming out of a beauty parlor now looks like Jackie Kennedy except my wife—she looks like Lyndon Johnson," said Henny Youngman back in February.

It was claimed in Washington that a voice heard above the din in a cafe said: "If I'm old enough to be Attorney General, I'm old enough to be served beer!" And comedian Dick Gregory, the first big-time Negro laugh-getter to crash through, speaking of Alabama's troubles, said: "Alabama—that's Bobby Kennedy's Cuba."

KENNEDY

Dick Gregory in fact rose from virtual poverty to fame the first half of '61 thanks to the Chicago Playboy Club, Jack Paar and the Blue Angel. "South Africa," he claims, "is where Faubus is considered a liberal."

The old master, Bob Hope, mentioned on Memorial Day, "Adlai Stevenson is going to S. America to visit all our friends—he'll be back the same day."

And he brought down the house when, introducing Marlene Dietrich, he said, "Her father and mother won the Nobel Prize for architecture."

"A bachelor we know has quit chasing the girls," said Herb Stein in Hollywood. "Can't find any who will run" . . . And Phyllis Standish out there arrested that adolescense is when a girl begins to powder and a boy begins to puff.

I nicknamed my B.W. Rosemary "my Metrecali Rosie" and Dave Barry contended that Metrecal won this year's Nobelly Prize.

Groucho Marx assured me I looked a lot better and added (when I thanked him): "You don't look as gross as usual."

The Congo slogan, Dean Martin alleged, was "If you can't beat 'em, eat 'em," and there was a new TV program, "Eat the Press."

CORBETT MONICA reported a golfer drove one new ball into a lake, another new ball into a woods, another onto a highway — and the caddy said, "Why don't you use an old ball?" The golfer answered: "I've never had one."

About that population explosion, Dave Barry said: "A woman is delivering a child every 30 seconds. We've got to get hold of that woman and stop her!"

When Brendan Behan was sick, Variety reported he'd been "aleing." Several people said Barry Goldwater got a screen offer from 18 Century-Fox. The New York night club business wes such that several cafes which used to throw customers out, now threw them in.

Jim Downey, the restaurateur, claimed he bought $1,000 worth of Arthur Murray lessons to make himself popular.

"And did you?" asked a friend. "Well," said Jim, "Arthur Murray's awfully fond of me."

"The only Oscar that Jayne Mansfield can win," thought Irving Leibowitz of the Indianapolis Times, "is Oscar Levant" . . . Myron Cohen told how a Stage Delicatessen waiter snarled toward his table, "Who was that who ordered a clean glass?"

About the Cuban revolution, several comics took credit for first saying "Revolution! I've seen better fights in Xavier Cugat's band." And Joe E. Lewis said, "If Castro'll send me 1,000 tractors, I'll give him back Desi Arnaz."

The man-into-space furor was so great, the circus daredevil who's shot from a cannon felt like a stay-at-home. However, everybody hoped we'd get to the moon. It's another place for Bob Hope to entertain troops.

There were many Eichmann trial jokes. Frank Sinatra claimed he got a wire from Eichmann addressed to him care of the Copa Room at the Las Vegas Sands. It said: "Happy opening. Wish I were there. Wish I were anywhere."

THE WEEKEND WINDUP . . .

"DON'T PRINT THAT!": A midtown florist threatens to sue the husband of a famed singer for $68, an unpaid bill for flowers: the husband had ordered the posies rushed onstage to his wife when she opened at a local cafe . . . One of the season's top song hits was written by two composers, under their wives' maiden names, for a rival firm.

Ben Hecht hopes his daughter Jennie will appear in his new B'way play, due in the fall . . . Noel Coward has written 24 songs for his forthcoming musical, "Sail Away," in which he'll star . . . Gary Bell of San Francisco is trying to raise $200,000 to film the story of Capt. Warren Grecy, a Negro hero of World War II . . . Carol Channing's "Show Girl," a hit on pay-TV in Toronto, will be repeated there this summer.

Miriam Hopkins plays Shirley MacLaine's aunt in the film, "The Infamous;" in an earlier screen version, titled "These Three," Miriam played Shirley's role . . . A downtown furniture store advertises: "Tall Stools for Comedians" . . . Groucho Marx, arriving to see the B'way musical, "Carnival," put his wallet in an inside pocket. "I'm not taking any chances," he quipped. "Last time I went to a carnival I had my pocket picked" . . . What movie makes the most money? Well, "Homicidal," which has no big names in the cast, will make a 400 per cent profit.

EARL'S PEARLS: A person can now fly to California in the time it takes to refold a road map.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The only time some suburbanites see their neighbors is when they try to borrow back their lawnmowers.

L. B. Port Compiles Long List of New Commercial Records

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

Statisticians are still compiling the remarkable record of the Port of Long Beach during fiscal year 1960-61.

The port has toppled virtually every record on the books for the past 50 years.

Ship arrivals, weathervane of nearly every other activity, set a new record. During the 1960-61 fiscal period 1,943 vessels arrived here as compared to 1,748 in 1959-60. The previous record was 1,877 in 1956-57.

COMPARE that to 1925 when only 33 ships called here or 1940 when the figure was but 789 and you get an idea of how the tempo has picked up.

With the new business has come an endless stream of visitors.

Recent foreign visitors at the port included L. L. Burch, chairman of commissioners of the Geelong (Australia) Harbor Trust; K. Mihler, chairman of the Port Trust for Calcutta, India, and T. M. Mahadi, chief engineer for the Port of Calcutta, India; Inche Ismail, superintendency assistant general manager of the Penang Port Commission, Malaya; Lamberto Rolledo, director of the Bureau of Customs, Port of Manila, Philippines; R. J. Wyllie, member of the Maritime Services Board of Sydney, Australia; Captain J. H. Simpson, vice president of the Maritime Services Board of Sydney, Australia; M. K. Doshi, assistant docks manager, Bombay Port Trust, India, and M. Hattori, president of "K" Line, Kobe, Japan.

BATHERS who complain frequently about the sticky tar-like substance on the beach often blame it on ships. Actually, most of it comes from oil seepage about 10 miles out in the Catalina Channel.

AMERICAN PRESIDENT Lines has announced the first worldwide "sail now, pay later" plan. The program allows the traveler to pay as little as 10 per cent down and the remainder in 24 monthly installments. An outstanding feature of the plan is that the traveler may incorporate air travel as a part of the package deal.

A TOTAL of 1,009 vessels entered and left the ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles during June. Of the number, 537 were outbound and 572 inbound.

THE U. S. ARMY says it is pouring about $1.6 billion in military and civilian payrolls, purchases and services into the economy of eight western U. S. states. The estimate lists Fort MacArthur at San Pedro as spending $15 million per annum.

SIERRA LUMBER has been added to the growing lists of California imports to Japan. This week a shipment of 300,000 board feet of Ponderosa pine and Douglas fir, cut on the Sierra slopes, left San Francisco after being trucked to Sacramento and barged to the port.

BOTH California U. S. Senators, Tom Kuchel and Clair Engle, had some sharp comments to make on subjects related to maritime problems.

Engle charged that a House Appropriations Committee cut in State Department overseas personnel has threatened development of foreign markets for American products. Engle said the House committee trimmed $853,217 from the 1962 State Department appropriation which will eliminate all but 10 of the 94 personnel needed for commercial work overseas.

The California Democrat said the State Department was at fault because it did not place a high priority on the need for staff to handle commercial work at U. S. embassies and consular posts. He has asked the Senate to restore the funds.

Kuchel said that national maritime strike was another illustration of the need for legislation under which the President can invoke compulsory arbitration procedures to protect the public interests.

Modern Dental Plates

Aided by "modern" dental plate materials and "improved technique," used in the construction of dental plates, Dental Science has followed a "processless" path that results in dental plates more natural in "appearance," better fitting and more "comfortable" to wear than thought possible a few short years ago. Ask to see samples of modern dental plates, uppers, lowers and partials. GOOD dental plates need not be expensive. THE COST IS SMALL.

FOR A MAN OVER 50

Here's an excellent opportunity for a mature man to make enough money in only 3 days a week to spend the other 4 days enjoying life.

We need another middle-aged man to join our top man. Many over 50, who get exceptional earnings of $8,000, $10,000, up to $14,000 in a year . . . plus a new car as a bonus.

If you have five years selling experience, drive a car, and are anxious to succeed in a new business, write me a personal note. W. H. Crawford, Vice President, Texas Refinery Corp., Box 711, Fort Worth 1, Texas.

Real Estate and BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

ZODY'S NEARING COMPLETION

With much of the exterior work completed, the big new Zody's Department Store is scheduled to open in a few weeks in Los Altos. It is located at Spring Street and Los Coyotes Diagonal. This is one of seven new stores the company is building in the Southland.

Realtors Strongly Opposing Department of Urban Affairs

Gene Nebeker, president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, reports that Curtis E. Huber of Evansville, Ind., chairman of the Realtors' Washington Committee, appeared before a subcommittee of the Senate Governmental Operations Committee as representative of the 70,000-member Realtor organization of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in opposition to SB 1633.

This bill would establish the new cabinet-rank Department of Urban Affairs and Housing. Congressional creation of this department "would toll the bells for our federal system," Huber warned.

Speaking with primary reference to problems that are "inherently local," Huber expressed the fear that the creation of the new department would lessen local responsibility for them and thus make their solution more difficult. He added that it would hasten the "erosion of our system of federal-state-local relations" and it would effect circumvention of state and country governments.

* * * *

HE TOOK as an example of the abandonment of local responsibility, current urban renewal efforts, pointing out that while 1,297 communities had adopted "workable programs" for the prevention of slums and blight to get federal aid as of April 4th, 510 of these subsequently had permitted "workable programs" to expire. Moreover, of these, 363 had not indicated any intention of filing for recertification.

"I cite these only to point out that because the cities have attached so much importance to the role of a Department of Urban Affairs, we fear the effects of further shifting of responsibility for the solution of local problems to the federal government," he said. "Yet all the billions in Fort Knox would not suffice to rid the nation of its slums unless the communities accept greater rather than lesser responsibility."

NAREB'S opposition to the bill is based also on a belief that it would not accomplish its purported objective, would aggravate the fragmentation of the nation's housing effort rather than contribute to its coordination, and that it presupposes that the federal government's role in housing and urban renewal must be a permanent and expanding one.

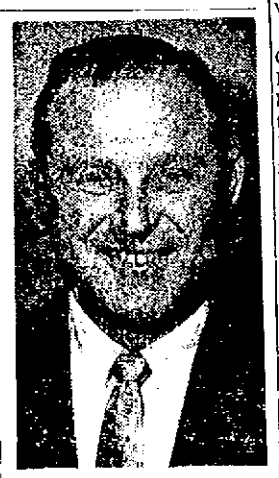

* * * *

THE NAREB representative denied that the bill would coordinate existing federal housing programs by pointing out that those that contribute to approximately 63% of the nation's residential mortgage financing—those of the Federal Home Loan Bank System and the Veterans Administration—are not included in the proposed new department.

"Not only does the bill fail to coordinate the several federal housing programs, but it downgrades the most successful of these programs by abolishing the Federal Housing Administration as a separate corporate entity," Huber charged.

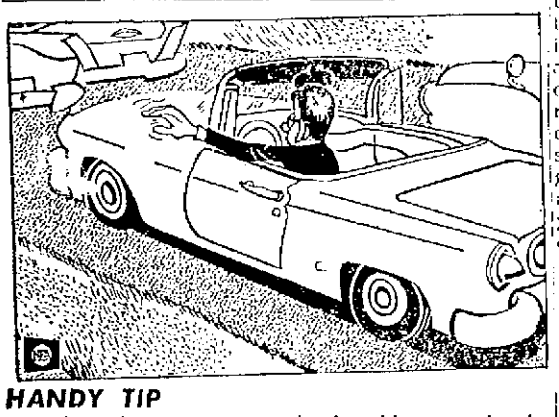

Huber urged Congress "to weigh carefully the implications flowing from . . . a concession" that the role of the federal government in housing must be a permanent and expanding one.

"Many of the problems of our urban areas, such as housing, community facilities and slum clearance, are inherently local problems," he said. "The energies of all levels of government should be directed at their solution on the local level and with greater, rather than less, local financial participation."

HANDY TIP

When that fellow motorist has his turn signals going winky-winky and doesn't know it, he'll appreciate it if you'll give him this new sign. Thumb and the four fingers are moved toward each other several times. It's an unofficial wigwag suggested by the American Automobile Association in Washington as a way to end this disconcerting and dangerous traffic situation which everyone gets into now and then.

Sees Big Business Boom Coming Soon

The nation will see a business boom, starting within the next year or two, that will be far greater than the boom of the past decade, says Clive Graham, prominent Long Beach realty broker.

Speaking before the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers in convention in Phoenix, Graham said that predicting such a boom is not a crystal ball vision but is factual.

Graham, head of the Clive Graham Real Estate Co., 800 E. Ocean Blvd., is on the board of directors of the National Association of Real Estate Boards; the board of governors of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers and is on the real estate advisory committee to the president of the University of California.

* * * *

"EXTRA HIGH BIRTHS of the 40's and 50's will produce a population bulge in the 60's and 70's. When these young men and women marry those marriages will make homes and homes make business.

"We can add another fact to this prediction — the momentum of new products and new ideas that flow from technical, scientific and mechanical development in the past. These are already with us, behind the scenes, being rushed into use. They are certain to bloom in the 60's and 70's.

"Rising living standards have been rapid in the past 10 years but they will be even more rapid in the next 10 or 20.

* * * *

"PRICES ARE HIGH but they will go higher. In 10 years, 15 per cent, 20 years 35 per cent and in 25 years 50 per cent.

CLIVE GRAHAM
No Crystal Ball Vision

"It will pay us to watch the progress of inflation in the future. The no. 1 cause will be wages being forced up faster than productivity. Professional unioneers deny this. They put the blame on excessive profits, but profits stay about level, or even shrink in relation to total volume while wages keep going up.

"Business is forced to raise prices. When these price increases become general they raise the cost of living. This calls for higher wages. This leap-frogging will be with us continually.

"The no. 1 hedge against inflation is the family home, land or other real estate."

* * * *

GRAHAM SAID that older people now have more income than in the past and this will increase through the years and business should cater to this class. "And, he added, "at the other end is the diaper line — about 4 million babies a year now — which can produce more business.

"The coming boom is no secret, big corporations have it charted. They are planning ahead with new products and methods.

"The greatest era of economic growth this country ever has known is ahead of us. It will be the golden future of real estate."

Graham discussed the use real estate, the growth of it and the increased business now resulting.

Former Courts Area Improved

Considerable remodeling work has been completed on three floors of the Jergins Trust Building, Pine and Ocean Boulevard, after the removal of the courts into the new County Courts Building.

Herman Hertz, owner, said new tenants in the vacated area include Jefferson Standard Life Co., Lester D. Lawson Inc. and Ohio Casualty Co.

I, P-T PROMOTIONS WIN

For the third consecutive year The Independent, Press-Telegram has won the California Newspaper Advertising Executives Association award for the best promotion of retail advertising. Here Gus Holmes of the California Newspaper Publishers Association congratulates James P. Duncan, I, P-T local advertising manager (right), for the victory. The annual I, P-T Cook Book edition also won top award for the best special edition. Duncan was elected president of the association.

Big Vegetable Oil Plant Leased Here

Pacific Vegetable Oil Corp., a San Francisco based international trading and processing firm, has leased the large Spencer-Kellogg vegetable oil processing plant in Long Beach, Chamber of Commerce officials announced.

The property consists of some eight and a half acres and abuts Cerritos Channel in the rapidly expanding Long Beach Harbor area. The property includes 13 buildings with a total square footage of over 185,000.

INCLUDED IN THE BUILDINGS is a four-story complete oil refinery, two mill buildings, an eight-unit tank farm having a 1,460,000 gallon storage capacity and a grain elevator with a 200,000 bushel storage capacity. There is also a meal grinding and shipping building, a flax warehouse, a cake storage building, a copra storage warehouse, plus service buildings and equipment, a dock warehouse, and an office building.

With the addition of this Long Beach facility, Pacific Vegetable Oil now has three deep-water loading locations.

Long Beach Chamber of Commerce industrial manager, Dale Ward, said, "We are very happy to see the Pacific Vegetable Oil Corp. expand its operations to the Long Beach area. We have known for quite sometime of their interest in the Long Beach area and worked with them on this subject."

Pacific Vegetable Oil leased the property from Union Pacific Railroad for 25 years with an option to buy.

Homes in Sunkist Plaza Provide Prestige Living

Sunkist Plaza Homes has opened their new "planned community" in Huntington Beach.

The first phase of the proposed 2,200-unit development consists of more than 100 beautifully designed contemporary homes. COLLEGE PARK ESTATE
Pictured interior shows the "playroom" in the split-level model home at College Park Estates, where it has been announced that the final choice few luxury homes as well as the beautifully furnished models are now offered for purchase.

Final Few College Park Estates Open

In addition to the last few distinctive luxury residences at College Park Estates, the furnished models that depicted the handsome one-story and split-level homes are now for sale, it was announced by W. R. Effinger, sales director for S&S Construction Co.

Effinger pointed out that College Park Estates may well be one of the last large fine-home communities to be offered within the city limits of Long Beach for such prime locations are becoming increasingly scarce.

* * * *

SITUATED on a portion of the historic Bixby Ranch, on Seventh Street directly across from Long Beach State College, the community, despite its suburban privacy and charm, is approximately 10 minutes from downtown Long Beach.

The spacious homes are diversely styled and there is a choice of flexible plans, all with at least two baths. Center of much attention are the outstanding split-levels, Effinger said. Actually three level designs, they encompass 2,293 square feet of actual living area and are designed with four bedrooms, a large family room-playroom and four baths. Split-levels also have two fireplaces, one in the living room and one in the family room.

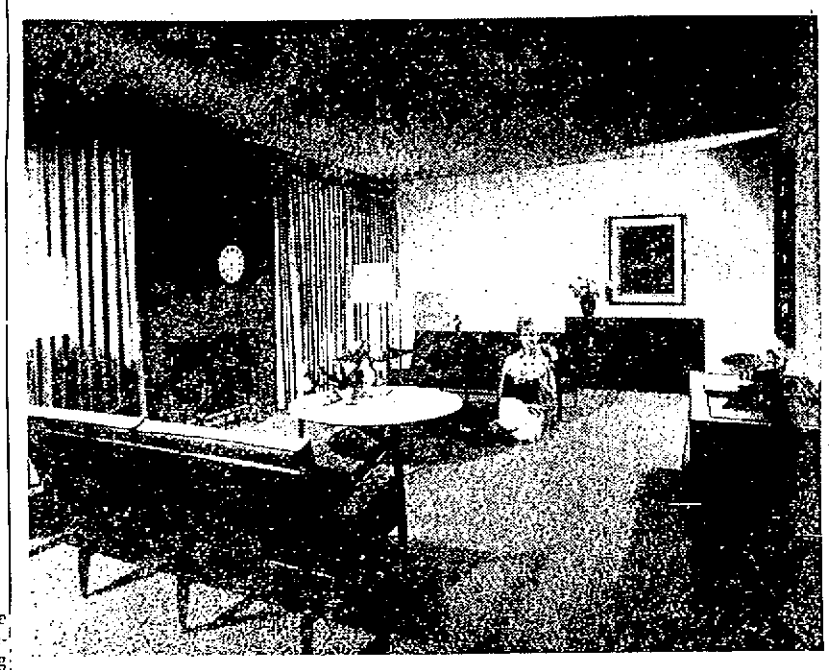

* * * *

COLLEGE Park Estates' residences have decor-designed fireplaces in a wide variety of materials and design and high lights among the many other luxury features include sliding walls of glass, baths with marble-topped pullmans and imported mosaic tile, forced air heating with thermostat and summer cooling switch, and all-electric appliance-equipped kitchens with built-in wall oven and range in decorator colors, built-in automatic dishwasher and colorful superamic tile drainboards.

Available on FHA, conventional or Cal-Vet financing, Effinger said, College Park Estates homes are fully priced from $23,450.

From Long Beach, drive out Seventh Street to College Park Estates across from Long Beach State College. Sales office and the model homes are open seven days a week.

Choice of Locations Offered by Sol Vista

A SOL VISTA HOME
This interior view of a Sol Vista Home shows how ample space is provided for a growing family with many plush extras provided by the builder.

"In addition to the many features of Sol Vista, the buyer has the opportunity to choose location. We have developments in Huntington Beach, Westminster, Garden Grove or Santa Ana and the buyer can choose the Sol Vista home of his choice from one centrally located sales office. And all these developments are in close proximity to the ocean, schools, churches, shopping centers, golf courses, major industry and the freeways," stated Al Solomon, president of the Alco-Pacific Construction Co., Inc.

Sol Vista Homes feature "hardwood floors. "Oak flooring, because of its striking natural beauty, harmonizes with any color plan and thus allows maximum flexibility in decorations and furnishings. As many modern homemakers have learned, oak flooring lends a distinctive atmosphere of elegance when left uncovered or only partially covered," according to Solomon. These floors are supported with a two-inch tongue and groove sub-flooring and set upon "raised" foundations.

* * * *

ALSO FEATURED is the Medallion "all electric kitchen" which includes the Frigidaire range and oven and the Frigidaire dishwasher. Included is color coordinated range hood and light with electric fan, whirlaway disposals and ash cabinets.

Sol Vista homes also include dramatic floor to ceiling fireplaces of stone or brick with log lighter. The bathrooms have convenient Pullmans with colored bath fixtures by American Standard. All models include a stall shower with safety glass door in the master bedroom bath, not to mention modern wiring sufficient to handle today's and tomorrow's appliance, and top quality lighting fixtures.

Strikingly individual in design, Sol Vista homes offer a choice of 18 exterior elevations ranging from provincial to modern, from picturesque shake-shingle roofs to colorful large rock roofs.

* * * *

THESE HOMES are priced from $17,650 with VA terms—no down payment (except costs and impounds). Minimum FHA down payment. Cal-Vet and conventional terms may also be arranged. The model homes are open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. For convenience, there is a hostess available in each model home to answer preliminary questions. The sales program is directed by C. "Faye" Stites, president of the C. LaFaye Co., Inc.

Most Businessmen Expecting Upswing

Southern California, Arizona and Nevada businessmen, more cautious than their counterparts in other regions of the West, but more optimistic than three months ago, predict a third-quarter economy upswing in the Prudential Insurance Co. Western Business Forecast.

By a 79 per cent vote of confidence, Southern Californians, Arizonians and Nevadans serving on the 1,000-member, 12-state panel forecast business activity will equal or exceed the third quarter of 1960. In the last quarterly survey, 71 per cent of this region's panelists took this stand.

The West, as a whole, shades this region by three points of optimism as 82 per cent of the leading western businessmen look for activity to remain the same or surpass last year's third quarter.

* * * *

ALMOST HALF of the survey respondents expect one to 10 per cent more activity in the next three months, while one-fifth see an increase as high as 11 to 40 per cent over the same period last year. Less than a fifth feel that business will decline.

Construction and transportation-public utilities in the Western United States are the two ranking industries favored by nine out of 10 prognosticators in these fields for parity or improvement in the next quarter.

Finance, trade, services and manufacturing share in the favorable outlook and increased optimism for July, August and September. Although those representing the agriculture-extractive industry have less confidence than in previous surveys, even they, by a seven to three margin, predict business will equal or exceed the third quarter of last year.

FOR THE FIFTH consecutive month, Southern California's business activity continued at record levels, establishing a new all-time high in May, Virgil B. Gillespie, vice president and manager of Security First National Bank's Long Beach branch, reported.

The bank's "Monthly Summary of Business Conditions" pointed out that the business index for the area climbed to 222.9 (preliminary), up 1.9% from the April high, and 3.7% over the same year-ago level, Gillespie said.

Ten of the index's 14 components advanced between April and May, Gillespie noted, with bank debits, real estate activity, building and engineering construction, manufacturing employment and man-hours worked, all showing solid gains.

Unemployment as a whole fell slightly between April and May. The unemployment increases in the Los Angeles-Long Beach and San Diego metropolitan areas were offset by declines in the Southland, the bank stated.

Building and construction activity in the local 14-county area climbed in May to the highest level ever recorded in a single month, Security said. Total volume amounted to $375,160,000. On a seasonally adjusted basis, that was equivalent to over $4.2 billion a year — also a record high.

According to the bank's research department, the impressive showing during May was attributed to: Substantially higher level of home-building activity; and awarding during the month of an exceptionaly large volume of engineering construction contracts.

Total building and construction for the first five months of 1961 reached an average level, seasonal factors considered, equal to $3,513,000,000 per year, compared with the actual total of $3,503,000,000 during the record year of 1960.

Realtors Yearbook Is Issued

Three hundred and thirty-five Realtors and 603 Associates from the Long Beach-Lakewood area, members of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, are listed in the huge 304-page roster issue of the California Real Estate Magazine now in the mail to all of the 34,000 members of the California Real Estate Association, it was announced by Gene Nebeker, president of the Long Beach Board. This represents a healthy growth in the membership, said Nebeker.

The growth in membership of the statewide Association in the last year was more than 1,500 Realtors and real estate salesmen, according to Kenneth H. Smitten of San Francisco, president. He said that more than 14,000 of the members of the association are Realtors — real estate brokers recognized as qualified professionals through their membership in the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The Associate members are employed by Realtors.

Because of the reference value of this special issue, more than 2,000 additional copies are mailed to major libraries, consuls, chambers of commerce, large corporations, and others interested in California real estate throughout the country.

The magazine contains many articles with numerous illustrations and charts telling the story of the dynamic growth of California.

A new feature is a map section that graphically illustrates the many advantages of business and agriculture in California.

One article tells of the California economy's dynamic growth from 1950 to 1960. Some of the statistics revealed in this article are astounding, as a 10-year increase of the State population from 10,586,223 in 1950 to 15,717,204 in 1960—a 48.47% increase.

Says Cleanup Reduces Crime

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—A clean-up, paint-up, fix-up campaign not only gives a city a better appearance, but helps the police department fight crime, says Police Superintendent J. Milton Litchard.

Clean alleys, trimmed shrubbery and better-lighted yards reduce the number of hiding places for attackers.

"Furthermore," he says, "as youthful energy is converted into productive actions, the value of juvenile decency becomes clearer to youngsters."

Modern, Open Kitchens in Pacific Sands Home

IN PACIFIC SANDS HOME
Don and Julie Conklin, with their two children, enjoy a snack on breakfast bar between open kitchen and family room in a Pacific Sands home.

Modern open kitchens with built-in gas range and oven, natural birch cabinets, and gleaming ceramic tile counter tops are especially popular with buyers of the new homes at Pacific Sands, one minute from Huntington Beach State Beach, reports Sales Manager Don Hermanson of Walker & Lee, sales agency.

Don Conklin, who does land sales work for Walker & Lee, admits that the open kitchens in Plan No. 4 helped attract him, with wife Julie and their two children, to Pacific Sands from Newport Beach. According to Conklin, the Pacific Sands homes are offered at prices as much as $5,000 below current market evaluation. The homes, Conklin says, are easily worth $17,000 to $20,000, yet pricing ranges from just $12,500 to $15,300.

Custom-designed for vacation living one minute from Huntington Beach State Beach, the Pacific Sands homes offer special boat doors on some plans to facilitate sliding a boat through its storage space in the large double garage. After a fun-filled outing at the beach, homeowners can enjoy a brisk wash under their own private outside showers.

* * * *

OFFERED WITH low $300-down terms, the new homes incorporate three or four bedrooms, family room, and two baths.

Among the features of quality included in the new homes are: Pass-through window, kitchen to patio; garbage disposal; breakfast bar; aluminum sliding doors; oversized gas forced-air furnace; Pioneer Flintkote roofs and floors; used brick fireplaces; double garages and 17 different exteriors enhanced by used brick, concrete block, and Palos Verde stone.

* * * *

AMONG THE pleasure facilities in the Pacific Sands area is the new Long Beach Marina, offering its small boat facilities less than 10 minutes from the development. Famous Newport-Balboa is only five minutes away, while Knott's Berry Farm and Disneyland are also easily accessible. The area is served by excellent schools, modern shopping centers, and family urban facilities to answer every need.

From Long Beach, the homes may be reached by driving southeast on Pacific Coast Hwy. (101) to Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39), then left.

Three Bankers to Be Honored

A trio of prominent Long Beach men, with three-quarters of a century of banking experience between them, this week are marking their silver anniversaries with Bank of America.

They are Carlton E. Wood, 3901 California Ave., vice president at the bank's Seventh and Olive office in Los Angeles; N. H. Falk, 5815 Barbanell St., operations officer at the First and Pine branch; and Robert McMillin, 2751 Pacific Ave., an auditor in the Los Angeles Headquarters Timeplan Department.

The three will soon be feted for their long service at a Founders Club banquet at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

Pittsburgh Layout Woe to Motorists

By PAUL G. EBERHART

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — It can be said of Pittsburgh that it probably is the only major city in the world where Fifth Ave. crosses Sixth Ave.

This, in itself, may be enough to make traffic planners dizzy. But add these facts and you really have traffic troubles:

—The street layout in the downtown section is in a triangular, rather than rectangular, pattern.

—The terrain is hilly.

—There are more bridges in the metropolitan area than in any other city in the United States.

—The Golden Triangle, or business district, is bounded on one side by the Allegheny River. On the other side flows the Monongahela. Where these two rivers merge at the Point, the Ohio River is formed.

* * * *

ONE OF THE MOST serious problems currently confronting traffic experts is facilitating the traffic flow which attemps to by-pass the heart of the city.

This problem has been eased somewhat with completion of an east-west parkway and the recent opening of a multi-million dollar dual-level bridge which leads to a cavernous tunnel used by south and westbound traffic.

Planners also report that a north-south crosstown boulevard, which now is being built, should help speed through traffic when it is in operation.

Because of Pittsburgh's triangular layout, streets are a confused mass of unusual angles.

The city's chief planning engineer, W. W. Rankin, said it is very difficult to blueprint a smooth traffic pattern because of this situation.

* * * *

SEVERAL EFFORTS have been made in the past to convert some of the narrow streets to one-way traffic. However on each occasion public transportation officials have won injunctions against the moves. The city not long ago created a port authority for the sole purpose of improving traffic and transit problems. One of the authority's first aims was to plan replacing the public transportation system with an authority-operated setup. But red tape and confusion over the proposed routes are delaying progress.

The possibility of subways is out. The three rivers edging the business section prevent construction of such a subterranean network. As a partial relief, two new bridges have been built in the last three years and two others are under construction.

* * * *

WHAT ABOUT PARKING? It could be worse if it were'nt for the many new off-street parking garages constructed under the direction of the Municipal Parking Authority. A big boom in parking garages developed under the authority's guidance in the last decade and more garages are on the drawing boards.

However the Monongahela Municipal Parking Wharf — once capable of accommodating about 600 cars—isn't always available to its customers. For example, for three weeks this year in late February and early March the parking surface was under water which had spilled over from the flood-swollen river. This is not an uncommon occurrence during the winter and spring months.

After careful study, the city has increased on-the-street parking in some sections and is considering expanding the plan.

* * * *

PEDESTRIAN traffic admittedly is causing concern to traffic planners and safety officials. Most of the city's buildings have been or will be built right on the building line. This, in addition to the narrowness of most streets, leaves little room for widening of sidewalks.

The only solution engineers can see is for a long-range plan of overhead crosswalks.

Well Rooted

ROANOKE, Va. (UP)—When Charles Chitlum pulled up roots and left Virginia he neglected some of them—sassafras roots. Now 77, Chitlum addressed a letter to the "Best Banker" at Roanoke and asked that some sassafras roots be sent to him at Omaha, Neb. He got the roots for the tea he said he needed as a spring tonic.

New Vet Terms for Imperial Estates

Unusually low "terms for everyone" have been a feature at Imperial Estates No. 25, but new terms now make the "one price" residences available to veterans for a "move-in" of just $89 total cash, reports Frank Chandler of Key Land Co., sales agents for this south Norwalk-east Long Beach community.

Veterans monthly payments on the homes, Chandler explained, are just $87.18, including principal and interest, terms for "everyone" provide exceptionally favorable FHA loans with only $650 down payment plus impounds and costs. Each of the large-family homes has a price tag of just $15,750.

* * * *

DESPITE the modest price, buyers will find many "bonus" features unusual in this price range. As with all Emblem-built homes, they are soundly constructed with oak hardwood floors over solid diagonal subflooring and "high and dry" raised foundations. Included, too, are master baths with indirect ceiling lighting and pullmans topped with genuine marble, forced air heating, a convenient separate bath.

Buyers have choice of 15 exterior elevations distinguished by the imaginative use of veneer of brick, used brick and native stone as well as interesting pot shelves, corbels and planters. Well designed plans afford choice of three bedrooms or two bedrooms and a versatile den, all with two baths and a two-car garage.

"One price" residences at Imperial Estates No. 25 in the south Norwalk-east Long Beach area are now offered on new veteran terms that require only $89 total cost to move into the large-family dwellings.

Builds Branch in Anaheim

E. H. Sargent & Co., 109-year-old distributor of scientific instruments, apparatus and chemicals, has started construction on its western division office-warehouse building on a two-acre site which is located on East Ball Road in Anaheim.

From the Long Beach-Compton area, drive out Seventh Street to Los Alamitos (which becomes Norwalk Boulevard) to the model home display.

Containing 21,000 square feet of warehouse space and 5,000 square feet of office space, the facility will cost approximately $250,000, according to T. M. Mints Sr., president of the company.

The building, which represents the company's full-fledged entry into the Southern California market, will feature a large instrument demonstration laboratory and modern servicing facilities for the repair and maintenance of analytical laboratory instruments.

The Facts About Lease-Hold Estates

An open Letter to Homeseekers:

Here at Pacific Sands we've invented what I'd like to call a new method for saving you money on your new home. I can't call it that, though, because it's really an improved version of a plan already tested and proved. Leasehold estates are common in most of Europe and many parts of the U.S., including almost all of the Hawaiian Islands. The beautiful Newport-Balboa area, right next to Pacific Sands, and the magnificent residential communities of Irvine Estates are mostly leasehold properties.

Why should you be interested in leasehold estates? Because they're one of the few remaining methods of overcoming the rising cost of land...and the only way you can live on this kind of scarce, high-priced ocean-close property. Another thing... as a home builder I know we can and do give you more home for the same money on a leasehold estate.

How is this greater value possible? At Pacific Sands, you get more home for your money because you purchase only the home... the land is leased. You save several thousands of dollars because your original cost doesn't include buying the land.

How have we improved the leasehold method? We've made it possible for you to own the land at the end of your lease, rather than have it revert back to the original owner.

What if you want to sell before the lease is up? Go right ahead! You can do anything with your leasehold estate that you can do with any other normal real estate -- sell it, trade it, rent it, leave it to your heirs, or borrow money on it. All profits through increase in value belong to you!

We have actual proof that our improved Leasehold Estate plan is highly desirable. Our buyers include Attorneys, Doctors, College Professors and other educators, Title Company Officers, Bankers, General Contractors and Real Estate Brokers...people who know exactly what they're doing when they buy a home.

We challenge anyone to match our prices and value. Think of it...a $17,000 to $20,000 home priced from $12,500! These are outstanding family-designed homes in one of nature's finest resort areas. Here you'll find three and four bedrooms, 2 baths, built-ins, forced air heating, and all the other features you'd expect in a home costing $5,000 higher. All this on full sized lots just one minute from the blue Pacific. Ask your own Real Estate broker how much you'd have to pay for comparable ocean-close property.

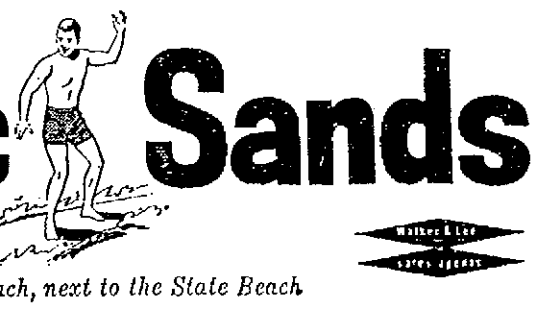

You may never again have a chance to live in an exclusive ocean-close community. Don't buy anything, not even a $30,000 home, until you see Pacific Sands.

Sincerely,

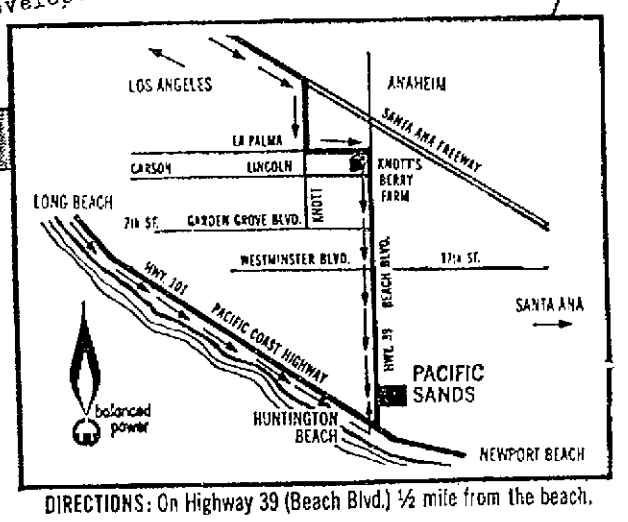

James F. Deane

Much of Home Improvements Now on Do-It-Yourself Basis

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Census bureau statisticians have turned up a host of facts about what the handyman does around the house.

They know, for example, that he spent more than three out of every 10 dollars last year to repair, maintain, improve or enlarge owner-occupied dwellings housing up to four families.

To be exact, the do-it-yourselfer spent $2,911,000,000 in 1960 to fix, enlarge, modernize or otherwise improve his house. This was 31 per cent of a total of $9,441,000,000 spent by owner-occupants of one- to four-family houses.

Including all houses, $13.12 billion was spent in 1960, according to the census bureau. It compiled the figure on the basis of return-by-mail questionnaires and personal interviews. The interviews produced the do-it-yourself information.

* * * *

THE SURVEY, begun in February 1960, is made monthly at an annual cost of $30,000. About 1,850 home owners are interviewed in person every three months. Because they are a scientifically selected "random sample," the census bureau feels it can project from their answers home improvement statistics for the entire economy. The data are believed to be highly accurate, but not perfectly so.

Interestingly, $2.6 billion, more than 90 per cent, of the do-it-yourself spending was reported for single-family houses. Apparently these owners are more enthusiastic about grabbing a paint brush or hammer than owner-occupants of dwellings which house two, three or four families. The bureau offered no explanation for the apparent difference in enthusiasm.

* * * *

IT POINTED OUT that the figure of $2.9 billion for do-it-yourself outlays understates this kind of work in relation to contract work. The reason is that the do-it-yourself outlays include only materials costs whereas the contract work outlays also includes labor. Add the value of the home owner's labor (what he could earn working for somebody else) and the value of do-it-yourself work is greater.

Do-it-yourself dollars were spent mainly for alterations and painting outside the home. Outside work was the only major category of improvements and repairs in which do-it-yourself expenditures—$636 million—exceeded contract or hired labor outlays, by $529 million.

* * * *

OUTSIDE WORK included building or walks and swimming pools, backyard patios, installing barbecues, putting up fences, grading land, etc.

Even more money was spent on do-it-yourself inside alterations—$724 million. But this was far less than the $1,917,000,000 for inside contract work. Handy homeowners spent $636 million on painting, nearly as much as the $849 million they paid painters. Allowing for the labor costs included in the latter sum it is probable that more inside painting was done by amateurs than by professionals in the one-to-four-family owner-occupied category of houses.

Lakewood East Sunshine Homes Appealing to Buyers

Location is one of the important considerations when selecting a home by home purchasers today, stated S. V. Hunsaker, prominent southland builder and developer.

This is one reason the Lakewood East Sunshine Homes have received better than average buyer acceptance stated Hunsaker. These homes are located only minutes to the prime metropolitan industrial area and within easy driving distance to all of the Southlands major resort and recreational spots.

* * * *

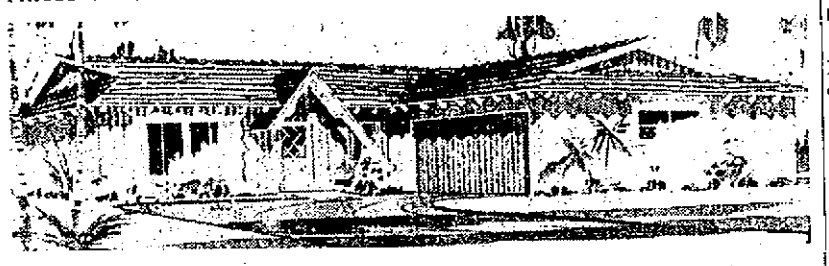

PRICED AT $16,595, with down payment of $195., home buyers may have immediate occupancy, according to Hunsaker.

Offering the buyer unusually convenient floor plans, Lakewood East Sunshine homes have three bedrooms, two full baths, and large two-car garage.

Kitchens are equipped with hood and exhaust fan, and disposal.

Specifications also include wall-to-wall carpet, vinyl tile floors, Formica counter tops, natural finish cabinets, and silent forced air heat.

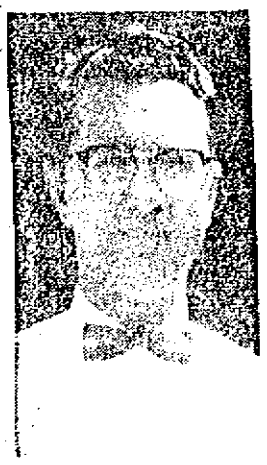

Home seekers are invited to inspect furnished models daily from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Centralia Road just west of Pioneer Blvd.

DISTINCTIVE ELEVATION

Homes such as this in Lakewood East Sunshine Homes have unusually convenient floor plans and distinctive exterior elevations.

DESIGNERS 'SHAPE UP' FOR FALL

Fashion 'World Series' Opens in New York City

By MARY ELLIS
I. P-T Fashion Editor

Whither the hemline? the waistline? the sleeve?

Which will score the biggest hit with Miss and Mrs. America—a curvy fall or throwbacks to the ricky-ticky twenties?

These are the questions that loom as 250 fashion reporters from all parts of the United States, Canada and a few foreign countries get set for week-long showings of fall-winter collections by the nation's big league designers.

IN THE LINE-UP will be styles by such all-time greats as Oleg Cassini, Ben Zuckerman, Ceil Chapman, Pauline Trigere, Ben Reig, Luis Estevez, Herbert Sondheim, Larry Aldrich and others.

Granted, only one woman in a thousand can afford to buy from the 31 fall collections which the New York Couture Group will introduce during Fashion Press Week, which begins today.

But the new style ideas created by these American haute couture designers set the trends. They influence what nearly every woman will wear tomorrow, how much she must pay and the kind of figure she will cut in her clothes.

THE PEEK PREVIEW of styles shown on this page indicates that fall fashion news is both bad and good for the 999 out of 1,000 women who usually pay less than $25 for a dress.

The bad? From what we've seen on the sidelines so far, new styles will be difficult to copy either by the most adept homemaker plagerists —OR by budget-priced fashion houses.

The good? The new flared fashion silhouette, in any adaptation, is far more flattering to the less-than-perfect figure than clothes have been in past seasons.

A HOME SEAMSTRESS was in great luck with the old sack dress fad that required no more than shoulder seams and a belt. And her budget was in good shape this spring and summer with fashionable, but easy-to-make sleeveless, collarless sheaths.

But for fall, it's a different story. As the week unfolds, the I.P-T will bring you the latest news from New York's semi-annual "world series" of fashion.

Follow the women's pages for what "looks" will score next season in the never-ending, always-exciting game of fashion.

Many cutaway jackets appear in new fall collections.

EVENING DRESS of olive green chiffon from Rosalie Macrini's fall-winter collection. Gently bloused top and sheath skirt are beaded with pink, green and gold. Pink satin sash ends in sweeping panels in back.

LOW-PLACED holster belt (above) is indicative of fall-winter Junior Sophisticates collection designed by Anne Klein. Shift sheath, an important look for next season, is of chamois colored wool with shirt sleeves.

SHIMMERING PLEATS, important trend for fall, score hit in theatre costume designed by Wilson Folmar for Edward Abbott collection. Of brown, gold and silver silk brocade, dress has low-seamed bodice.

PLAID IS FASHION news for both daytime and evening. Easily-shaped in beige and brown wool plaid, suit from Paul Parnes' collection has curved jacket, is scarfed with two-toned chiffon ascot.

They'll Dance in a Silver Wonderland

ALL THAT GLITTERS will be silver at Saturday dinner-dance at Wilton Hotel to benefit Carmelite Nuns. Among those who "count on" a big evening are (from left) Walter B. Havekorst, co-chairman; Mrs. Frank Sartain, Carmelite Auxiliary president; and Walter J. Hawkins, dance chairman.

Amid a wonderland of silver glitter, members of the Carmelite Nuns Auxiliary will hold their second annual benefit Silver Fantasy dinner dance next Saturday in the new California Room of the Wilton Hotel.

Beautiful baskets of flowers will fill the room and tall columns will be decorated in silver and copper tones. Beautifully gowned hostesses will greet guests, with auxiliary president Mrs. Frank Sartain heading the group.

* * * *

GENERAL chairman Walter J. Hawkins will be assisted by Walter Havekorst and Wayne Fitzgerald. Mrs. Fred Hayes is decorations chairman. Other committee heads are Mrs. Gertrude Ryan, hostesses, and Mrs. Horace Getterman, program.

Robert Tyo will serve as master of ceremonies for the gala event, which is open to the public. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Frank Schiavone.

* * * *

AMONG the many members who are planning predance cocktail parties are Messrs. and Mmes. Frank Sartain, W. L. Belcher, Louis Andriole, Walter Schlemmer, Donald Rice, W. G. Edmondson and Robert Prince.

Mr. and Mrs. David Carey will entertain a group of dance-goers from Orange County.

THE NEW MRS. Hillman was graduated from Wilson High School, Long Beach City College and San Francisco State College. She was a member of Mahabharata and Kassai at LBCC.

A white lace ballerina length gown was worn by the bride, with a short veil of illusion attached to her lace headdress. Attendants were Suzanne Toppen and Dr. James E. Bauer.

Following a garden reception for 200 guests the couple left for Brooks Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., where Dr. Hillman reports for duty at the School of Aviation Medicine. The bride has taught school for the past two years in Pico Rivera.

These suggestions could also double as gift possibilities if you're vacationing in your back yard, but still want to bear gifts to the departing traveler.

Under $1

There's a little pill case which holds three plastic bottles, each with a time dial to indicate when you take your next medicine. Actually, when you consider the Dramamine, aspirin, Bisodol, etc., these bottles would come in very handy.)

This, however, is $27.50, but consider all the fun you'll have!)

Now you may have worried about your diamond and ruby necklaces (congratulations), but this will take the furrows from your brow. A precious jewel carrying case in English morocco with colored suede lining has two zippered pockets and a ring role which unsnaps so you can slip on your favorite Cartier baubles.

PLANNING NOW FOR FALL

Civic Leaders Accept Key Chest Jobs

Mrs. Francis M. Lowry, Community Chest residential division chairman, has appointed seven vice chairmen for fall solicitation in the Chest area, it was revealed this week.

Chairman of the special gifts committee of the division will be Mrs. Llewellyn Bixby, who is holding the position for the second year. Mrs. Bixby is a former president of the Long Beach Day Nurseries, a past member of the Chest board of directors, and is on the board of Tichenor Clinic. She is a member of the Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, Alamitos Bay Garden Club, Museum Associates and the Junior League.

Responsibility for organization of teams in Lakewood has been accepted by Mrs. George Nye Jr., wife of the Lakewood mayor. With her experience in past campaigns as area general, colonel, and block worker, Mrs. Nye is familiar with all aspects of her new volunteer post. As a former Bluebird leader, she realizes the needs of Chest agencies, she reports. Presently she is serving as vice president of the Beta Alpha chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority. She has two daughters.

* * * *

MRS. LEON B. Sternberg will supervise organization of teams on the west side, where she served as an area general in last year's campaign. As a member of John Muir and Poly P-T.A.'s, Silverado Methodist Church, and Girl Scouts, she has many acquaintances in the western part of the city, and has been worker, captain and colonel in past Chest drives.

Mrs. John B. Merrell II has been asked to take charge of recruitment of leadership for the North Long Beach and Los Cerritos-Bixby Knolls section. She is affiliated with the Junior League, St. Martha's Guild of Saint Luke's Church, and Long Beach Auxiliary to the Southern California Symphony Association. Like her co-workers, she has done block solicitation, and been both a captain and colonel in the residential drive.

Mrs. Julius Molina has been placed in charge of the two central areas of Long Beach. Because of the growing preponderance of apartment houses in these sections, the number of teams that will be required has grown according to plans laid out. Mrs. Molina is a member of Assistance League and the Dental Auxiliary.

* * * *

"SINCE I WAS born here, my interest in the success of this concerted effort to improve my home city is natural," Mrs. Molina declares. For a number of years she has served in various capacities on the Chest drives.

Mrs. Harry Krusz, although a comparative newcomer to the city, is already a member of the Chest's Family Counseling Service board of directors, as a continuation of her interest in welfare and Junior League work developed in Lincoln, Neb., and Winston-Salem, N. C. She will be in charge of eastside residential teams.

Los Altos divisions and northeastern groups will be under the supervision of Mrs. Bruce E. Mitchell. Volunteer work with Emerson P-T.A., Children's Benefit League and the Long Beach Junior League has been combined with her home duties as a mother of four children. She was one of the team captains in last fall's Chest drive.

FALL DATE

Date of Nov. 25 for wedding of Melinda Louise Ceniceros and Richard LeRoy Watson is announced by her parents, the Robert F. Ceniceros, Long Beach. He is son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Watson, Paramount. She was graduated from Lakewood High School. He is alumnus of Paramount High.

Engagement News Told

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gregory of Long Beach, formerly of Twenty-nine Palms, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jacqueline Lee, to Edward Gene Thornton, son of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Winkler of Long Beach.

The bride-elect was graduated from Polytechnic High School and attended Lawton Dental Assistant School in Beverly Hills.

The wedding is scheduled for Sept. 2.

DEAR ABBY

He's Some Mathematician

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago my husband put me on an allowance of $15 a week. That was to feed and clothe myself and our two children. Today we have eight children, and I am still getting $15 a week. I just can't make ends meet on this, but my husband isn't able to understand it. How can I beat some sense into his head?—ALWAYS BROKE.

ABBY

DEAR ALWAYS: It's too bad some men don't add as well as they multiply. Write out your budget and hand it to your husband. If he thinks eight children and a wife can be fed and clothed on $60 a month, invite him to try it.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I notice on television and in the movies, when a man kisses a woman, they both close their eyes. I don't see any sense in this. Who made up that rule? When I kiss a man I always keep my eyes open. I look at him while he is kissing me, and his eyes are open, too. Can you answer this question if you don't think it's too stupid?—OPEN EYES.

DEAR OPEN: The question is far from stupid. Don't worry about whether the man has his eyes open or closed, but when a girl kisses a man, she would be wise to keep at least ONE eye open.

DEAR ABBY: The lady across the alley from us chains her dog up to the garage at 6 a. m. and leaves him there all day until she gets home at night. Now what would you do, Abby, if you were chained up like this all day long? You would bark, of course. And that is what the dog does. He barks.

I have put cotton in my ears, but then I realized that I couldn't hear the telephone, so I had to stop that. I can't close my windows, because I love the fresh air and dislike a stuffy house. I have never had trouble with my neighbors before. I am renting this house so don't know if I have the right to complain. The lady with the dog owns her home. Have you a suggestion?—FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR.

DEAR NEIGHBOR: The woman with the dog may own her home, but she doesn't own the block. Her dog is disturbing the peace. And it would appear she is abusing the dog to boot. Talk to her about the disturbance her dog is creating. If she doesn't do something about it, the police will.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LIVING MODERN": Yes, decent people still get married first. Your young friend has some very squirrely ideas. Tell him to go climb a tree.

* * * *

What's bothering you? For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Newlyweds Reside Here

Making their home in Long Beach following a honeymoon at Malibu are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dayton Snow (Gloria Ann Moyer) whose recent evening wedding took place in First Methodist Church, San Pedro.

The new Mrs. Snow is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Moyer of Wilmington. She wore white chiffon and lace and carried white orchids for the ceremony.

Mrs. Burton Ross was matron of honor and Flora Dalglish the bridesmaid. Ushering the 150 guests were Al Poston, Howard Gregg and Stuart Harrison.

THE HUNT AND Find, Instantaneous Reservations Anywhere Airline has done it again. Larry and Betty Hunt and their three children, Sharon, Pam and Jim, returned this week from another of their trips to anywhere aboard their beautiful Cessna. With ol' skyhawk Larry piloting they air-hopped across the country visiting in New York and Atlantic City, etc., etc. — in Boston and Quebec, etc., etc. — finally returning via Carson City to drop in on Betty's Dad. But gently!

WHAT PRICE glory. Fran and Ollie Connor have a prize-winning dog, "Smokey," who placed first in American-bred dogs at the recent dog show here. Now, not that he wasn't associating with the very cream of the crop, mind you, but just the same this pedigreed fellow developed an allergy right after the show (frankly, it's just a plain, old uncomfortable itch). Now it's shots, shots, shots. It isn't only people who lead dogs' lives, obviously.

PROGRESS REPORT. Bob Dilday, who has been under wraps ever since his ticker taped back "slow up," is making like getting back into the swim of things. Wife, June, tells me he cruised over to Catalina, courtesy of son, Burr, at the helm, last holiday weekend. Feeling none the worse for wear, he and June even stopped in at the Yacht Club for dinner on the Fourth.

SOUTHERN STYLE Americanese, as it is spoken in Louisiana, is a language all its own. Friends may have to resort to a Berlitz course (they teach everything else, why not Southian?) to understand Clara Andrews for the next few weeks. Clara's mother, Josephine (Mrs. Heartwell Oliver) Cook is here for a visit from her home deep in unowhere with another daughter, Sara Moffett of Pensacola, Fla. Naturally, other daughter, Jo Mary Thomason (Clara's sister from L.A.) is here as often as she can travel the freeway. As is the way with accents, Clara has reverted to former pronunciation habits just as if she'd never been away from home. Ah tchul y'all, it's sawmthin' to heah wehen those I'il, ol' Cohk gals get togethah.

ZEROING IN on the old home town Tuesday will be Charlotte (Cox) Greenwood who writes she'll be here for a six-day visit from current bailiwick, Morristown, N. J. A little skimpy with her information, she mentioned she had a luncheon date Thursday with Barbara Ver Planck, who might be able to give you more of the scoop.

THE DRISCOLLS are getting themselves into such a state! Specifically, Curtyne and Gene, with daughters, Mimi and Sheila, left Saturday for the 49th. They're driving to Vancouver, then will take the boat up the inner passage to Stewart, Alaska, and back. Then on the 21st, Cecelia and Pat Driscoll, Gene's parents, will fly to the 50th for a 17-day Hawaiian holiday.

For Curtyne and Gene the trip won't be complete without a stopover in Seattle to visit her sister and husband, Gini and Harry Ironmonger.

COMPLETE WITH camping gear, Ann and Larry Ruff are on their way to see an old friend—Europe. They planned to pick up a Volkswagen camper in Germany and then go summer touring for a reunion with many favorite places.

DISCOURAGED AT looking only, but never having time to enjoy their large, lovely yard (a place frequented only by the gardener), Elizabeth and Claire Pike are getting ready to move away from the reproachful stares of flowers and shrubs at 3833 Pine Ave. On the 20th they'll leave—crates, baggage and pans and pots (but none planted)—for their new duplex property at 3698 California Ave.

If residents think their new neighbor is kind of "flighty," they're right. Elizabeth, district president for some 2,700 Zetas and 22 alumnae chapters, is in the air by jet or their own Cessna more than she's at home. Her territory includes California, Nevada, Utah and Hawaii and her term runs another two years.

THERE WASN'T anything slow except the beginning about the kind of time the Clocks had over this long last holiday weekend. Harry and Frances, Gayle and Phil, Ralph and Eddie Clock scoured the seas for albacore aboard Henry's sleek cruiser, Tick Tock. First day out, pleasant but no fish. Sunday they boated two of the prized sea critters. Monday—22! Then the women decided they'd had enough and missed the big fun. Tuesday the men, with Jerry McWhinney along, hit the jackpot bringing back something like 38 big ones.

Expert fisherman, Henry is convinced that scattered schools of these albacore will be as close as the 14-mile bank by now (or earlier).

JUST CALL Gladys The Golden Crail. She and John motored up to Santa Barbara for a few days' vacation and when they returned she was a beautiful sun-touched hue.

CHAOS — financial and emotional. Beth and Jack Hannaman took their 10-year-old son, Chris, down to Seal Beach on the Fourth to let him provide a show with a full box of fireworks he bought out of his own savings. Savoring the moment, Chris began with a sparkler. This "first event" was misdirected by the show director into the treasure chest itself. One hectic finale, all smoke, muffled bangs and thumps—then all was quiet again on the western beach front.

* * * *

THE CALYPSO rhythm just got to him and the next thing you know he's out there on the dance floor doing the "meringue" — and stealing the show from the professionals. "Him" being Kelly Coultrop, Darlene and John's crackerjack of a butch hair-dond two-year-old . . . and the time and place being during the main entertainment at Long Beach Yacht Club's big, informal and joyous Fourth of July family party. Ah, show biz.

Guests that night of Shirley and Bill Gillis were Lorraine and Harold Morgan, just back from Samoa after a 2½-year stint over there. Also noted in the big throng were Nancy and Myrl Ott with Bindy and John Vosburg, Bea and Norman Scott, Iris and "Rusty" Hicks, Alma and Lee Henley (she in the most uninhibited pink hat, so big she claimed "no one can see what I'm doing back of it." It's a sun-tent hat or a cahana chapeau or something.) Woosh. Lots more to observe and discuss—but just fresh out of space.

They're Crazy Over Horses and Hospitals

Members of Community Hospital Auxiliary have just learned that they're crazy over horses and respectfully hope you are the same. They learned this week, to their glee and excitement, that they have secured a top notch horse show to sponsor as their main fund raiser. The affair, to take place at Los Alamitos Race Track in September, will be a two-day event under auspices of the American Horse Show Association with headquarters in New York. Strictly top stall.

Harold Dakan is handling registration for equines through the track. Providing the "horse sense" for the auxiliary gals are member Lee Clark and her husband, Pete, a horse show judge. Betty (Mrs. D. J.) Daniels is off to a galloping start as chairman of people's arrangements. Aileen (Mrs. Steve) Wetmore, auxiliary president, has a hand on the reins, too.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Bury Sr.

John Burys Observe 50th Anniversary

They have not disclosed their formula on how to live together successfully and happily for fifty years, but are prepared to when they celebrate their golden wedding anniversary, say Mr. and Mrs. John L. Bury Sr.

The actual date of their wedding was July 11, 1911, but they will celebrate the big event next Sunday at an open house at their home, 2191 San Anselme Ave., to which all their friends are invited.

* * * *

A POSSIBLE clue to their compatibility could be the fact that after Bury's retirement two years ago the couple began travel by trailer. They've covered approximately 10,000 miles, mainly in the Western states, but have visited all but the far Eastern seaboard states.

The Burys were married at Van West, Ohio. They lived for 25 years in Jackson, Mich., and came to Long Beach in 1942. Bury was engaged in the plumbing and heating business until 1948 and in real estate until his retirement.

Bury is a charter member of Belmont Shore Masonic Lodge and Mrs. Bury of Belmont Shore OES.

HAIRDO DEFLATED; ALPHABET INCREASED

Lady Reporter Joins Navy - - for a Day

By MARY ELLIS

Navy destroyers are death on HD (hairdos), HH (high heels) and SFS (snug-fitting skirts).

In fact, it's safe to say this male fortress of ships and alphabetical jargon is one not likely to be invaded by today's aggressive females. Our enemies either.

I say this from first-hand experience.

To sample life aboard a Navy "tin can" (that's what they call destroyers), I joined the Navy (for a day) and took to sea on the USS DeHaven.

And while my bubble hairdo drooped and my heels plunged through openings in the deck, my faith in our country's defense soared . . . and soared . . . and soared.

* * * *

FEELING completely at sea (in more ways than one) on this floating city of strength, I was part of a PR hospitality contingent comprised of several area WAVES and a group of Navy Leaguers.

For most, it was their first adventure at sea on such a hard-hitting, war-dedicated hulk of iron and steel.

For me, it was the first time aboard anything more ocean-going than an inflated innertube or double-sail Pollywog.

So when Ens. Jerry Cooper, a towering young Naval Academy grad with ASW (Anti-Submarine Warfare) training, took me in tow to explain the whys and wherefores of destroyer equipment, he never had it so bad.

* * * *

GENERATING more fog than a winter in London, I tried to understand how homing torpedoes can search out a target after fired and why they don't explode unless the target is hit. . .

Or how a captain can steer the ship without seeing out, how radar can record everything not in sight and how sailors remember all that alphabet stuff.

Now, take DASH, for instance. If I took my notes right, that's a FRAM improvement to help make the DeHaven's CIC (Combat Information Center) as up-to-now as a CIC on a DD can be.

Boiled down, it means the DeHaven can track down an enemy PDQ — and on the QT!

* * * *

FOR THE records, FRAM is the Navy's Fleet Rehabilitation and Modernization program, which the DeHaven recently underwent.

The DeHaven was commissioned in March, 1944, the second ship to bear the name of Lt. Cmdr. E. J. DeHaven, USN, an early arctic explorer. (The first was sunk at Guadalcanal in 1943.)

The present ship, a true workhorse of the Seventh Fleet, has fought in virtually every battle in the Pacific since it was commissioned. This greyhound of the seas participated in naval warfare against the Japanese and had completed four Korean war tours by cessation in 1954.

Valiant and battle-scarred, the ship was modernized last year with the latest radar, long range sonar and anti-submarine weapons — including those aforementioned homing torpedoes and DASH (here we go again . . . Destroyer Anti-Submarine Helicopters).

Ensign Cooper pointed out that the modernization, accomplished for $4 million, will prolong the life of the DeHaven from five to eight years. Its initial cost was $8 million. (Today a new destroyer soaks up 35 million Yankee dollars.)

* * * *

TO SHOW OFF some of the new equipment for a bit of play-war excitement, Cmdr. W. Calhoun Singletary, commanding officer, staged a SUM (surface-to-underwater missile) demonstration.

From an on-deck launching station, seven projectiles (destroyermen call them "hedgehogs") were fired in a thundering moment that shook up the fish and the visiting "sailors."

During real-war operations, each launching station will shower 24 missiles . . . up and into the water . . . to seek out and deal death blows to enemy submarines.

* * * *

THEN WE saw Oscar rescued in a man-overboard demonstration. Oscar is a stuffed dummy who's been rescued nobody-knows-how-many-times during his tour of duty with the DeHaven.

Even picking up Oscar is done with instruments, so exacting that the ship can circle back to the identical spot where Oscar went overboard—even in the black of night.

Which must be reassuring to men aboard — since, all told, the DeHaven can steam 12,000 miles at 15 knots without refueling or replenishing stores.

It's truly a city afloat with its own public works (for generating electricity and filtering water), mess hall, sick bay, barber shop, commissary, laundry and recreational facilities.

BUT MOST of all, it's the "population" which impresses me—the 15 officers and 250 enlisted men who man the ship. They perform a multitude of different tasks, are efficient and positive thinkers with strong confidence in their professional ability.

It reassures one that, with men like these, the seas will be kept free for the United States and her allies.

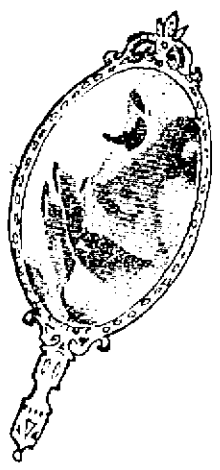

Congrats, CINCPACFLT (Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet): Your men seem to know their jobs—from ABC to XYZ!

STAGECOACH 'HOLDUP' IN A FRONTIER TOWN

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

On our recent vacation among the beautiful Teton Mountains of Wyoming we took several auto trips with Stan Boyle, oldest bus driver in the region. "Stan," who grew up in these mountains, has been driving the roads since he was a boy of 13. A jovial host, he regaled us on our trip to lovely Jenny Lake with a condensed retelling of the novel, "The Virginian," a hero of these parts.

One evening, in his own car and without charge, he drove us through rugged terrain to "Two Ocean Lake," so called because its waters seep out on one side to the Pacific Ocean and on the other, to the Atlantic. The flaring sunset of orange and gold lighted up the beautiful fir and pine-clasped lake, as silver and pewter streaks of light played upon the placid waters. Fish jumped high and busy beavers hurried through the waters, heads well out. What a thing of beauty to remember!

WILD FLOWERS blooming profusely in the meadows of this Grand Teton country are another of nature's extravagances. Whole fields of the red-orange Indian paintbrush and scarlet gilia vie with the brilliant yellow balsam-root. Our own lovely lupine was hard to distinguish from the low blue larkspur. There were even deep blue forget-me-nots peeping up through the green grass.

Coming back to earth from all this paradise of nature's wonders, we drove, on another occasion, to the little frontier town of Jackson, little changed from the days of the wild and woolly west. During the summer evenings the square is lined with tourists, gathered to witness a "live" stagecoach holdup. As it comes clattering into town, the gun shots of the villain frighten the horses who rear up and whinny; the pretty school teacher is dragged out and whisked away by the masked bandit on his fast steed. But the sheriff's posse comes galloping into town just in time; the bandit is caught, a noose is put around his neck and as he is being hanged to a tree, a rifle shot puts a speedy end to the show and to the culprit. It is all such fun.

THERE IS warm hospitality in a land where mountains and sky meet. A new-found friend took us to Coulter Bay, where Jackson Lake is wide, with heavily wooded shores. Here there are camp sites, log cabins, a cafeteria seating 200 and even an open air theater and a recreation hall. What an out-of-door paradise for a family vacation.

As we motored leisurely back to Jackson Lake Lodge we espied a herd of buffalo grazing close to the fence enclosure. We watched enthralled as these mighty-headed and heavily-bearded scions of the plains, feasting on the lush grass, moved slowly and steadily forward, the mothers followed by their young. Many deer and elk loped across the meadows as we watched and the snow-white trumpet swans flew overhead to their resting place on the water's edge.

For this glorious sojourn, we and many others must be forever endebted to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who gave not only 33,000 acres of this fabulous land, known now as The Grand Teton National Park, but who also gave $8 million to build Jackson Lake Lodge.

Joanna Hodges

L.B. Pianist to Play Bach Festival Concert

Pianist Joanna Hodges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hodges, 1053 Cartagena St., will be featured artist in an 11 a.m. concert July 19 at the Carmel Bach Festival.

In keeping with the 18th century tradition of the festival, she will play Mozart's "Sonata No. 16, K 570"; Haydn's "F Minor Andante and Variations"; and Bach's "Toccata and Fugue in E Minor."

The concert is a prelude to her third European tour. She will leave July 31 for appearances in Milan, Bucharest, Vienna, Stuttgart, Hamburg and Cologne.

* * * *

AFTER HER concert in Hamburg in 1959 the West German newspaper, "Die-welt" devoted an editorial to her music, praising the "rare spiritual quality" of her performance.

"I love to play," says this poised, attractive young woman simply. "It is exciting to perform in Austria and Germany where it is the custom, if the audience likes you, for people to stomp their feet and come running to the stage after you play."

Joanna finds an increasing interest in music in America and believes recorded and "edited" performances are no substitute for live concerts.

* * * *

SHE BEGAN her piano studies in Long Beach with Jane Stanley and later studied with Mae Gilbert Reese in Los Angeles. Other teachers were Rudolf Firkusny in Aspen, Colo.; Bruno Seidlhofer and Richard Hauser in Vienna, and John Crown at USC. Joanna received her bachelor of music degree at Los Angeles Conservatory of Music before she first toured Europe in 1957.

She will return from her forthcoming tour to play with the Kern Philharmonic Orchestra in Bakersfield Dec. 4. It is likely she will enter the Tschaikowsky competition next April in Moscow.

"Music is a wonderful universal language," she says. "It reaches all peoples of the earth; it is an international ambassador."

New Gallery Opening Doors

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Opening today of the B-Q Art Gallery, 3920 E. Fourth St., is additional proof that residents in the Long Beach area are interested in buying as well as viewing art.

For 15 years, Harry Quinn, owner of the new gallery, had a picture framing business at 3714 E. Broadway. To show off his product to best advantage, he began displaying original paintings—framed—in his windows.

So many people came in to buy the originals that Quinn eventually had an art gallery with a picture framing business in the back of the shop.

* * * *

DURING the three weeks that Quinn has been preparing his new, more spacious quarters, 25 customers have bought paintings in the not-yet-opened gallery.

Today the doors will be formally opened to the public with a reception from 4 to 9 p. m.

In addition to works of more than 50 artists from France, Italy, Holland and the United States, there will be a one-man show of oils, caseins and ink drawings by the local artist, Forrest O. Hooper.

On exhibit are paintings which range from a realistic sunset-on-the-Pacific to portraits, impressionistic landscapes, subjective clowns, surrealistic compositions and abstracts.

William F. LaVallee, gallery director, will present a new one-man show each month in his "Artist of the Month" on View" series.

* * * *

FRIENDS of the Museum will serve refreshments today from 2 to 4 p. m. at Long Beach Museum of Art at the formal opening of July displays. Exhibiting this month are Robert Carty and Eugene Wallin, who have one-man shows, and Ron Boise who has a display of metal sculpture. Works available for rental are in the upstairs west gallery; transactions will be conducted during reception hours.

THE EXCITING "Arts of Thailand" exhibit will open Wednesday at Los Angeles County Museum in Exposition Park.

Displayed for the first time abroad, the treasures have been assembled from the Royal Collections, the National Museum in Bangkok, ancient Buddhist monasteries and six other national collections in the kingdom.

Valued at $40,000,000, the exhibition includes more than 300 pieces of sculpture, paintings, ceramics, illuminated manuscripts, silk, crystal and decorative gold and silver objects.

Organized by Indiana University, the show has been seen at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, and Toledo Museum of Art. After the Los Angeles showing it will go to Seattle, San Francisco and Honolulu; the tour is under patronage of the President of the United States and the King of Thailand. Admission is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children. Hours are 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., daily except Monday.

* * * *

KARL SEETHALER, director of Long Beach Academy of Art, First St. and Atlantic Ave., is a jubilant man. Two months ago he suffered a coronary thrombosis; this week he has been told by his doctor that he can resume teaching.

He will be assisted in his summer courses by Bruno Palacios, John Quitman and Frank Woelfel. The three, and Jack Rutherford, kept academy classes open while Karl was convalescing.

Karl has more than 200 of his own works on display at his residence-studio, 45 Hermosa Ave. and will be happy to arrange private viewing hours.

* * * *

JIMMY OREN GREEN'S collection of contemporary Japanesse prints and ceramics, and prints from Jack Gotschall's collection go on view today at Palos Verdes Art Gallery. There will be a preview presentation and tea, to which the public is invited, from 3:30 to 5 p. m.

* * * *

MARIE SNOW, Downey artist now exhibiting in South Gate Art Gallery, 9829 Walnut St., South Gate Park, will be in the gallery to greet viewers from 1 to 4 p. m. today.

She has had many one-man shows and has received awards from Pasadena Art Institute, Los Angeles City Hall Tower Gallery, Friday Morning Club, Whittier, Greek Theatre, Ebell of Los Angeles and Ebell of Laguna.

* * * *

PRESENTATION of $6,000 in cash prizes and awards will be made today at 3 p. m. at Los Angeles ninth annual All-City Art Festival in Barnsdall Park. There will be a continuous program of music, dance and arts and crafts demonstrations from 11 a. m. until the show closes at 7 p. m.

Zill Exhibition Shows 'Artist in Transition'

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Betsy Zill's work which will be shown at the Veltman Gallery for the next two weeks is a fascinating opportunity to catch an artist in a moment of transition. "Bremerton Moon" is the only work showing her previous interest in ships; "Slow Game," an ink drawing and wash, is the only one with exploding prismatic shapes.

"Leaf From the Notebook of Hammurabi" keys a new theme. Four casein works in blues and oranges abstract from the cuneiform tablet of the ancient lawgiver, while other works incorporate lettering. Mrs. Zill is an artist of compelling originality.

* * * *

FRAN SOLDINI School of Art will exhibit at the Ruth Bach Library through August. Twenty-six artists represent as many styles and techniques. Media range from oil glaze on underpainting as practiced in the Renaissance to modern encaustic—baked crayola on beeswax.

This minuscule feminine dynamo has the ability to guide her students to finding and, expressing their own basic truths. The only Soldini mark is, perhaps the prevalence of harmonies of muted colors.

Ages range from 12-year-old Carl Pierce to many who are "over 29." Variation on the same underseas still-life, for example, go from Carl's lovely watercolor to Helen Wilson's duco version, "Beneath the Sea," in which wrinkled drying of the thickly-applied paint gives the interesting effect of brain coral.

Jack Estridge works in the direct technique of contour drawing. The exhibit shows the many ways there are to make a picture, as well as the variety and high quality of individual expressions.

Orange County Philharmonic Plans Concert

Orange County Philharmonic Society will present "Summer Symphonic Music," its seventh annual summer concert, Aug. 26 in Irvine Bowl, Laguna Beach.

Frieda Belinfante will conduct the 60-piece Orange County Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. Guest artists will be announced later.

Proceeds will support the society's county-wide musical program to be given next season.

Overall chairman is Mrs. Frank Foster of Anaheim. Members of the coordinating committee are Urban Beh, chairman; Clifford Hakes, president of Orange County Philharmonic; Mmes. William H. Mead, Lloyd L. Aubert and Moreland Leithold, Dr. Lloyd P. Smith; H. Verne Woodruff and Robert Guggenheim Jr.

Bowl Bills to Feature Costa, Arrau

The second week of Symphonies Under the Stars programs in Hollywood Bowl, will feature soprano Mary Costa Tuesday, and pianist Claudio Arrau Thursday.

Erich Leinsdorf will conduct Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in works by Mozart, Strauss, Prokofieff and Brahms.

Miss Costa will sing arias by Mozart and Brahms. Arrau will play Brahms' "Concerto No. 2 in B Flat."

* * * *

SATURDAY night's Pops event will be "Gershwin Night" with Andre Previn as soloist and Andre Kostelanetz conducting.

Previn, making his ninth Bowl appearance, will be heard in "Concerto in F" and "Rhapsody in Blue." Kostelanetz will conduct the Hollywood Bowl Pops Orchestra in a medley of hits, "Gershwin on Broadway."

Belafonte Opening Set at Greek

Harry Belafonte will open a three-week engagement Monday at Greek Theatre, Los Angeles, with performances scheduled nightly, except Sundays, at 8:30.

New to the show is stylistic South African songstress Mirian Makeba. Also featured will be the singing of the Vocal V and the accompaniments of Millard Thomas, Ernest Calabria, Daniel Barrajanos and Norman Keenan.

Ralph Hunter will direct the Greek Theatre Orchestra for the show which is produced by Phil Stein and staged by Ralph Alswang.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Insures Flavor With Curry

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent-Press-Telegram Food Editor

He declares he holds the undisputed record of traveling more miles and seeing less than the whole Navy en masse. Chef of the Week Orville A. Rundle sailed the South Seas through two wars—World War II and the Korean skirmish — but on ships which rarely docked. With his travels behind him, he now lives in Long Beach, and "general manages" the New York Life Insurance Company's Long Beach general office.

Born in Fullerton, Neb., Rundle remained there until he was 18, then joined the Navy. After six years of cruising, he returned to the States and entered Junior College at Fort Dodge, Iowa. During summer vacations, he enhanced the exchequer by packeting garden seed for Northrup King & Co.

Freezing through two winters in Iowa, which followed his six balmy years in the South Seas, proved too much for Rundle, so he started looking for some place where a guy could keep warm. He enrolled at Arizona University at Tucson, graduating in '51 with a BS degree in business administration.

* * * *

HIS STAY in Arizona had its "ups" and its "downs." The "up" came when he married in his junior year—the down part came when Uncle Sam nudged him again and he was sent to Korea.

It was in June of '52 that he returned to the States and joined the New York Life Insurance Co. as field underwriter at La Mesa, eventually becoming district manager at San Diego.

Three years later Rundle was sent to Santa Barbara to open up a new sales office; and two years after that, to Riverside where he headed up the new sales office in San Bernardino. The home office summoned him in 1960, and he went to New York as a management assistant. April of this year, having completed all company training courses, he came to Long Beach as general manager.

A member of the AF&AM order of Masons, Rundle is an elder in the Presbyterian Church of Riverside (they haven't transferred their membership to Long Beach, as yet). He formerly belonged to both the La Mesa and Santa Barbara Lions Clubs. He currently is active in the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce and the Sales Executives Club.

* * * *

THE RUNDLES can boast a tailor-made and interesting family. After several years of marriage, they adopted Mark, now almost six. Two years later they adopted Ann, now three. A year-and-half ago, Peter, their very own little boy arrived, and come October, "Pete" will be joined by his own little sister (they hope).

Sailing, fishing, golfing and "beaching" with the younguns are on a par with his fondness for hunting. In that, believe it or not, even the cold doesn't bother him. But perhaps 63 pheasant made up for some of the discomfort his party endured while hunting in Aberdeen, S. D. last January. The snow was car-top high.

Our "chef" has a terrific sense of humor—is "hepped" on rearranging the furniture, and has spent years switching the tops on salt and pepper shakers. "There's always too much salt and not enough pepper," says he.

ORVILLE A. RUNDLE

Please note, however, that in his Veal Curry Casserole he uses only a "dash" of pepper.

VEAL CURRY CASSEROLE

- 3 lbs. cubed veal (use frozen cutlets if fresh veal not available)
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- 1¼ cup milk
- 1½ to 2 tblsp curry powder
- Dash of pepper
- Pinch EACH thyme and marjoram
- 1 cup chopped Brazil nuts

Saute veal cubes in butter. Add chopped onion and brown. Place in casserole.

Pour soup into skillet in which veal and onions have been browned. Add milk, curry powder, dash of pepper, thyme and marjoram. Mix thoroughly and heat. Add Brazil nuts. Pour over meat in casserole and bake in a 350° oven for 45 minutes.

Serve with brown rice to which currants have been added, Mandarin Orange Sour Cream Salad and tiny green peas to which nutmeg has been added in addition to other seasoning.

Mothers of Twins Meet

Twins' Mothers Club will meet Thursday at Eldorado Park to hear a speaker on twin problems. Members of the club will participate in a panel discussion, among them Mrs. Roger Milliron, mother of triplets, and Mrs. Gilbert Heath who has twin boys and is herself a twin.

Further information can be obtained from Mrs. Thomas Spence. All mothers of twins or triplets are invited.

Oswald Jacoby

'Cinches' Often Fail

To wind up the week, I will come up with one of the greatest opening leads ever made. The hand is similar to yesterday's except that the result is the opposite.

Sherman Stearns, another old-time expert whose name appears on most of the major trophies, sat West.

North and South were playing a fairly well recognized convention. The jump raise of partner's opening two bid shows trump support and a horrible hand.

Hence, when North jumped to four hearts and South went right to seven, Sherman could mark South with just about the hand he actually held, a heart suit headed by ace, king and no side losers.

* * * *

SHERMAN knew something else about South. He was a strict percentage player and would never finesse for a queen with nine trumps unless he assumed a sure thing.

With all this in mind Sherman had no problem with his opening lead. He put the deuce of hearts on the table and hoped.

Everything worked out perfectly. East produced the jack of trumps. South won, thought a while, cashed the ace of diamonds, ruffed his small diamond to get to dummy, led a heart and finessed. Sherman made his queen and set the hand.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

To Wait Is to Waste

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've just graduated from high school, and already I feel like a has-been.

Lots of the girls I knew are engaged or getting married but quick, some of them are planning on college, others are just sitting by same as me, waiting—but waiting for what?

Most of the boys I knew are getting jobs, going into the service, or planning on college. Dates don't flow readily. Last Saturday night was a real gala, when two other girls and I took in a movie . . . alone.

My family is willing to send me to business school, but I'm not interested. Right now I'm in the mood to snag a man and grow up quick. —ANGELA.

DEAR ANGELA:

If you want to snag a man then stop that waiting, waiting, waiting stuff. Get yourself in circulation, dear girl, even if you circulate in a new group in new surroundings.

What about a summer job — except you should have been after that months ago. And as for a business course, don't be downright foolish and turn down the chance. Shorthand, typing, etc., can help anybody, in ANY job, with the possible exception of manual labor — and I doubt that's your forte.

Your time is your own, Angela. Wait it out and you waste it. — M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

When I married my husband I was 32 years old and he was 25. He said age didn't matter, love mattered. Well, now I'm 45 years old and he is 38.

He constantly tells me a woman is old when she passes 40, and that a man is still young until he's 50. Guess somewhere along the way he forgot to count the heartbeats and remembered only how to add the years. —OLD AND OUT-OF-DATE

DEAR OLD AND OUT:

Not that you are! Listen, if you feel young and act young you ARE young. Don't let this smug youngster of 38 talk a blooming loss of 45 into senility. — M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What do you do when your wife persists in sticking cards on the bathroom mirror—which I'm bound to note when I shave of a morning—to the effect: "Tomorrow is my birthday. I love yellow roses." Or, "Three days until our anniversary. Has anyone made reservations at such and a restaurant?"

Or, "Only two more weeks 'til Christmas and I'm dying for a red leather week-end bag."

Or, "Tuesday is Valentine's Day, and I adore Psmythe's chocolates."

Dig it? I never get a chance to pick a present, and this way I never get credit for remembering. — ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED:

Why don't you beat her to it with earlier notes, "I know Wednesday is your birthday and your present is already bought." And, in addition, give her the similar treatment: "Tomorrow is Father's Day and I want an electric razor."

Laguna Beach's Phenomenon in Art

By Verner C. Beck

A FEW YEARS AGO a well-known writer was invited to visit Laguna Beach's Festival of Arts and Pageant of the Masters. He publicly proclaimed that he didn't think there was anything in the little seaside village that would interest him to the extent of making a special trip to the West Coast.

However, he came, and saw. His account of the Pageant of the Masters with its incidental display of 200 booths showing the work of local artists and handcraft workers was summed up by him as "An All-American Phenomenon."

This summer after the Festival of Arts has run its 30-day course—from July 15 through Aug. 13—this "All-American Phenomenon" will probably take (Continued on Page Seven)

BECAUSE

Likens are craftsmen in this field. They design each patio cover with the architectual plan of the house in mind.

Likens use only the finest aluminum on posts and understructures. No steel here. They know that steel and aluminum do not blend in beach areas.

OUR COVER

In the world of art, vision is a tool of the trade. But it is doubtful that even the most enthusiastic of the small handful of artists who hung a few paintings on a side street fence years ago could then envision the scope of Laguna Beach's Festival of Arts and Pageant of the Masters of today. As the years passed by, Laguna folk enlisted in an absorbing community endeavor that will climax again in 30 days of happy adventure with the drawing of the first curtain July 15. Visitors will come from far and near to join with Laguna in celebration. Southland today pays tribute to art-by-the-sea with it's cover—and more about Laguna on Page 7.

NEXT WEEK

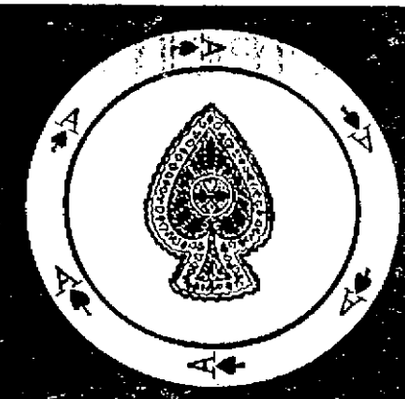

The Avalon of today is a far cry from the Catalina Island town at the turn of the century, but this does not mean it was not a lively spot for visitors, even then. In fact, 60 years ago, Avalon already had blossomed as a resort (and very popular) with a variety of interesting diversions. Historian Maymie R. Krythe tells the interesting story next week in a Southland feature, "Fun on Catalina—1900 Style."

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: We would like genealogy on NORTON—C. N., Mrs. G. R., Long Beach; Mrs. L. M., Westminster.

C.N., G.R., L.M.: NORTON is traced to Theobald de Ryngville of French Normandy who migrated to England and settled at the town of King's Norton, Worcestershire, about 1066. King's Norton represented "The King's North-Estate." Progeny of Theobald de Ryngville assumed the town name Norton as their own, replacing their old French name. Other descendants procured a large manorial estate in Bedfordshire in the 1400s. More than 40 coats-of-arms are held by various family branches. The shield of the Nortons of King's Norton has three silver seashells on a diagonal stripe between two black rampant lions on a silver shield. John Norton of England came to America in 1635 and was a noted early New England church pastor.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give genealogy on PATTISHALL—Mrs. T. P., Torrance.

T. P.: PATTISHALL originated as an English geographical description. The 13th century source phrase was Pates-Hulle, located in Northamptonshire, deciphered as "Patrick's Hill." Patrick was from the Latin word "patricius" meaning "noble one." Old Bedfordshire parchments of 1273 list John de Pateshulle, a primary recorded forebear. The Pattishall coat-of-arms has a black stripe between three blue crescents on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain McKRILL.—J. C., Paramount.

J. C.: McKRILL is from Antrim, Ireland. A thousand years ago the source, MacFhearghail, revealed "Sons of super-valor," a very complimentary designation. The ancient Gaelic clan name was respelled dialectically as MacKerrell, MacKrell, then MacKrill.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you analyze BLANCHARD.—A. B., Long Beach; D. B., Los Alamitos.

A. B., D. B., BLANCHARD originated in France, but many descendants migrated to Britain in the 12th and 13th centuries. In both countries this name began as "BLANCHARD," an ancient soldier name meaning "Blond-bold one." Blanchards were recorded in Lancashire, England, as early as 1332. Their coat-of-arms has a gold chevron between two gold coins and a gold griffin head on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: We wish the origin of PANNETON.—R. P., Long Beach.

cestor's native city of Panton in Lincolnshire, England. "Pan-Ton" described "The Pledged One's Estate" (one who pledged loyalty to a nobleman.) Lincolnshire records of the late 1200s note Hugh and Jacop de Panton, primary ancestors. In Staffordshire the surname was altered to Pannerton; elsewhere it remained Panton or became Panneton. The family coat-of-arms from Durham, where they attained nobility, has two ermine bars across the center of a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give brief history on ELLIS. —M. O., Harbor City; R. E., Long Beach.

M. O., R. E.: ELLIS of Britain is a lineage descended from the heroic Elias, Knight of the Swan. He was great-great-grandson of Gottfried, King of Denmark, who died in A. D. 810. Elias or Ellis is from the Biblical font name Eliyah meaning "God the Lord." The English Ellises were Earls of Bristol. Their coat-of-arms has five silver crescents on a black cross centered on a golden shield. Richard Ellis, one of the American forebears, settled in Massachusetts in the early 1600s.

LAGUNA BEACH'S

All-American Phenomenon in Art

on wider recognition, as a number of foreign correspondents have announced their intention of visiting the "phenomenon" so they may tell their people in lands across the sea what Laguna Beach is doing in honoring the works of the masters who painted before Laguna was even born.

Some of the works of the real old masters to be seen at this summer's Pageant of the Masters will be a Viennese porcelain, "The Portrait Painter," by Antonio Grassi; Britain's contribution to the Pageant, an 18th Century group of two famous portraits by Sir Thomas Laurence and one by Sir Joshua Reynolds. Florentine art comes from "Adoration of a Child" by Andrea Della Robbia. The Dutch master, Gerard Ter Borsch, depicts the life and garments of the period with "The Suitor's Visit."

THE VENETIAN master, Giorgione, is represented by "The Holy Family"; "The Dancers" by Harriet Whitney Frishmuth, an American; "The Return of the Prodigal Son" by the Spanish artist Bartolome Esteban Murillo"; "Stealing the Show" by Cydney, an American; "Sweet Adeline" by Norman Rockwell; "Interior and Winter Landscape" by the Japanese artist, Toyoharu Utagawa; "Omer Talon" by Phillipe de Champagne, Flemish artist; "Daybreak" by Maxfield Parrish; "Marie Antoinette at Home" by the French artist, V. de Peredes; "Dancers in Blue" by Edgar Degas; "The Eight Immortals" Chinese ivory, traditional Taoism figures; "Dance at Bougival" by Pierre Auguste Renoir, French impressionist; "Haymaking" by Leon Augustin L'Hermitte.

The Civil War Centennial will be commemorated in a special picture adaptation titled "The Blue and the Gray." Other unique presentations include "The Stained Glass Window" reproducing an ancient form of art, and a sculpture gallery composed of seven figures created by world-famous sculptors.

In addition to the foreign correspondents who plan to cover the Festival of Arts, a number of consuls representing other nations have accepted invitations to be guests of the board of directors, all of which will add considerably to the international flavor of the 26th annual art spectacle.

One of the first artists to visit the Festival to see one of his pictures brought to life on the stage by living figures was Norman Rockwell. He sat in the audience the first half of the program when his picture was shown, and at intermission requested permission to visit back stage and to meet the characters in his work titled "Hollywood Dreams."

THIS SUMMER John Callan, producer of the Pageant, has a cast list of 400 men, women and children ready to do their parts in maintaining the success of the Festival which was assured the first time it was presented in 1932. It was born that year in a little street which was more commonly referred to as a downtown alley just about a block long. All about on adjoining fences and walls were hung the paintings of the few artists who then called Laguna Beach home. In 1934, the Festival management voted to liven up the show a little by adding what they called a living tableau. Lolita Perine, who had retired from an active career on the stage, was chosen to pose in the tableau. This feature, the management decided, should be continued the next year, and probably expanded. Roy Ropp, an artist who also sold real estate, was alert to the potentialities of the project and gave this part of the Festival the title of Pageant of the Masters.

From the little alley, the pageant moved hither and yon, one of the earlier-day successes being scored on a point overlooking the Pacific Ocean where the now famous Victor Hugo Inn stands. There were parades and dancing along with the Festival then, and "a good time was had by all." There have been no parades since, principally because Laguna's streets have been packed with traffic all during the summer season, and the center of town has been slashed with a major north-south highway.

HOWEVER, GAIETY has not been shelved during the Festival season. Artists and artisans vie enthusiastically to present the most colorful exhibits on the grounds, and for many years prizes were awarded to the most outstanding. The major portion of the six-acre tract at the mouth of Laguna Canyon where the Festival is now permanently located was donated by the Irvine Ranch Co., and another small tract purchased to round out the needed space. From the first "alley" presentation of the Festival it now has its own permanent stage which was built at cost of $90,000, and again assistance came from the Irvine firm—a cash gift of $25,000 in appreciation of the group's efforts to give the country something really worth while in art education.

The Festival of Arts thrives on the strength of an eager community spirit. People from all walks of life, and of all ages, enter into the work with an enthusiasm that is hard to explain. The Festival is a once-a-year event and is unlike any other community enterprise. Few persons realize that the project is a labor of love to more than 700 natives of the area. One year's event is hardly over before preparations begin for the next.

A GREAT BACKLOG of costumes and hand-painted backdrops for each individual subject, accumulated during the 26 years of production, defies any valuation. Hundreds of wigs and hair pieces, props, elaborate make-up especially prepared create the illusion

Portrait in the English grand style by Sir Joshua Reynolds, Lady Delme and Her Children, will be posed by live models in Pageant of the Masters.

Nostalgic reminder of a popular picture in the blue and gold that was a mark of the work of Maxfield Parrish in the early twenties is "Daybreak."

Powder Puff Derby's Friendliest Rivals

Guest in a Long Beach home, Grazia Sartori of Rome, aviation star in her own right in Italy, is a Powder Puff Derby rival of her hostess.

By Florence Rose

"I'M GOING to shoot you in the race so I can win!" the pretty house guest from Rome jokingly threatens her pretty Long Beach hostess.

"O.K.," hands back America's top woman racing pilot, "but you have to catch me first."

Statistics show that five-time All-Woman Transcontinental Air Race winner Fran Bera is hard to catch. On the other hand, determined visitor Grazia Sartori is the feminine flying ace of Italy.

That they are both more lovers of flying than rivals is demonstrated by the fact that Fran met Grazia at a dinner for women pilots (the Ninety-Nines), and took her home to 4232 Pepperwood Ave., suitcase and all.

Fran, sponsored in this year's "Powder Puff Derby" by Belmont Aviation Corp., was scheduled to solo in a Beechcraft Bonanza, the "Belmont Belle," when the 15th race started at 9 a. m. yesterday from San Diego.

Grazia is flying copilot with Theresa Vasques of San Diego.

FLYING IS ALLOWED during daylight only. Planes stop only at designated airports to refuel or stay overnight, and the finish line in Atlantic City must be crossed before noon July 12.

Television shows and banquets await along the way for contestants who, nevertheless, breakfast at 3 or 4 o'clock each morning to get a daybreak start. Lifesavers serve as "breakfast" when restaurants are not open or time is short, and racers eat their first meal at the end of the day's work.

The All-Woman Transcontinental Air Race, started in 1947, is flown in connection with the Ninety-Nines, an international organization of licensed women pilots founded in 1929 by Amelia Earhart. There were 99 charter members. The TAR aims to demonstrate the utility, safety, and reliability of light aircraft and the efficiency of women pilots.

In this race there is no neck-and-neck checkered-flag ending. Some of the lowest scores cross the finish line first because the winner must average the highest ground speed in relation to the advertised average for his plane.

"I'm always surprised when I win," says the five-foot Long Beach wonder who has won more cross-country races than any other woman pilot. Once she was a pin-up girl for a bomb squadron.

"But she always plans to win," explains Gordon Bera who married Fran after hiring her as instructor in his Michigan flying school.

"I always plan to win, but I'm always surprised when I do," squares Mrs. Bera with the life-is-fun eyes.

THIS WILL BE the 11th Derby for Fran, who holds an Airline Transport rating, single and multi-engine land and sea with 10,000 hours in the air. She was a CAA commercial pilot examiner for more than ten years. She has owned and operated her own flight school, broken the sound barrier in a jet, flown as executive pilot and test pilot, parachuted, and been trained as an astronaut.

Although this is Grazia's first TAR, she wears a bracelet of medals for wins in European races. She flies the ex-Prince and Princess of Italy to visit Lisbon, and often visits her ex-king in Portugal.

Is there a difference in attitude between the two countries toward women piloting?

Grazia admits that she would probably never have flown were her father, a Roman lawyer who died when she was 13, still living. Her mother? "She feels pain when I am flying because she always thinks I might be in danger, but she never tells me this." The Italian aviatrix fills in the language gap with graceful rippling motions of her long fingers.

Says Grazia, "My mother and I went flying over a little village where we had a farm." Her mother, not understanding that flying is unlike driving a car, kept warning, "Don't let go of the wheel! Pay attention to what you are doing!" And when they landed the villagers asked Grazia's mother, "Were you in the plane, too? Then two are crazy!"

FRAN CREATED a stir herself when she started flying at 16. She worked at a cannery, played hooky from school, and hitchhiked rides to the Grand Rapids airport for lessons before she flew proudly into the family farm as a complete surprise to her father.

But her parents finally drew the line at parachuting, from which phase of flying she retired at 21, after jumping from the age of 17. The closest Fran came to fear in chuting was worry over landing in the wrong field.

While Fran's husband refuses to make a general comparison between male and female pilots, he hurries to commit himself concerning his wife. "She is without a doubt the finest pilot I've ever flown with." It is he who points to a dazzling denful of his wife's trophies, and she who stands modestly in the background.

"I work at it," reports Mrs. Bera, meaning that besides instructing, she spends about a fourth of her time flying charters.

In Italy, Grazia explains, women can't possibly make money at flying. "It is difficult for men and impossible for women. It's only a hobby in Italy."

Signorina Sartori attributes this partly to the three or four months of fog, and partly to the fact that Italians have no weekends in the American sense. All Saturdays are work days.

GRAZIA POINTS out that in her country, no one would take lessons from a woman, whereas most of Fran's flying pupils are men.

Asked about hair-greying experiences, Grazia answers, "You know you must do something, so you are calm."

Fran agrees, "You're not scared at the time," but she won't forget a race when her landing gear wouldn't give for a couple of hours and she was virtually out of fuel.

Grazia would like to forget watching two private planes carrying her friends collide in midair while she was flying. "I looked down and saw—" she shudders.

Although Grazia admires the industry of American women, she thinks Italians "have something that you lose. It's not just—being happier." She

Deep in the moist tropics, white-clad Totonac Indians reap a bountiful harvest of

Mexico's Edible Orchids

By Dorothy Weeks

Photography by Lowell Weeks

CYMBIDIUM souffle or cattleya cupcakes? You haven't eaten these? Neither have we, and before the members of the Long Beach Amateur Orchid Society step up to boil us in oil for our orchidaceous proposal, we'll take a giant step in the other direction and declare our edible orchid is V. Planifolia, and its slender green pod is vanilla.

So we land in the safety zone with a story about a flavoring, and that it is a flavoring was all we knew when we poked our noses into the land of tamales and tequila.

In 1519 when Hernan Cortes began his conquest of Mexico, one of the secrets he wrung from the ill-starred Indians with their glittering cities, pyramidal temples, and mountains of gold and silver, was their unrivaled knowledge of vanilla.

XANATH (Shanath) they called it. Their favorite beverage, chocolate, whipped to a feathery foam, was generously laced with vanilla. At Cortes' orders, cuttings of the singular vine were sent to Spain, and from there introduced into other countries. But the great republic of Mexico is the vanilla capital of the world, and the Totonacs who cultivate the vines, are Mexico's most prosperous Indian tribe.

They live in the villages of Papantla and Gutierrez Zamora in Vera Cruz state. These communities are headquarters for the growing and distribution of this sweet-smelling harvest of the orchid family. In the surrounding rainforests, where the vanilla first grew wild, the Totonacs hand-pollinate the waxy white flowers when they appear on the vines in early spring. After pollination the beans slowly grow during the moist, tropical summer, sheltered and shaded from the jungle sun. In November the pods are gathered and the curing procedure begins.

Subjected to a three-day roasting in ovens fired with wood, the beans are then treated to a steam-bath. The sun-curing cycle is then undertaken. Each morning thousands of ripening pods are carefully placed in the sun. At noon, each day, they are carried inside the compound to rest on special air-circulating racks.

THE NEXT MORNING they are again placed in the sun, and on and on, a daily ritual. After six months of this tender care, the rich chocolate-brown beans, mellowed by time, are sorted and bound in packets, ready for market. It is during this phase in the career of the beans that the aroma of vanilla perfumes the villages for miles around with a heady fragrance. Some beans are used for liqueur, some for extract, and some reach their destination as sticky, luscious, whole brown beans.

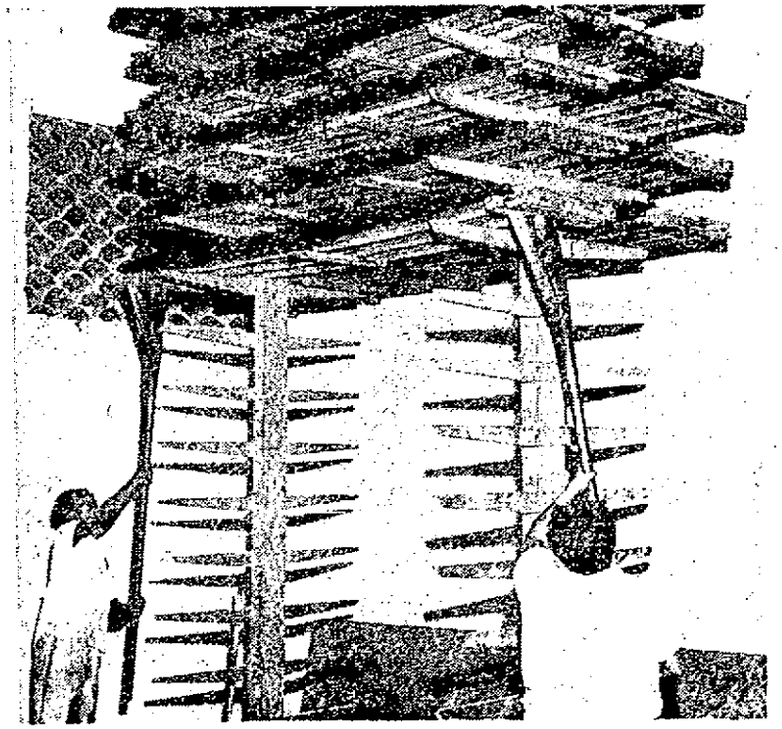

Inspired by personal contact with the Midas vine of the Indians, we learned to use the pod in the original form as they do, and since the extract is made by distillation, we had to experiment in a less complicated way, and thereby came up with an infusion of Southern Comfort and the mellow beans. As a result, we present a bold front for the most impudent vanilla north of the border. When our bottle is getting low, fresh liquid is added, more cut beans poked in, cap screwed on, and the fertile union continues.

IF YOU ALSO WISH to be a mad chemist, the method is simple. No finesse is needed. Just singleness of purpose plus the ingredients. Since you can't fly to Papantla just for beans (or can you?), buy them at La Luz del Dia, 610 N. Spring St., Los Angeles, a Mexican grocery store around the corner from Olvera St. The next step is a bottle of Southern Comfort. Pour out some of the liquid, put in the beans (cut in two-inch bits), and wait for your reward.

Now that you have the flavor of our story, we have a feeling you'll be impressed with your puddings, cakes, candies, and ice creams crowned with V. Planifolia, and as we do, you'll remember that this universal flavoring is a rapturous blend of the rain-forest, the jungle sun, the white clad Totonac Indian, and an emerald green vine laden with edible orchids.

Vanilla beans, edible fruit of an orchid, are sorted for marketing. Mexico is vanilla-producing capital of world.

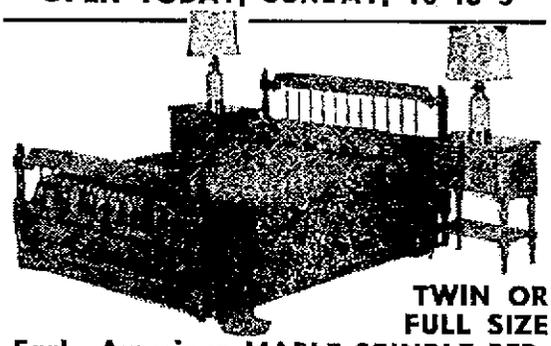

Daily sun bath is part of curing process for vanilla beans, which are brought in at noon each day and stacked in these air-circulating racks.

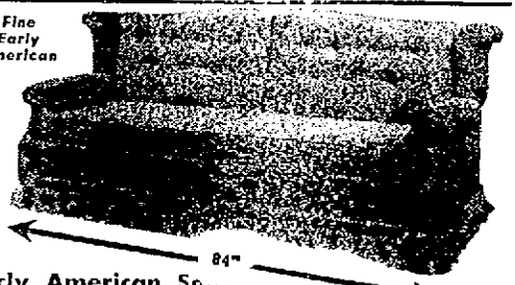

Economy of Totonac Indians depends on vanilla production. Above, Totonac family of Papantla: (l-r) mother, father, daughter and new son-in-law.

And So--She Went to Hollywood!

By Sanford Abrahams

THIS story has been turned down by two movie producers, No. 1 commenting, "Such things don't happen any more," No. 2 likening it to Owen Davis' tear-jerking New York melodrama of the fin de siecle—"It's as corny as 'Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model.'"

What neither knew was that it's about a real person who is one of modern Hollywood's own—Bambi the $100-an-hour photographer's-model-turned-actress — and that it's true.

Bambi Hamilton, as the town knows her, was "Miss Jet Freight of 1958," "Miss Varga Girl of 1959," and last year's "Miss March" on the cover of Playboy magazine. She works regularly on TV and makes her theatrical film debut as a chorine chum of Diana Dors and Dianne Foster in Allied Artists' "King of the Roaring 20s—The Story of Arnold Rothstein," which has David Janssen as Broadway's boss gambler of the title role, and Mickey Rooney as the big man's little tinhorn pal, Johnny Burke.

BEHIND THE shapely facade (37-26-37) of this statuesque brunette with the big brown eyes, soft voice and ladylike manner lurks Aleane Burkhardt (SS 518-42-3565) of Caldwell, Idaho, the eldest of three children with whom her mother was left on the 3½-acre remnant of a farm after a divorce when Aleane was four.

"For 15 years from then until I left Caldwell we were on state relief," she says frankly, "and I don't remember we ever had anything except that bit of land with the little house on it, a few chickens, and a well."

The Burkhardt case was well known in Caldwell, where, she mentions, "there were a lot of wealthy people." It was a situation likely to torture a proud spirit. Unable to keep up with the other girls in a material way, Bambi-Aleane made few friends and grew up a lonely person.

CALDWELL also was growing up. The farm remnant, only five blocks from the depot, found itself in an industrial district. "People wanted it, but they never offered what it was worth," Bambi said. Spirited mother Burkhardt put a $75,000 price on it, and wouldn't take less. But she fell behind on her rising taxes. The city council sympathetically gave her 10 years to pay up.

Then Bambi's sister, Carole, came down with diabetes. "We couldn't afford proper treatment; she was simply wasting away. And I just couldn't earn any money to take care of her; there was nothing for me in Caldwell.

"My big chance came when a girl whose parents were taking her to Los Angeles for a vacation invited me to go along, all expenses paid. Mother said, 'Go—get a job, and send home money to take care of your sister.' So I came. I got a job as a car-hop."

ENTER A customer name of John Daston, actor, sometime manager of a model agency, and part-time actor-manager. He became acquainted with Bambi, learned her story, told her she ought to try modeling for photographers, gave her a few leads, which she followed up.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch: Despite the 10-years' grace agreement, the old place was sold for taxes; the mother, sick daughter, and teen-age son were to be evicted.

But Bambi was doing pretty well now. She'd been on 32 magazine covers in one month and had crashed television. She brought mother, sister and brother David to Hollywood, where she had a $250-a-month apartment. She put Carole into a hospital. The girl is out now, and thriving.

And now Bambi has turned her attention back on Caldwell. "I've got two Boise lawyers working on our case, and they feel sure we're going to get our property back."

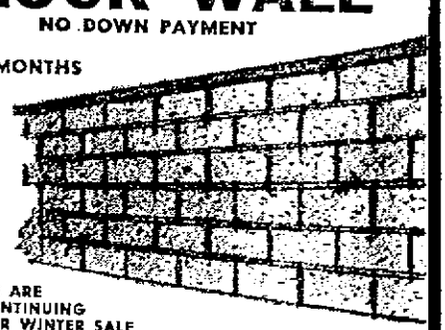

There you have it, the story of one spunky Hollywood glamour girl, the town's own "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model."

What do you think—would it make a picture?

Hollywood didn't believe Bambi Hamilton's life story. Bambi debuts as a chorine in Allied Artists' "King of the Roaring 20's—The Story of Arnold Rothstein."

FIFTH AND PINE DOWNTOWN LONG BEACH

Southland takes its readers into a different, attractive Long Beach area home each week

Furnishings, styled low in oriental manner, add a feeling of spaciousness to the Rossmoor home of Mr. and Mrs. Don De Benedictis. Above is a view of the living room.

Made to Order for Family Fun

By Stella George

DIFFERING from its neighbors in decor, which is Oriental within and without, the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Don De Benedictis, 11541 Harrisburg St., Rossmoor, is luxuriously fitted and shows to the fullest advantage on the corner lot which it occupies.

A distinguishing feature about the home is the fact that the decorating theme is evident in every room. The Oriental feeling is inviting and restful and is used throughout the home.

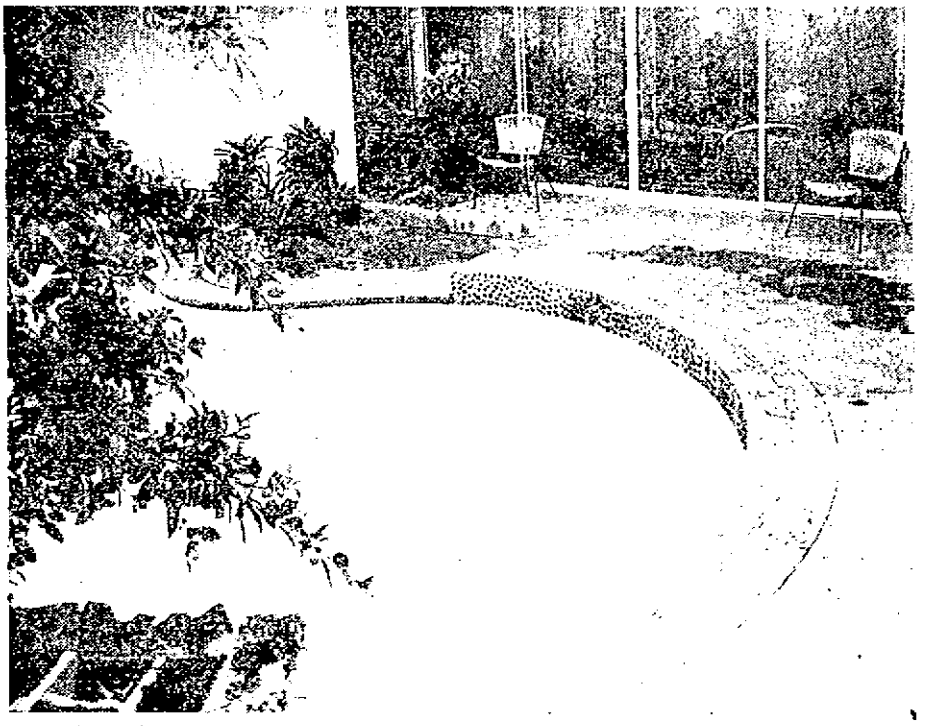

At one end of the entry hall, a glass door which has a raised embossed design, can be opened or closed into the family room-kitchen area. To the left is the dining room and living room.

A POINT of interest in the living room is the huge coffee table which is about six feet square, very low and designed in sections. Twin off-white leather couches face the coffee table, with the fireplace at one end.

A large plaque of a horse hangs above the fireplace. Handsome Oriental lamps flank the couches. A planter on the floor is near a window directly across from the fireplace and indirect lighting makes it particularly effective at night. Large decorative pillows are on the floor nearby.

Black leather chairs complement the white-topped dining room table. Glass doors in the dining room open to a lanai, which, in turn, opens to the patio-pool area in the rear.

THE LANAI is gay and colorful with black, orange,

View, above is from back of the pool and looking into the lanai. Pool and patio area were planned to provide a maximum amount of room for the family and guests.

Charming, casual and simple is the decorating motif. White formica-topped table can be extended for guests.

white and turquoise chairs surrounding a turquoise table. Hemp carpeting is on the floor, and matchstick drapes cover the windows.

The family room (located between the dining room and kitchen) has twin couches, a television set, and a white, custom dinette table with orange chairs that are modern and functional.

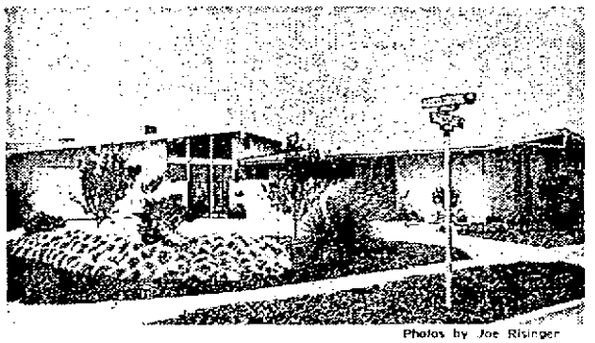

The pool and patio are extremely well planned to afford a maximum amount of room for entertainment. The pool is directly in back of the lanai, with rocks and shrubs on the far side of the deck. At the extreme right is the dancing and play area, spacious and attractive.

HOME AND GARDEN are so well coordinated that each enhances the other. This is a home that is made to order for family fun and company enjoyment.

The master bedroom is expertly done in the Oriental manner. The headboard is of black leather with night stands attached. A Japanese miniature tree occupies the small bay window. An out-sized oriental lamp stands on an oriental chest of drawers with a Chinese ornament nearby.

The teen-age girl's room was designed by the young lady herself — the theme: Arabic; the predominating color — shades of purple. Orchid spreads are on the beds, over which is a handsome hanging lamp. A round table has a lavender felt skirt. Out-size pillows in the same color are on the floor. Even the clock is orchid. The whole room is a symphony of color, ideal for the most discriminate feminine taste.

A younger girl's room is done in turquoise and white. To provide more play space in the room, a bed-couch takes up a relatively small amount of area. An unusual pole clock adds a decorator's touch to the decor.

Three bedrooms and a TV room are among the seven rooms in the 1,662 square feet of living space in this ranch-style home, finished in stone and brick.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

With the Charm of the Midwest

By David L. Bowen

THERE'S AN AIR of warm Midwestern hospitality about this neat three-bedroom ranch, designed by Elmer Gylleck, Elgin, Ill., architect.

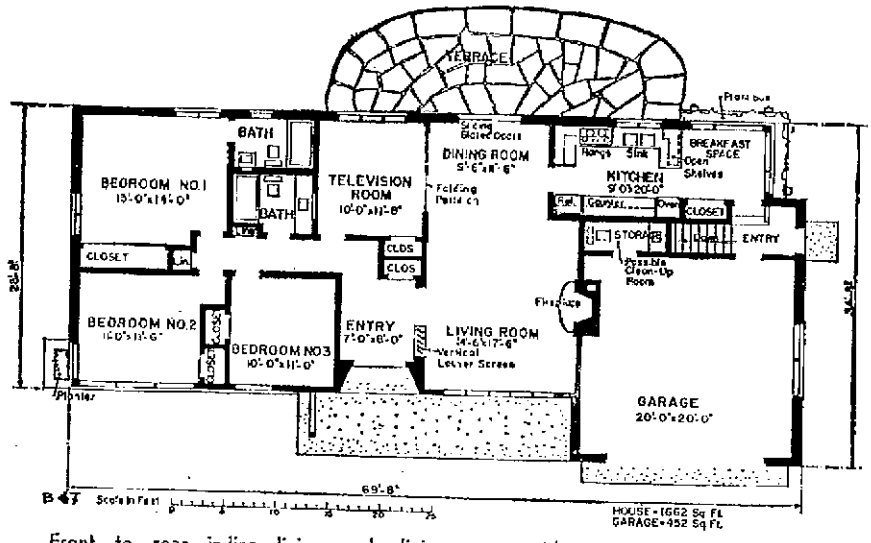

The living and dining rooms are in line. Contrary to the usual arrangement which places these rooms parallel to the front wall, in this home they run from front to back between the bedroom section and the service area.

One of the extras this makes possible in B-47 in the House of the Week series is a television room separated from the dining room by a folding partition. If the TV watchers are a minority, the accordion doors can be closed to separate the viewers from the talkers. At other times, the doors can be opened — making the TV screen visible from dining room and even the kitchen.

WITH A DOOR opening into the bedroom hall, the TV room also can double as a guest bedroom.

Gylleck points out that the back-to-back plumbing of the two full baths in the bedroom section holds the cost of this luxury to a minimum. The closet in the master bedroom is extra large, taking up almost an entire wall.

There's convenient access from the two-car attached garage through the service

Front to rear in-line living and dining rooms, with connecting TV room, provide large entertainment area. Long kitchen has breakfast space by windows.

Center of attraction is the "sunburst" design of the living room fireplace, with radiating lines in the masonry continuing in diagonal lines of paneling.

entry into the breakfast space which is part of the long kitchen. Basement stairway is directly opposite the side entry.

B-47 has seven rooms and the total living space is 1,662 square feet. Over-all dimensions are 69 feet 8 inches in width by 34 feet 8 inches in depth. If desired, the home could be built on a slab foundation and the basement eliminated. In this case, heating equipment would go into the space now marked for basement stairs.

THE EXTERIOR of the home is primarily brick veneer, with some stone veneer and vertical wood siding on the front elevation.

The front entry is bounded on one side by a decorative wood louver. The living room fireplace is of a distinctive sunburst design, with lines radiating from the hearth first in the stone of the chimney and then in the wood panelling covering the adjoining wall. Sliding glass doors lead from the dining room onto the rear terrace.

Kitchen counters are arranged in a shallow U, with range and sink side by side. Note the large closet in the kitchen, which could be used as a pantry.

The closet shown at the rear of the garage could either be used for storage or, if desired, could be equipped with plumbing to make a convenient lavatory.

They're Three Little 'Beakniks'

By Marie C. Swenson

COFFEE, sex (may we whisper the word), foam rubber pads, and neuroticism have now invaded the bird world.

The "beat" generation and some of its characteristics have rubbed off on three cockateels, "Delinquent," "Tinker Bird," and "Joseph," to such an extent that their out-of-this-world existence has earned them the title of "Beakniks."

Their owners are Dr. and Mrs. Henry Jorgensen, 16515 W. 23rd St., Sunset Beach, and Mrs. Jorgensen shakes her head ruefully as she recounts the metamorphis of her three pets from their natural habits and cage training to the adoption of human tendencies and traits.

Delinquent drinks coffee; he and Tinker Bird waltz to music, and Joseph shuns society. All three loll on foam rubber pads — and all three are great lovers.

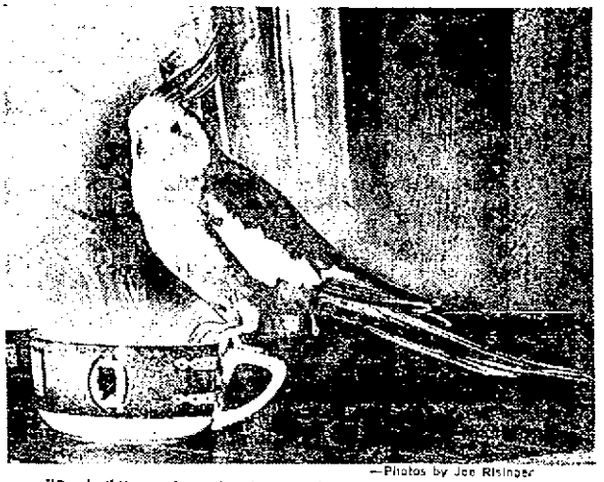

"Each has such a distinctive personality, so individualistic," says Mrs. Jorgensen.

DUBBED BY her many friends as "St. Frances of Assistance," because of her great love for animals, Mrs. Jorgensen befriends stray cats, houses mistreated hounds, and nurses sick birds back to health whenever they cross her path.

"They are so helpless," she says. "A child has a chance in this world of human beings, but an animal is left by the wayside to lick his wounds or die of neglect."

The three "beaknik" birds became her primary concern about 12 years ago, when the owner was unable to care for them any longer. From the beginning, Delinquent showed himself to be the leader. In addition, his curiosity matches his outgoing, friendly nature.

When Delinquent was barely out of the nestling stage, he decided, one day, to fly down and get acquainted with Sam, the Siamese cat, stretched out under the coffee table. A quick pass of the cat's paw and Delinquent was felled, dazed and unable to move because of a broken back. His mistress rescued him just as the cat moved in for the kill.

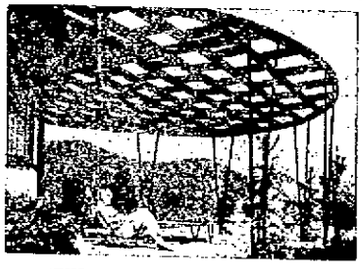

—Photos by Joe Risinger

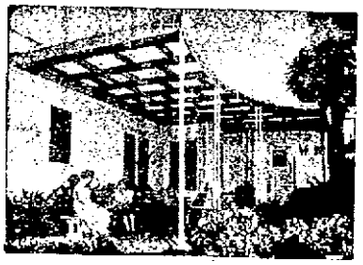

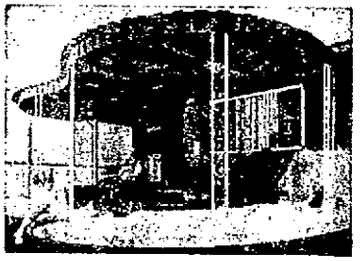

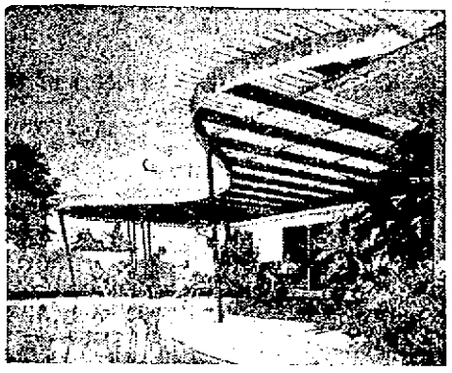

"Beaknik" cockateel, that's what they're saying about Delinquent, who is a coffee addict, and his three buddies.

"IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE for 'Delinq' to roost in his cage," she stated, "and mother and I had to devise some way for him to be comfortable during his recuperation.

As a result, a foam rubber pad was made, complete with

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Desk top serves for study, stores when space is needed.

TODAY'S PROBLEM: How can a room be made to serve efficiently both for entertainment and as a study or homework area?

ARCHITECT A. S. DADRAS answers:

The secret of getting the most out of the home or apartment where you live is to get as much "double use" as possible from each room.

One of the areas where this often is feasible is the recreation or living room, which properly equipped can also serve as a study. The illustration shows a unit which provides a luxuriously large desk surface when the room is in use as a study. When it is being used to entertain guests—and as much open space as possible is required for easy circulation—the desk top can be dismounted from the bookcase section, its legs removed, and the top stored away out of sight.

The floor plans show how the unit could be used in a variety of furniture arrangements in rooms of various proportions.

Construction of the unit is simplicity itself. Stock size lumber is used in the bookcase section. The 1¼" thick desk top is bought in one piece: it's a modern interior door put to new use.

To order, specify Convertible Study Desk S-11 and send name and address and 50 cents in coin to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Patio Lounger That's Easy to Build

GOOD COMPANY and good conversation make the finest entertainment known to man. But if you want a straight-forward, stimulating and pleasant visit, confine it to two persons.

That's the purpose of the patio lounger (see illustration) that's built for two. It supports an umbrella for shade and a built-in table is handy for ash trays, lunches, drinks or playing checkers, cards and other games. And it's a good-looking item for any patio.

Jody Warner of NBC-TV poses with a patio lounger that is a stimulating asset to conversation while friends linger over a cool drink in cool comfort.

It's made of standard lumber stock, pads are inexpensive and it's easy to make from a full-size pattern with illustrations and directions. It's put together with screws and bolts, and wheels make it easy to move.

To obtain full-size Patio Lounger Pattern No. 255 send $1 in currency, check or money order and name and address to Steve Ellingson, Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Makeshift Theater

By Caroline Coleman

COME September and the new school term, drama classes of the Paramount High School will be all set with a theater.

Of course, it's half of the Senior English classroom — but it has a furnished living room, a painted landscape, lights, sound effects, a telephone that rings, a 30-foot curtain, a foyer.

It's name, appropriately enough, is Makeshift Theater.

The story of the theater reflects the enterprise of students and teacher. Ginger Friedman, for some years associated with Lakewood Players and the Magnolia Theatre of Long Beach, taught drama this past year at Paramount High School, 14429 S. Downey Ave., Paramount.

IN JANUARY, her 1½-hour long, two-scene, once-act play "Danger! Sharp Curve" was produced at Long Beach State College. Her drama pupils then decided to stage it at Paramount High. They needed a stage.

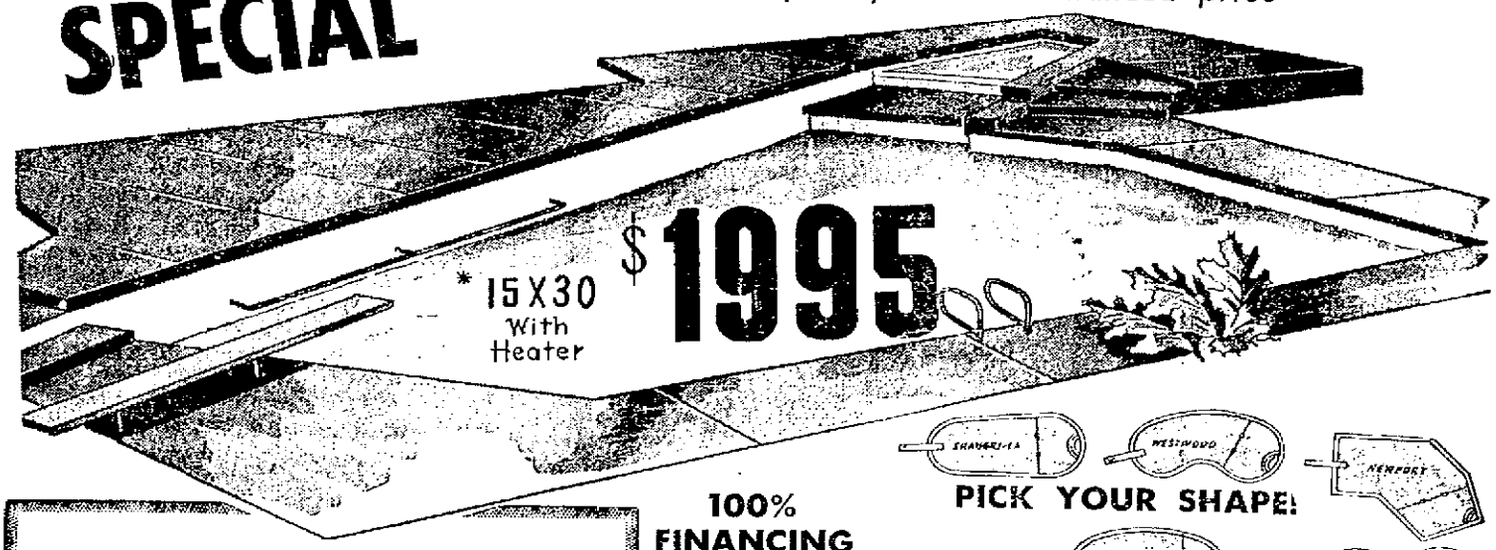

Desks and seats were pushed to one side of the room. Roy Williams, with real dramatic flair, designed and painted the setting — a car dealer's home in a town which has a road with a sharp S curve. (The plot is that the car dealer, the doctor, and the mortician profit from accidents on the dangerous curve —and the rest of the town live on them.)

Jerry Brickley painted the landscape with the curve. Terry Nielsen recorded tire squeaks, crashes and an explosion for sound effects. Gaylyn Bonjour and Tip Rouse rigged up the lighting system, the bulbs shaded by pieces of tin cans. All stage lights go on or off with the flick of one switch. Teachers, pupils and their families contributed furniture.

A 30-FOOT length of muslin, resurrected from the art department where it had been used as a drop cloth, was full of powdered blue paint. Mike Butler took it to the Los Angeles River, sloshed it up and down in the current and washed it clean.

Linda Meyers applied theater makeup to the faces of the young actors. Judy Keys drew Comedy and Tragedy masks for the programs.

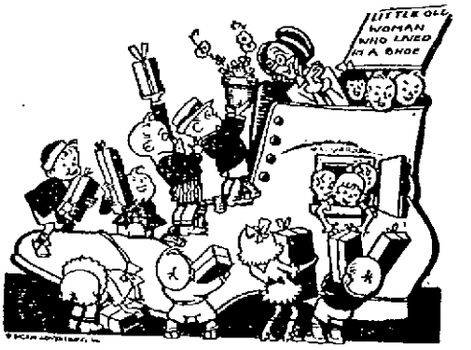

That gives a rough idea of the participation.

Teachers who lent capable hands included Wilson Bell, principal; Russell Ball, vice principal, and Reuben Mancillas, art instructor.

Thirteen young people comprised the cast.

Risers and folding chairs were installed. Forty persons could watch the show if they "squeezed." They did. "Danger! Sharp Curve" was given two nights, 40 visitors the first night, 42 the second. The two extras? They sat on the filing cabinet.

Map shows how to get to Laguna's Festival grounds.

Art Festival

Successful almost since its inception, the Festival of Arts has been witnessed by more than two million spectators. The success of the production, particularly in a small community 60 miles removed from any large metropolitan area, and with 7,000 permanent residents, centers on the intense community spirit and participation.

Preliminary activities start about six months before the opening performance. Selection of a producer is the first step. Then follows a choice of subjects, the program ranging from the old masters to contemporary art. The producer then appoints the various department heads such as narration, make-up, wardrobe, casting, art direction and numerous others charged with departmental supervision.

THREE MONTHS before opening night finds backstage a beehive of activity day and night, culminating a month before curtain time with character and dress rehearsals. The Albert Memorial Bas Relief alone calls for 30 men to portray poets, musicians, painters and sculptors from many countries, exclusive of substitutes, well-rehearsed and on a moment's call. The trials of the casting director are not to be envied. The producer can be credited with his selection of subjects and the ingenious detail with which he is confronted. The skill of the technical director and his crew manning intricate lighting effects demanded in both paintings and sculpture, around which the entire production motivates, contributes greatly to the fame credited to the pageant.

The harmonious blending of participants into one large family intent on making each production better than all previous efforts may be the answer to the query on what makes Laguna's Festival click.

Another feature contributing to success is the bowl's natural setting. Nestled in the hills, free of noise other than the night birds disturbed in their accustomed peace, a rarely failing new moon overhead, music solely to motivate the mood of each tableau; blend into the presence of art as seen in no other spot in the land.

3 Little 'Beakniks'

white pillow slip. Delinquent was delighted as he nestled on his pillow, imperious and demanding as a rajah.

It was a year before he could fly again, and he became completely attached to his new sleeping quarters. Tinker and Joseph, consumed with jealousy and frustration, became quite dissatisfied with the cage they shared. They would fly in and crowd the paralyzed Delinquent out of his bed. So, stalls were constructed for them.

The birds have the run of the Cape Cod-styled apartment, overlooking the ocean. They share a bunk apiece in the specially constructed stalls, made of knotty pine and nailed under the mantel of the fireplace.

Atop the mantel is a cage, housing several parakeets. A mirror reflects the charms of Delinquent and Tinker Bird as they strut around in their golden-crested glory. They spend much time preening, jogging, dancing, and waltzing in front of the mirror, occasionally kissing their own reflections.

THE BIRDS peck at Mrs. Jorgensen's fingers, trying to divert her attention to them.

"This is where the battle of the sexes takes place," she said. "Both birds vie for my affections and become quite fierce with each other. There isn't a morning goes by that they don't fly into my bedroom and awaken me with a swooping kiss at six o'clock."

She is forced to rise and put the coffee on. She claims the birds are so accurate in their timing that she doesn't need an alarm clock. She is always on time for her work at Community Hospital, where she serves as a cashier.

"While I eat breakfast, 'Delinq' perches on his own cup and dips his beak in for several sips of coffee. It seems to soothe his shattered nerves. He then flies back to his pad to remain in a slightly drugged stupor until he recovers from his hangover."

Tinker Bird is a teetotaler, and Joseph usually stands forlornly on the porch of his stall until he is coaxed to partake of a little birdseed, fed to him by his mistress.

When Delinquent awakens from the effects of his imbibings, he and Tinker Bird wing their way from living room to bedroom on a gay frolic of adventure, investigating every nook and cranny. Then, they pause to pass the time of day with two parakeets, caged in the kitchen by a window which overlooks the back porch.

MOST OF THE TIME, Joseph, a self-made pariah, stands aloof while his friends fly jauntily about their haunts. He received his name because he lost his coat of many colors. Since the death of his mate, he isolates himself from society. He is so neurotic, he spends each day plucking out his feathers. He presents a ragged, doleful appearance, but he responds to any sign of pity or affection with a loud hiss.

Mrs. Jorgensen has taken Joseph to veterinarians, bird experts, but they find him in good physical health. They claim his brooding is purely mental. The other birds sense his attitude and treat him as a doormat.

Even a jangling phone cannot break through Joseph's icy reserve. Delinquent, however, trots over to the instrument and parks on the receiver. He cocks his head and counters with the only words he will speak by asking, "Which one?" in a slightly raucous tone.

Mended Venus

Armless Venus de Milo, the famous statue standing on the ground floor of the Louvre Museum, has a false nose, a patched-up lower lip, and a reconstructed left foot, according to a recent study of French government documents.

The documents also disclose that French sculptors replaced a lock of her hair shortly after she was presented to King Louis XVIII in 1821. It was Louis who installed the marble goddess in the Louvre. While the king's artists were successful in replacing her other missing parts, all the king's men couldn't put Venus' arms together again. Reason: no one has been able to come up with a possible position for her arms without destroying the beauty of the statue's perfect lines.

St. Swithin's Rainy Day

By Mamie R. Krythe

FOR CENTURIES there has been an old English belief that rain on July 15, St. Swithin's Day, means rain for 40 days thereafter. And today, the "Old Farmer's Almanac", published each year by Robert B. Thomas, in Dublin, notes for this date:

"If rain forsooth
No summer drouth."

Poor Robin's Almanac of 1697 contains this bit of verse:

"In this month is St. Swithin's Day,
On which if it should rain, they say
Full 40 days after it will,
Or more or less, some rain distill."

SWITHIN, of noble parentage, was a pious monk, who became prior of an abbey. He was noted for his learning and won the favor of Egbert, king of Wessex, who entrusted the education of his son and successor, Ethelwulf, to the monk. Swithin also was revered for his integrity and high principles.

When Ethelwulf succeeded to his father's throne, Swithin was made Bishop of Winchester and was successful in establishing the system of tithes.

Swithin died in July 1862 and was buried, at his own request, in the churchyard rather than in the church itself. About a century later, some of the monks decided to change his place of burial and made plans for a July 15 ceremonial.

However, so the story goes, it rained so violently on that day, and the 40 following, "as hardly ever been known, which made them set aside their design as heretical and blasphemous."

LATER A CHAPEL was built over the grave, and several miracles are said to have occurred there. The monk was canonized and for several centuries was a very popular "healing" saint.

Writers often alluded to the belief connected with St. Swithin in such stanzas as:

"Now if on St. Swithin's feast the welkin lowers,
And every penthouse streams with hasty showers,
Twice 20 days shall clouds their fleeces drain
And wash the pavements with incessant rain." (Gay.)

"St. Swithin's Day, if thou dost rain,
For 40 days it will remain;
St. Swithin's Day, if thou be fair,
For 40 days 'twill rain nae mair."

Often, when it rained on July 15, people would say that St. Swithin was "christening the apples."

Statistics fail to bear out the St. Swithin's Day superstition and 40 days of either rain or sun following this date are rare. However, come St. Swithin's Day, let's keep an eye on the weather!

SOUTHLAND TRAVELER

Swish! New York in 1.3 Hours!

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent-Press-Telegram Travel Editor

HOW LONG until supersonic transports enter your life?

An intriguing and much-discussed question with the answers varying from 5 to 15 years.

One man whose guess should come closer than most is R. W. Rummell who, in his capacity as vice president of planning and research for Trans World Airlines, has been engaged in supersonic study since 1954.

Rummell believes that, considering technological factors, you should be able to board a supersonic transport by 1969 or 1970.

That means, brother, that in eight or nine years you'll be able to swish through the Wild Blue Yonder at a speed that will top Mach 3, thrice the speed of sound at 2,000 mph.

IN OTHER WORDS, the hop from Los Angeles' International Airport to New York will take one hour and 20 minutes!

In an article "TWA Plans for the Supersonic Era" in the summer issue of TWA Ambassador, he also touches on the problems connected with bringing supersonic travel to the masses.

You don't build a supersonic airliner merely by attaching more powerful engines to current airframe designs, he points out. That's because the aerodynamic laws that apply to subsonic flight do not necessarily prevail at speeds of 2,000 mph. For instance, wing shapes that are the most efficient for subsonic speeds become almost totally ineffective at three times the speed of sound. Yet, the supersonic airliner must operate in both speed realms —subsonic for takeoffs and landings, and supersonic during cruise. That's going to require a highly adaptable wing, one that hasn't been developed yet.

ANOTHER THING that must be positively assured is passenger comfort. Travelers must not be conscious of the extreme speed, altitude and temperature variances in which the supersonic craft will operate. This means science must come up with new metal alloys that can endure these variances. Pressurization systems must be devised that can operate at a fantastic rate so as to maintain comfortable conditions inside the plane during rocket-like climbs and descents.

Also, says Rummell, because of its tremendous speed and complexity, the supersonic transport will require more automatic devices to assist the crew. It is likely, he thinks, that computers and automatic control mechanisms will guide the plane during most of its flight, with manual control by the crew coming only during takeoffs and landings.

"DEVELOPMENT of the B70, the military's proposed Mach 3 bomber, could help materially in many ways the origin of a 2,000 mph commercial airliner," says Rummell. "However, it is most likely that developments will not be controlled by technological skills, but by availability of the untold millions of dollars that will be involved."

That is the hitch, as it will, most likely, limit the development. Anyone's guess as to "when" could be good.

So, don't hold your breath until the supersonic transport is developed. There's plenty of time for that when you take your seat in one for the first time, and prepare to take off!

CLOSED-CIRCUIT television will be used for the first time in the annals of international shipping to picture the arrival in San Francisco—on July 20—of the new P&O-Orient luxury liner Canberra. The Canberra, on her maiden voyage around the world, arrives in Los Angeles Harbor at 9 a.m. July 23.

THIRTY THOUSAND feet over the Southland — beginning at 6:30 p.m. July 11—the Hollywood premiere of Trans World Airlines' in-flight motion pictures will be held for members of the press aboard a TWA Superjet. The full-length prerelease film to be shown will be "Come September," starring Rock Hudson, Gina Lollobrigida and Sandra Dee. Extra dividend: Dinner, with TWA's famed Ambassador cuisine, and champagne!

BY APPOINTING Edward J. Mayes as sales manager of its Beverly Hills office (9474 Wilshire Blvd.) British Overseas Airways Corp. brings to the Southland another staff member with years of experience with domestic and international airlines. His appointment is announced by Robert F. Reynolds, district sales boss.

". . . where to get a listing of music festivals, fairs and other events in Europe?"

WRITE SWISSAIR, 3 E. 54th St., New York City for "Coming Events Calendar 1961." Also, each tourist bureau — there's one for each country—has detailed events programs.

For these special events, you want to be sure to have hotel reservations. These are the times when the towns fill up with people of that country as well as tourists. (There are lots of European tourists —not just Americans.)

Hotels are a little more open in Europe this year.

American travel to Europe has fallen off, about 20 per cent. Americans are traveling more inside the U. S. The estimate is 95 million during the summer. (They'll spend 21.2 billion dollars.)

The present European estimate from SWISSAIR: Barcelona and Madrid, no hotel problem all summer. Portugal, no problem. Munich and Stuttgart heavily booked. Vienna, heavily booked but Innsbruck OK.

Paris is always a problem except in August when all the French go on vacation and a good part of the best restaurants are closed. Nice is OK until July 15. Rome and Milan are fair. Zurich is tight. Geneva is OK except during international conferences.

Lugano and Locarno (best of Switzerland in my opinion in summer) are usually tight. But the Swiss National Tourist bureau always seems to find you a room.

"Please recommend a small, inexpensive hotel in London . . ."

YOU MIGHT try Rose Court (near Marble Arch at 3 Talbot Square, W. 2). British Travel Assn. lists it as "best of the smaller hotels." (The association, 680 Fifth Ave., New York City, will send you a list of hotels graded by price and class.)

"For a wedding present we are being given a 'luxury flight' to Europe. Now what would you recommend?"

A friend coming from France (and the French are hard to please) was greatly impressed with Pan American's dinner service. I get VERY high reports on BOAC.

The latest of the "luxury flights" (and trying to outdo all the rest) is the TWA Royal Ambassador flight (first-class only). Tops of Continental food and wines. Hot dogs and malted milks for the kids. First-showing movies on every run. And a free, jazzy red-and-gold flight bag with an overnight kit inside. Polar flights from the West Coast and out of New York.

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

GETTING TO and from Europe is the easiest part of planning a trip there. But deciding how to get around the continent requires careful consideration of your budget, time and disposition.

Here are some of the things you ought to be aware of when making up your mind:

BY AIR—The simplest, and usually cheapest, way to encompass all your stops is to buy a through ticket to your farthest point. This permits you to lay over almost anywhere the airlines touch between here and there, at no extra cost.

But in many ways it's the least satisfactory arrangement. The castles on the Rhine and the vineyards of Bordeaux can be difficult to inspect from above a cloud layer at 10 miles a minute. There are, of course, exceptions. The glacial swamps of Norway and one airline's (Sabena Belgian) helicopter route from Brussels to Paris are better seen from the air.

The next cheapest way, then, is:

BY RAIL—The way to do it is to fly to your nearest stop, to where the air fare will be least, and have in your pocket a Eurailpass, an ingenious promotional scheme sponsored by virtually all the railroads of western Europe.

The pass, available through your travel agent, permits you unlimited first class mileage anywhere the rails go. The minimum charge is $110 for one month's use. If you're planning to cover a lot of ground, this can be a fantastic transportation bargain.

The railways of Europe are a revelation to North Americans—fast, frequent, dependable, comfortable, and with excellent and reasonable meals.

An important tip: Keep luggage weight and size as low as possible traveling by train.

BY BUS—This is the favorite land transportation of tour operators for flexibility and because buses permit wholesale chartering at low rates. They offer the same flexibility to individual travelers, but when it comes to cost it is best to stack it up against that of the Eurailpass.

Regular intercity schedules are operated much like those in North America, with one big difference — the vehicles are pretty uncomfortable to ride in.

BY CAR—This is the way most people think they would like to travel in Europe. It is cheaper than it is at home but generally the most expensive way of getting about Europe for a transatlantic tourist.

There are several ways of doing it:

You can ship your own car over—expensive but comfortable.

You can buy a car to drive yourself, and either send it home as a used car under your duty-free allowance, or re-sell it before you return. The first makes most sense if, of course, you want a new car, while the latter is cheaper than renting if you're going to be in Europe in a long time.

Renting a car is most economical and convenient for short stays (a month or less).

There is a certain amount of red tape connected with using a car in Europe, about which your travel agent can advise and help you. Most European roads are neither built nor maintained as they are here. Nearly all Europeans drive like maniacs. Road signs are in an international code which you must learn. Repairs can be a sometime thing. And getting directions in some areas — if you can make yourself understood — leads to the original you-can't-get-there-from-here answer.

THE BEST OF ALL possible ways to go? It's the most expensive, but for our money the most satisfactory: by chauffeured car. Despite its cost, it is far cheaper than it is back home. Pro-rated over two or three couples it is nearly as reasonable as most other forms of transportation.

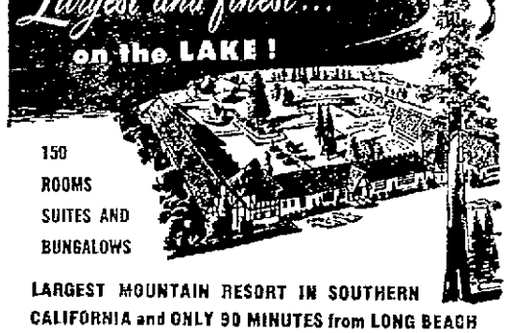

The chauffeur is the answer to your problems. He speaks all the necessary languages, knows how to maneuver "opposing" drivers as well as the car, can phone ahead for your hotel reservations if changes in plans are necessary, serves as your guide, finds parking places, and in general takes over all the concerns that would be pre-empting your attention if you had to be behind the wheel.

Man's Eternal Search for God

By Vera Williams
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

IVAR LISSNER turns the clock back 600,000 years and shows prehistoric man searching for one Supreme Being, in "MAN, GOD AND MAGIC" (Putnam, $5.95), a volume fascinating to anthropologists, educators and laymen interested in man's beginning and early beliefs.

A native of Riga, educated at the Universities of Berlin, Lyons, Erlangen and the Sorbonne, Lissner first aroused the book world with "The Living Past" and "The Caesars."

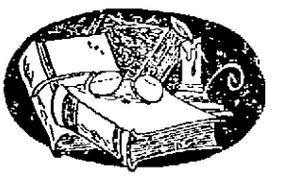

He devoted 17 years to this new book, traveling over five continents, undertaking expeditions into northeast Asia to study ethnological groups, penetrating into unexplored and unmapped parts of the almost inaccessible north Manchurian Taiga.

His conclusion: Early man believed in one supreme God and worshipped in much the same way as do primitive tribes of the remote Siberian Taiga and the Indian-like people of Tierra del Fuego. He advances the theory that a belief in many gods resulted from "magic," an attempt by man to control his fate. Polytheism, he believes, represented a backward step for mankind.

The volume is well illustrated with photographs, reproductions, drawings, maps.

J. Maxwell Browjohn translated it from the German. Two editions have appeared in Germany, one in England. It soon will be brought out in France, Italy, Spain and Scandinavia.

"IT ACTUALLY SEEMED a pity to kill men so," wrote Capt. Eli Lilly of Indiana. "They fell in heaps, and I had it in my heart to order the firing to cease, to end the awful sight." A more articulate soldier, trying to describe the maelstrom of shot and shrapnel that reaped death in Northern and Southern ranks, asked: "Did you ever notice the thickness of rain drops in a tempest? Did you ever see the destruction of hailstones to a growing cornfield? Did you ever witness driftwood in a squall?" Thus was recalled "CHICKAMAUGA (Bloody Battle in the West)" by Glenn Tucker (Bobbs-Merrill, $6) by the men who fought the most stubbornly contested and inconsistent battle of the Civil War. On those September 19-20, 1863 days the stakes were high: The North felt the engagement promised the opportunity of cutting South in two and ending the war before Christmas. The Confederates judged correctly they were not fighting for Chattanooga, but the fate of Atlanta and all Georgia. As it waxed and waned in its historic consequences strange turns of fate and personality took major roles in the horrible drama. At one point Northern soldiers in Southern uniforms turned the tide of battle and at another a Virginian saved the Union forces from destruction.

Nazi Baffler

A former British intelligence officer tells how the Allies baffled the Nazis with prisoner-of-war escape devices in "OFFICIAL SECRET" (Crown, $3.50), by Clayton Hutton.

And with Hutton on our side, it is little wonder that the Axis collapsed.

Hutton details how new Royal Air Force uniforms were designed for flying personnel so they easily could be converted to Nazi-like garb if an airman became downed in Germany.

It was Hutton who designed fret-saws that could be hidden in lead pencils; silk maps of Europe so thin they could be concealed in a playing card, and cigarette holders that really were high-powered telescopes for observing Nazi guards.

The Hutton devices were so clever they were mailed to Allied men as prisoner-of-war packages, and the Nazis often failed to detect them until it was too late.

Hutton had to battle British military censors to get this book released. Reason: it also reveals how military red tape perilled the war effort.

OF SPECIAL interest to lovers of the sea are two fine books that will be out this week: "QUEENS OF THE WESTERN OCEAN" and "GREYHOUNDS OF THE SEA" by Carl C. Cutler (United States Naval Institute, Annapolis, $12.50 each, $20 for the set). Both have photographs, ships' lines, maps, appendixes. "Queens" is about American sailing packets, the businessmen who conceived them and won or lost fortunes on them, the captains and the seamen who drove them through on schedule, the buoyant spirit of pre-Civil War America which made possible the first long steps toward reliable, comfortable sea travel since the time of Columbus. It tells how the American merchant marine, paced by the passenger liners, in the first half of the 19th Century climaxed two centuries of progress with a burst of speed, and overtook the greatest sea powers in history. "Greyhounds" relates the rise and decline of the American clipper ship. The men who played a part in that drama were cast in Homeric mold, their achievements matching and possibly surpassing that of Viking voyagers and Elizabethan navigators. Cutler, a leading American maritime historian, began work on these volumes shortly after World War I.

TONY ANDREWS, who gets into Heaven by the slimmest of chances, and his guardian angel Hank return to earth so that Tony may redeem himself by helping a family in serious trouble. They land in a small Indiana town where a man has been accused of murder and his wife accused of witchcraft by the frightened townspeople. The real killer is revealed, residents of the community realize their tragic mistake, love overcomes prejudice and Tony is redeemed. "I AM ANTHONY" by Peg Stokes (Prentice-Hall, $3.95).

EIGHTY-ONE ESSAYS and excerpts from the author's work make up "THE BASIC WRITINGS OF BERTRAND RUSSELL" (Simon & Schuster, $10), edited by Robert E. Egner and Lester E. Denonn, with a preface by Lord Russell. They range from sketches and short stories to mathematics and philosophy.

VOLTAIRE (LEFT) AND JEAN JACQUES ROUSSEAU, as drawn by Milton Glaser for the jacket of "Voltaire! Voltaire!" historical novel by Guy Endore. (Simon and Schuster, $5.95.)

Crunchy Lime Cooler is tasty, attractive; may be served at dessert time as parfaits or as sundaes.

Crunchy Lime Cooler

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

PARFAIT rates with many as the perfect ending for a meal, and Crunchy Lime Cooler is one such happy climax. It's made with vanilla ice cream, fresh lime sauce and bite-sized shredded rice biscuits.

Make it ahead of time, if you like, the lime sauce will keep in the refrigerator at least a week. The cereal is flavored with sugar and lime peel and can be made several days ahead, stored in cake tins. The cereal is delicious this way; make double amount and serve half as nibbles for bridge party or for the youngsters.

Parfait glasses are not necessary, but those who have them can make the desserts a week or two ahead and freeze them. Thick milk glass sherbets also can be used for freezing, but not thin glasses which may crack when exposed to the warm air again.

Crunchy Lime Cooler

2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 teaspoons and 1 teaspoon grated lime peel
2 cups bite-size shredded rice biscuits
¼ cup and ½ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ cup lime juice
¾ cup water
3 drops green food coloring
1½ teaspoons butter or margarine
3 cups ice cream*

Combine melted butter and 2 teaspoons grated lime peel. Toss cereal in mixture to coat. Sprinkle ¼ cup sugar over cereal. Cook over low heat 5 minutes to crisp. Cool on absorbent paper. Combine ½ cup sugar, salt and cornstarch. Add lime juice, water and food coloring slowly. Stir over low heat. Boil 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Add remaining butter and lime peel. Cool. Crush cereal to 1 cup. Place a scoop of ice cream in the bottom of each parfait glass. Add 1 tablespoon sauce and 2 teaspoons crushed cereal to each. Repeat. Add another scoop ice cream. Top each with 2 teaspoons cereal. Place in freezer for at least 1 hour. Yield: 8 parfaits—1 cup sauce.

* Amount of ice cream required depends on the size of parfait glasses used.

CAMERA ANGLES

Father Time Gets in the Picture

By Irving Desfor

TIME AND TIMING are vital elements which camera fans can use to better advantage to make better pictures.

Why do so many of us rush into and through our picture-taking sessions when patience and more thoughtful shooting would produce more meaningful pictorial memories?

The thought crossed my mind as I studied a photograph made by a Pakistani photographer. The little story that accompanied the photo told how he waited for almost a year to take that picture. It was made on June 21, when the sun was at its highest elevation, producing the most favorable lighting angle for particular effect he visualized: two natives enjoying their morning coffee before a backlit grill which cast a perfect shadow design on the ground.

IT WAS a contrast to many of my own experiences and to what I've seen other photographers go through at family gatherings, outings, picnic; at sessions when children were playing or when trying to make portrait studies. When the camera is in our hands to record the occasion, we feel impelled to press the button even though we may not be satisfied with what we see in front of our lens.

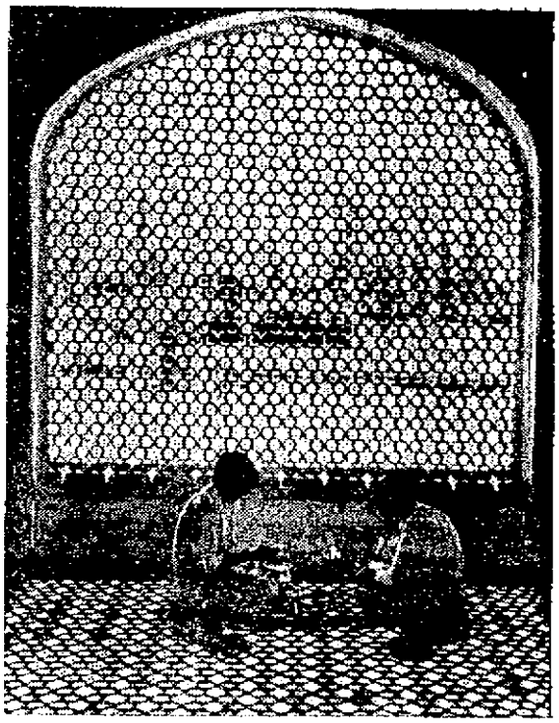

The grouping may look confusing, action may not look spontaneous or natural, expressions may appear self-conscious but we shoot anyway because it's the quickest and easiest way out. It's easier, that is, than waiting for a better moment. Perhaps we're afraid to wait.

Yet, in almost all cases, people eventually lose interest in the photographer and become absorbed in their own activities.

THAT'S WHEN children uncover some of their cutest antics, when groups form natural, interesting patterns and when expressions are true and revealing. But by that time, usually, the camera is put away or the film on hand had been finished.

The best strategy, therefore, is to work with time as your ally. Take a few token pictures at the start, but far fewer than would have been taken normally. People relax after a few clicks have been heard. Let them—but keep the camera visible and handy and every once in a while use it to view the scene without necessarily shooting anything.

Such behavior becomes accepted after a while and ignored. But it gives you the opportunity to select the significant moments when they finally reveal themselves. And if you do get pictures, they'll usually be worth the waiting.

To get this picture when the sun would be just right, June 21, Ch. A. Hassan of Pakistan waited for a year. He used a Rolleiflex at 1/50 and f/8, using pan film.

Silky Is a Merry Fellow

By Eleanor Avery Price

IF YOU ARE looking for a toy dog that can dream up more fun than a barrel of monkeys, consider the Silky terrier. According to Mae Holt, 1465 Gardenia Ave., there seems to be no end to the rounds of merry-making of a Silky. Her puppies have done a good job of supplying nylons for the American Legion Auxiliary, making hay out of cleaning tissues, getting their whiskers stuck with caramel candy and similar antics. But this breed is very intelligent and gradually can be trained in good behavior.

The Silky, as with any other breed, learns best during its formative period and learns much as a little child does — through association of ideas. Once an admonition is given it must be obeyed. However, the breed should retain its terrier characteristics. His joy in living, his confidence in his home and the outside world are attributes that must never be destroyed.

In a recent newsletter from the Silky Terrier Club of America, there appears a paragraph on training, the contents of which are food for thought for all dog owners training or contemplating training their dogs in obedience. It was written by Eleanor Depold who states: "It has long been a peeve of ours that dog owners think they must use drastic measures to get obedience. We are of the opinion that a shrill voice giving a command excites the dog, causing confusion. Our neighbors are puzzled by the obedience we get from a single 'No.' This, when the dogs cannot see us but can hear us. No wonder so many owners consider their dogs 'dumb,' not realizing they are at fault. Few speak quietly to their pets. Anyone working with dogs can tell by their behavior how the owners train them."

SILKY TERRIERS started as the 113th breed recognized by the AKC in 1959 and now rank 63rd on the popularity poll. There's no telling how far up the little imps will scamper in the future. Their good qualities are many. Beyond being merry and intelligent, they are sturdy, their food bill is small, and grooming requirements consist only of attention to the nails and daily brushing.

The Silky people have worked out a brushing program suitable for many breeds. They recommend a natural bristle brush, for it is easier on the coat than a nylon brush, and for damp brushing it does a better job of holding water. Damp brushing helps prevent a coat from matting. Wet the brush well with soft or distilled water and brush one side of the dog till dry, then dampen brush again and do the other side. (With a large dog, the brush may need several dampenings.) If soft or distilled water is used, the dog can be damp brushed every other day.

If matting occurs, bathe the pet with Castile shampoo, then brush dry, working to the skin. Remaining mats may be oiled with Lanolin or baby oil, left on a few hours or overnight, then mats worked apart. Only extreme matting should be cut out.

ORANGE EMPIRE Dog Club has scheduled an unbenched show and obedience trial July 16 at John Galvin Park, Ontario.

Air Race

picks up a dish to demonstrate. "In Italy a woman must be handled as if she will break." In America, she is treated like "rubber which will snap back again. . . . Husband and wife are more friends here."

In the sixth Derby, Fran was first to try soloing. The mechanics of clocking arrivals at way stops makes a co-pilot desirable. At each stop, the pilot taxis up to a time clock to have her elapsed time recorded. A co-pilot can take a flying leap out of the cockpit and shove the log book into the timing mechanism. To avoid losing a few precious minutes, Fran was seen acting as her own co-pilot, jumping from her taxiing plane, running a quarter mile to the mechanical timekeeper, and then racing to her plane to "land."

WOMEN FLIERS hold flying in high regard, with a sameness of spirit and a compound of exuberance and common sense.

"There's time for everything," Fran Bera says, and that's reflected in her log book which contains entries indicating such stints as leading a low-on-fuel and lost racing pal, a great-grandmother, to safety in a storm; giving free plane rides to blind children and training as an astronaut.

"I do what I like to do—and I like to fly, so I fly," says Grazia.

Women pilots are winning increasing recognition (a prime goal of the TAR), and few remain as unbelieving as the pigtailed female reported in a news item among Fran's clippings who watched a plane land in her parents' field, and race to the farmhouse to gasp, her eyes as big and shiny as flying saucers, "There's no pilot—just a woman!"

Silky terriers are a happy-go-lucky lot, as are these pups owned by Mrs. Marshall (Mae) Holt of 1465 Gardenia Ave. Silkies' food bill is small, dogs are sturdy and grooming is no great chore.

Grow Your Own Fruit

By Bob Gilmore

Calomondin is a heavy producer of a reddish-orange fruit of the citrus family.

GROWING fresh fruit at home is one way of increasing your garden pleasures. Southern California is one of the few areas in this country where subtropicals produce as profusely as in their native habitat. Especially interesting is the fact that in this region many subtropicals can be planted almost throughout the year. Start now to grow fruit trees for health and garden beauty.

Carissa grandiflora, the Natal plum, is one of the most attractive subtropical fruits and is more familiar as an ornamental than as a fruit. The foliage is dark green and feathery in appearance. The blossoms are small, dainty and highly fragrant. The fruits, which set off the plants because of their rich scarlet coloring, appear intermittently throughout the year.

Carissa grandiflora is a natural for local growing conditions. The plants attain a height of eight feet at maturity, yet may be pruned to any height desired. The more the stems are cut, the thicker the plant will grow. Carissas are not over-sensitive to either soil or climatic conditions, thriving from the coast to the hot, inland valleys.

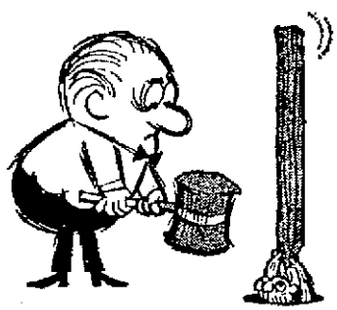

JAM WITH a delightful flavor can be made from the fruits of the carissa. It tastes like cranberry sauce and is entirely different from any other jam. The fruits can also be used for making preserves.

The Gold Nugget loquat is one of the best varieties for coastal areas. This is an orange-flesh type and is decidedly sweeter than any of the white-fleshed loquats. Loquats generally are hardier than the average subtropical and are somewhat easier to grow. The loquat produces a small, spreading tree that performs admirably as an all-around garden ornamental. Loquat jelly has an aromatic flavor and is so good that you'll always want a second helping.

The calamondin tree is a mass producer, hundreds and hundreds of fruit appearing in a few months. The calamondin, a native of the Philippines, thrives under local growing conditions. The fruits are reddish-orange in color and clearly indicate that they belong to the citrus family.

THE CALAMONDIN probably produces more fruit per tree than any other comparable variety; the individual fruits seem to have more juice than any other type of orange; the blossoms, which are practically pure white, are larger and more fragrant than any other citrus blossom. The calamondin has a greater resistance to cold than any other edible citrus grown in this region.

The macadamia is an evergreen nut tree that grows to 25 or 30 feet. The nuts, which have a diameter of slightly more than one inch, are produced in giant clusters like grapes. The edible section is white, tender and well flavored. The shell is round and quite hard. Under ideal growing conditions the macadamia will bear in three years from planting time.

Now's Time to Recondition Iris

Iris that has not been divided should now be dug up and separated, replanting new growth, discarding old.

By Joe Littlefield

IRIS CLUMPS that have not been divided for three or four years should now be dug up and separated, discarding old and knobby sections and replanting new ones.

Iris need a sunny location but need not be planted by themselves. You'll create a more pleasing effect if you plant iris in a flower bed, in groups of three, the plants set out in a triangle form, with the foliage growth ends of the rhizomes facing away from the center of the triangle. Consensus among iris growers is that a slanting (angle) cut is better than cutting foliage back on iris you replant. The new blades (leaves) coming on seem to form a better shaped fan and there is less chance of water or pests causing rot as the cut heals.

THE TOP of the rhizome (thick root stock where yarn size roots grow down from bottom side of rhizome) should be showing slightly above soil level. If the rhizome is buried, the iris is less likely to bloom or may be short in blooms. When temperature rises in warm areas, the gardener should rake a little film of soil over the top of the exposed rhizomes to prevent drying out that may cause the top of rhizomes to crack.

Uses for iris include edging of walk or driveway, in front of large evergreen shrubs, space between house or driveway, between garage and walk or path. Plants should be in sun, or little more sun than shade.

Tips on Gardening

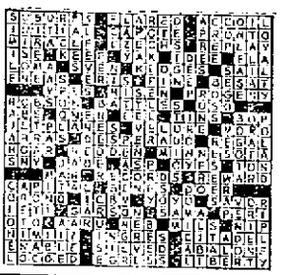

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Wetting agents are now available for garden use. This material increases soil porosity; thus water will penetrate to the root zone; not run off.

A cold shower bath will invigorate your fuchsias. A sprinkling will increase, if only temporary, the humidity and will wash dust and dirt off the plants.

Plants are now growing vigorously and must be fed regularly to sustain their growth.

Now is time to dig up those daffodils that bloomed last spring, and the question naturally arises, "Is digging really necessary?" According to the California Association of Nurserymen, digging seems to result in better bloom though it's not really necessary unless clumps are quite crowded.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

By Dorothy Jonson

It is nearing the time to plant iris, as well as to divide and reset old clumps. And since previous preparation of the soil is particularly important with regard to iris, a helpful suggestion may be welcome.

Because I know that many iris troubles are caused by soil conditions, I urge you to use from 2½ to 3 pounds of soil sulphur to each 100 square feet and impregnate it into the soil in which you are going to plant iris. This will flocculate the soil to a great degree, purify it and also prevent souring, a condition often responsible for disease. Frequently when a collapse is established on an iris plant, we refer to it as a disease called blight or scorch but actually this could often be prevented by proper preparation of the soil in advance.

Iris should never be planted very deep. Just deep enough to hold firmly in the ground.

BILL WELCH
Ladies Are Welcome

WHO IS he? Who is that pleasant new host who has been very much in evidence in recent weeks around The Tenderloin restaurant, 4363 Altantic Ave.?

He's assistant manager Bill Welch, brother of owner Rex Welch. For 10 years Bill was manager of Welch's restaurant in Whittier, and for 10 years prior to that he was on the Los Angeles staff of Variety, serving as circulation manager and on the advertising and reportorial staffs.

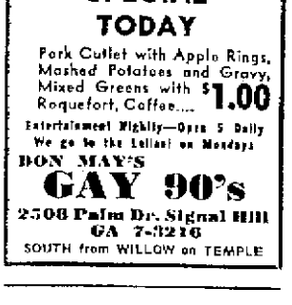

The Welch family is thoroughly a part of the restaurant field. Frank Welch, another brother, is bar manager of the Left Bank restaurant on 52nd Street in New York. Their sister, Dorothy Welch Eddy, has operated the Seafood Tavern in Pasadena since 1935.

SINCE IT OPENED last November, The Tenderloin has quickly gained recognition throughout the Southland as an unusually fine restaurant. Smartly modern in decor, The Tenderloin is devoted to glorifying one magnificent item: Beef. Featured are extraordinary cuts of prime ribs au jus (from $3) and a variety of small and large tenderloin, New York cut and top sirloin steaks, fully charcoal-broiled and priced from $3.50. They are accompanied by tossed salads mixed artfully in giant bowls atop beds of ice; spectacular baked potatoes, vegetable du jour and beverage. The service, by teams of waiters, is luxuriously leisurely.

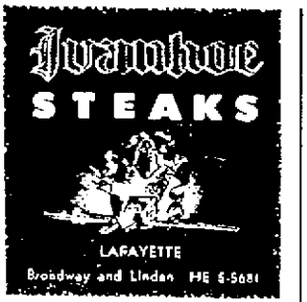

Quoting Lord Bryon—"Ye olde order always changeth, yielding to new"—Bill Welch is pleased to welcome the ladies to luncheon at The Tenderloin. These luncheons, formerly open exclusively to men, include salads and gourmet roast beef and corned beef served on onion bread buns.

Dinners are served daily and Sunday from 5 p.m. on. Luncheons are daily from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. The restaurant is closed Mondays.

AL Auxiliary 'Golden Mike'

ANAHEIM (CNS) — Television stars Robert Young and Loretta Young have received American Legion Auxiliary "Golden Mike" awards for their 1960 television programs, "Father Knows Best" and "The Loretta Young Show."

The Golden Mike Medallions, presented annually by the organization, were awarded recently by Mrs. Henry Ahnemiller, Wenatchee, Wash., national president of the auxiliary, at a luncheon in Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim.

Mrs. A. W. Flory, of Merced, department president, said awards go to radio and television shows voted the most popular in the auxiliary's annual poll of nearly one million members.

Classroom

"Continental Classroom" will open its fourth hear on NBC-TV next fall with a new course in American Government. Dr. Peter H. Odegard, one of the nation's most distinguished political scientists, now professor of political science at the University of California at Berkeley, will teach the two-semester, college-level course.

CAROL BURNETT . . . Walks 20 Blocks a Day

AND ASTRONAUTIC THINGS

Carol's Head 'Full of Space'

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI)—Carol Burnett, at 26 a star who is glowing to new magnitude, is an exuberant bundle of redheaded comic talent who:

Likes to chew on hunks of ice out of her water glass. ("I understand Perry Como does it too. Please excuse me for being an ice chewer, but it started when I was 7 in San Antonio—I always chased ice wagons.")

Is a bug on the subject of space exploration and things astronautic. ("My head is full of space.")

Is crazy about dogs. ("My dog Bruce—named after a fellow I knew in college—gave birth to her second litter, two pups, the other day. Her husband is named Fang. They're Yorkshire terriers, little dogs, and their pups are named Dempsey and Tunney. Dempsey's a girl pup. Just for once, I'd like to have a dog named Rover.")

Walks 20 blocks a day. (The only other exercise she takes to keep svelte is do the Garry Moore show weekly on CBS-TV—"We hearse all day Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and tape on Friday, and it's a good workout, really takes its toll.")

Is headed inexorably for Broadway musical comedy. The "inexorably" is one man's opinion, but I don't see how she can miss, unless she breaks a leg—and even if she breaks one she can still fracture audiences, even if she comes on in a wheelchair.

MISS BURNETT'S FIRST PERSONAL record album, out on the Decca label, has her singing 12 tunes that once stopped a show. And if you ask her what her desire in a career is, she says quickly:

"I want to be Ethel Merman. We don't look alike. We don't sing alike. But I want a career in musical comedy. I'm from Texas and I sing pretty loud—like a Texas hog caller. I now

Nazi Films Criticized in Germany

By LOYAL GOULD

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) —German television has been giving its public a good dose of Nazi history. Judging from the mail bag, the public doesn't like it.

The history lesson comes as a 14-part film series on the Hitler period, with each installment running about one hour.

To most non-German viewers it seems like an objective documentary. The series does not spare Teutonic sensibilities.

Letter writers seem to agree Nazi extermination of Jews was wrong, but the producers say other comments are "frightening in their connotation."

"We were ready for almost anything from the crackpots," says co-producer Hainz Huber, "but the reaction we're getting comes from a cross section of German society." He adds that his "only hope is that those who don't write approve."

* * * *

HUBER and associates in the state-operated TV spent one year gathering material in Germany and foreign archives. Another year and nearly $3 million were needed to put it together.

Entitled "The Third Reich," it is seen by perhaps four or five million viewers.

Some letter writers accuse the producers of trying to spread concepts of the German's collective war guilt. Others suggest ulterior motives.

"They want to know who's paying us—the Russians, the Americans—even the chancellor (Konrad Adenauer) is mentioned as a possible backer," said an official connected with the series.

Others think the film fails to give the Nazis credit for wiping out unemployment and for organizing youth.

* * * *

THE LETTERS from a third group are characterized by two distinct thoughts:

1. The Czechs and Poles deserve no sympathy for their war-time sufferings. This goes back to the old Hitler charge that they mistreated Germans living within their boundaries before the war.

2. The Versailles Treaty after World War I levied unjust penalties on Germany, creating a hostile atmosphere conducive to Hitler's rise.

take voice lessons once a week—started them when I started in 'Once Upon A Mattress.' I'm hoping next year to do another show. Would I leave TV for it? Yes, but in a way it's good to leave it—so you don't wear your welcome out."

Miss Burnett achieved a lifelong ambition when she opened in the comedy starring role of "Mattress" here in 1959. It had taken five years of work and struggle. She came here in 1954 and got a job as a hatcheck girl.

"It was a sort of Dolly Dainty Restaurant, with a men's grill downstairs," she recalled. "The check room was on the street floor, and you had to sort of trip the men to make 'em give you their coats. I couldn't stand to see all those quarters going downstairs.

"Another girl and I shared the job. We each worked three days a week. We split the tips—got no salary—and made about $30 a week apiece. We were living at the rehearsal club (the famed Theatrical Club about which the play 'Stage Door' was written) at $18 a week for room and board—so I had $12 a week left to squander."

MISS BURNETT LEAPED to national attention in 1957 through three sudden TV appearances. She had started in July in an act at a nightclub in which she sang a comedy song titled "I Made A Fool Of Myself Over John Foster Dulles."

Second Season

Durward Kirby will be host of "Candid Camera" when it begins its second season Sunday, Oct. 1. Kirby will succeed Arthur Godfrey, who earlier announced his intention to leave the CBS series.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

If you want to know what happened to summer television, just ask the audience. If you can find it, that is.

The audience, that is.

Betwixt the equinoxes of vernal and autumnal, there lies a great chunk of dead air space. It is the fashion, during this period, to complain about the programs.

The programmers, however, have a great deal more to complain about than the programmees. The plain fact is that hardly anybody watches television during the murky summer evenings. Hardly anybody, of course, in comparison to the millions who—when the snow is piled high on East Second Street—congregate around the tube and spill popcorn on the broadloom.

SINCE THE PROGRAMMERS must have a considerable congregation to properly peddle their girdles, gas pills and goiabada, they come up short in the summertime. What more natural, then, to pluck from the files the more successful shows of the winter past, and have at them again?

TO PROPERLY research this problem, we conducted a survey. We interviewed Shirley Trimmer, the landlady of an apartment house at 3619 E. First St. Nobody knows more about how many television sets are turned on, we figured, than a landlady.

"The evenings are too nice," she explained, "for people to stay inside and watch television."

SENSITIVE TO THE FACT that the little beams that radiate from their antennae are hitting turned-off tubes, the television people trim their budget to the times. In television, there are four seasons: fall, winter, spring and repeats.

In fact, you can't even find a television editor around these days.—G.C.F.

ANDY DEVINE INDICATES DOOR TO NEW SERIES

ANDY DEVINE WANTS SERIES

Gravel-Throat Comedian Portrays TV Detective

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Gravel-voiced Andy Devine has given up comedy to join the mob.

The mob of detectives wedged into television, that is.

Andy has completed a television pilot titled "Big Jake," in which character is taken from a real-life Seattle detective. The pilot was aired recently on the "Barbara Stanwyck Show."

"It's sort of a detective series with Lawrence Welk music," he said, intimating the show would not be filled with bongo drums and beatnik flutes as are such whodunits as "77 Sunset Strip" and "Peter Gunn."

Andy is round, but the show is square.

"There's no comedy in it for me," he added. "I play a big, soft-hearted slob who takes his work seriously. Big Jake spends as much time proving men are innocent as he does arresting them."

Devine, who must weigh 300 pounds, is best remembered by televiewers for his role of "Jingles" on the "Wild Bill Hickok" series.

* * * *

"I'm still making money outta that show," he said.

"We made 118 episodes in seven years. Guy Madison and I each owned 10 per cent of the program. Guy sold his interest, but the money keeps rolling in for me."

Actors half Andy's age refuse TV shows, claiming the grind of a weekly series is too exhausting.

"It's hard work, but I enjoy it," Andy grinned. "I'm in business to make money, and there's plenty of dough to be made in a series.

"Besides, the new show will be easier than 'Wild Bill Hickok.' At my age a horse gets higher and wider every year. It will be a breeze exchanging a horse for a desk."

* * * *

ANDY IS ON tenterhooks with his new effort.

But if it doesn't sell, Andy needn't worry. He lives well in a beautiful home in Newport Beach, right on the water. He spends his days playing golf and sailing around the bay in his boat.

"I'd like to see the series go," he said. "For years I was the second guy through the door who always got into trouble and had somebody a lot smarter get me out of it.

"It would be nice to get myself out of trouble for a change."

Shoot TV Pilots Starring Top Names

Pilots for six proposed television shows are being filmed by 20th Century-Fox.

They are "Bus Stop," "The Hunters," Margie," "House on Rue Riviera," "The Ginger Rogers Show" and "The Jayhawkers."

"Bus Stop," based on the William Inge play, has a cast including Marilyn Maxwell, Joseph Cotten, Tuesday Weld and Buddy Ebsen.

"The Hunters," a big-game hunting series, features Brett Halsey, Skip Homeier, Guy Stockwell and Felicia Farr.

"Margie," the story of a teenage girl in the 1920's, stars Cynthia Pepper in the title role.

"House on Rue Riviera," set against the background of the French Riviera, stars Jayne Mansfield and Diana Trask.

"The Ginger Rogers Show" will feature the actress in twin roles. Charlie Ruggles has a key part.

"The Jayhawkers," a post-Civil War western, stars Dan Dailey and Ann Blythe.

MONIQUE VAN VOOREN
Can't Gain Weight

Monique, Tall Serious Actress Now

DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—Monique Van Vooren . . . tall, blonde, full of incidental information. . . . For example, Sophia Loren has to put on 15 pounds when she makes a movie in Europe, take off 15 pounds when she makes a movie here. . . . "Why is it," asks Monique, "that American men like their women bony?"

* * * *

MONIQUE'S weight problem is different. . . . She has to take shots to put on some pounds. . . . Doctor's orders. . . . "It is something in my heredity," she says. "I can't gain weight. Also in heredity is the fact that I never get cavities. My mother is 50, never had a cavity."

Monique is a serious actress these days. . . . No more cheesecake for her. . . . "I could make three times the money in clubs, or acting as a foil for a comedian. But I don't want that. If I have to work, I should at least do the things I enjoy."

So this summer, she'll do a musical — "Destry Rides Again"—in stock. . . . "Where I'd really like to be is on the Riviera, in St. Tropez, doing nothing and wearing no clothes. Or hardly any."

* * * *

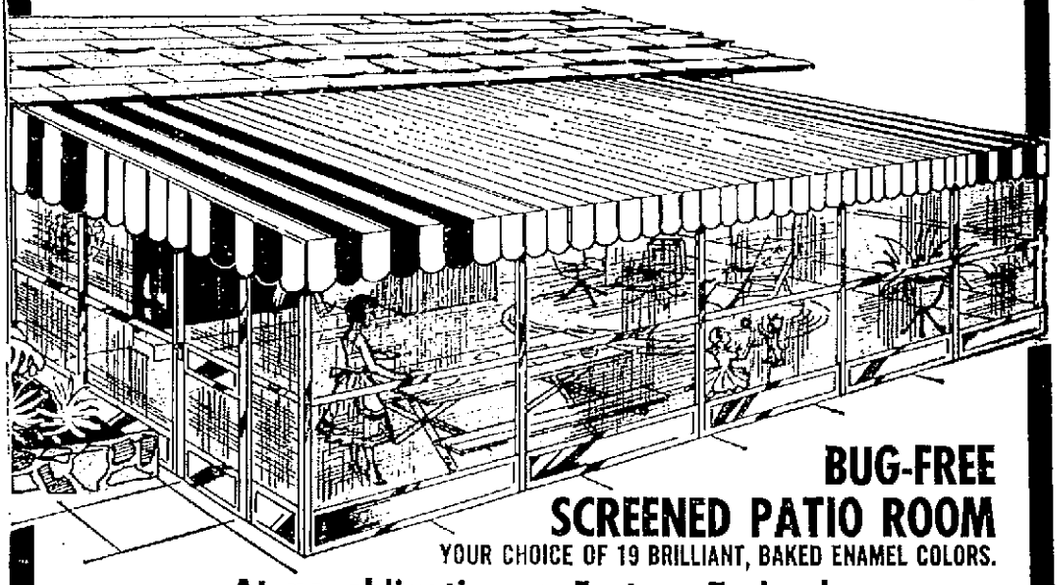

SHE'S BEEN studying acting and singing for several years. . . . Classes three times a week. . . . "Now I have a big voice—as big as Dolores Grey's. But there are few parts for me. I'm not the All-American girl and never will be."

TV, she thinks, has been a big help to her. . . . She's done many panel shows. . . . "They prove to the public that I'm more than just a face and body."

Kilocycle Kops Monitor Airwaves

By PATRICK YOUNG

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The real sleuths of the airwaves aren't those heard or seen on your radio or television sets.

Instead, they are real life "kilocycle kops"—members of the Federal Communications Commission's field engineering and monitoring bureau—who police the airwaves around-the-clock for Uncle Sam.

In fact the bureau's 400 employes make up nearly one-third of the commission's entire personnel.

The kops — a nickname given to them by the FACC—operate 24 district offices, five sub-offices, two marine offices, and 18 monitoring stations across the nation. Their duties includes inspection, investigation, monitoring, engineering and licensing, enforcement of the communications laws.

Federal law provides a maximum penalty of two years in prison, a $10,000 fine, or both, for violations. The bureau often uses mobile—and sometimes portable—direction finders to track down offenders.

The kops keep their ears cocked for unauthorized broadcasts. They also investigate interferences which often mar radio and television reception.

Not long ago, a Chicago suburb suddenly found itself with a new radio station—one the FCC hadn't licensed. It not only broadcast recorded music, news and "man-on-the-street" interviews, but threw in free commercials.

The bureau investigated. It found four boys who aimed for perfection—if not legality—in their operation. Posted at the station's "studio" were a list of rules and fines. Among them were "goofing names in the news—3 cents" and "messing up commercials—5 cents."

Sometimes violations have a more serious motive.

Radio Liberty Fights Cold War - - in 17 Languages!

By LEROY KELLER

MUNICH (UPI)—Out of a steel, and concrete building here goes crackling across the Iron Curtain a barrage of broadcasts in 17 languages. Radio Liberty (RL) fights the cold war of the air waves 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

There are some 10 million privately owned radio sets in the Soviet Union and this is Radio Liberty's potential audience. It is trying to explain the western way of life to the persons who gather around these radio sets from the Polish border to the Siberian steppes.

How many Russians listen? How are they affected by what they hear? Is Radio Liberty getting through to its listeners or is it, in effect, talking into a dead microphone.

RESEARCHERS for Radio Liberty strive constantly to measure the size of the audience inside Russia. For example, an announcer will say at the end of a particular program: "If you liked this feature, please write us at Box 7, Stockholm," or "Box 49, Paris."

A flood of mail will come pouring in within a day or two, but by the end of the week Soviet authorities will have succeeded in shutting off all letters and postal cards addressed to that box number. But an analysis will give a clue to the over-all number of listeners, since these documents have a surprisingly even geographical distribution.

From its samplings, Radio Liberty has found that it does have a large audience of Soviet listeners—not only those who have radio receivers, but millions of others who go to the homes of owners of sets.

AND, OF THOSE who have heard Radio Liberty at all, more than half are regular listeners, according to Max Ralis, manager of audience research and evaluation department.

So while there can be no exact measurement, in terms of numbers, Ralis points out that Radio Liberty definitely is not talking to a "dead mike." Moreover, Ralis can give a pretty good picture of the average listener inside Russia.

"More likely than not," Ralis said, "he lives in the European part of the USSR; he will belong to the intelligentsia; he will be between 25 and 40 years old; and he will be a man of mixed political feelings."

He need not necessarily be unfriendly to the Soviet regime, but he will have a genuine interest in what is going on in the West and in western viewpoints and reactions.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

Thrice-told tale: Susan Hayward and John Gavin star in new version of classic Back Street.

DIET 116. In 1892 Simon Lake offered his invention, the submarine, to the U.S. Government. It was turned down. Following World War II, Capt. Hyman Rickover suggested that the U.S. Navy become nuclear powered. Navy brass tried to retire Rickover. Now comes the case of Diet 116. Several years ago the late Dr. Jesse Greenstein, a cancer expert working for the National Cancer Institute, and his associate, Dr. Milton Winitz, developed a synthetic diet called "Diet 116." It consists of amino acid crystals dissolved in water, plus carbohydrates, vitamins and essential fats--all the materials necessary for growth, tissue repair and maintenance. Amino acids are the basic constituents of protein. They can be made out of elements in the air. One cubic foot of Diet 116 is enough to sustain a human being for 30 days. The amino acid crystals, now expensive to manufacture, can be manufactured cheaply if one small pilot factory is erected. Diet 116 can be used in our Foreign Aid Program, our Space Program, has many medical uses. Diet 116 has worked perfectly on rats and a few human beings. Dr. Winitz is so sure of it he is willing to give it to his two young children. The Diet looks like tea and can be made to taste like any flavored soda. The National Institutes of Health, however, is cutting back on the Diet 116 project, which could very well be one of the most world-wide humanitarian projects ever developed by U.S. scientists. Before Dr. Winitz leaves government service, which he may do, the Kennedy Administration had best contact him.

RAINIER CIGARETTES. His Serene Highness, Prince Rainier of Monaco, is a sharp promoter. He has now lent his name and Grimaldi family coat of arms to the exploitation of filter-tipped cigarettes to be called Prince of Monaco.

BIG NAME SPY. The Secret Service has quietly turned down a big name writer who applied for White House credentials. Intelligence reports identifed him as a Soviet agent.

FANCY PRICES. Highest paperback reprint price, $400,000, goes to William Shirer for his best-seller, The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich. No. 2 price ($265,000) went to Grace Metalious for Return to Peyton Place. No. 3 price ($260,000) went to Winston Churchill for his war memoirs. No. 4 price ($125,000) went to the late Errol Flynn for My Wicked, Wicked Ways.

HOLLYWOOD REMAKES. The motion picture industry, which is always chasing itself around in cycles, is now on a remake binge. Ever since Ben Hur hit it big, the studios have been searching through old story files for hits of yesteryear. MGM, for example, is remaking Mutiny on the Bounty, first released in 1935; The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, released in 1921. Twentieth Century-Fox, having remade The Blue Angel (1930), is preparing to remake State Fair (1945) and Of Human Bondage (1934 and 1946). Universal, having remade Imitation of Life, a 1934 release, has just finished another remake, Back Street, which originally was made in 1932 with Irene Dunne and John Boles, then remade again in 1941 with Margaret Sullavan and Charles Boyer. The third version stars Susan Hayward and John Gavin.

NEW GAMBLERS. New legislation liberalizing gambling in England has housewives placing their bets with the milkman. The milkman turns the bets over to a licensed bookie, and the next day the housewife, if she's lucky, gets her winnings with the morning's milk delivery. Church and civic leaders are already denouncing the new legislation, claim it will undermine the typical British home.

HILARIOUS

These beach hats are show-stoppers

DO WOMEN DRESS for themselves, or do they dress for men? No one will ever determine the answer to that one. But if the girls' beach millinery this summer is any indication, they are dressing to attract attention.

Look at the hilarious headgear on these pages. Not even the Mad Hatter of Alice in Wonderland ever came up with more startling, bizarre show-stoppers. These hats can be used in lieu of red lights at any downtown intersection, as they're guaranteed to stop traffic.

Kay Cantonwine, a shrewd, shapely model who designed them for California Accessories, says, "They are selling like mad, especially in the resort cities and beach centers."

Kay claims the hats are "both cute and utilitarian." Their purpose, aside from arousing male curiosity, is to give a girl something light and comfy to put on her head after she's had her swim.

"No girl who wears one of these hats," says Kay, "ever lolls on the beach unnoticed. As a matter of fact, only a few weeks ago I was wearing one of them in Miami Beach, and a little boy came up to me and said, 'Excuse me, Ma'am, but are you a space woman from Mars?' "

—NANCY HAGEN

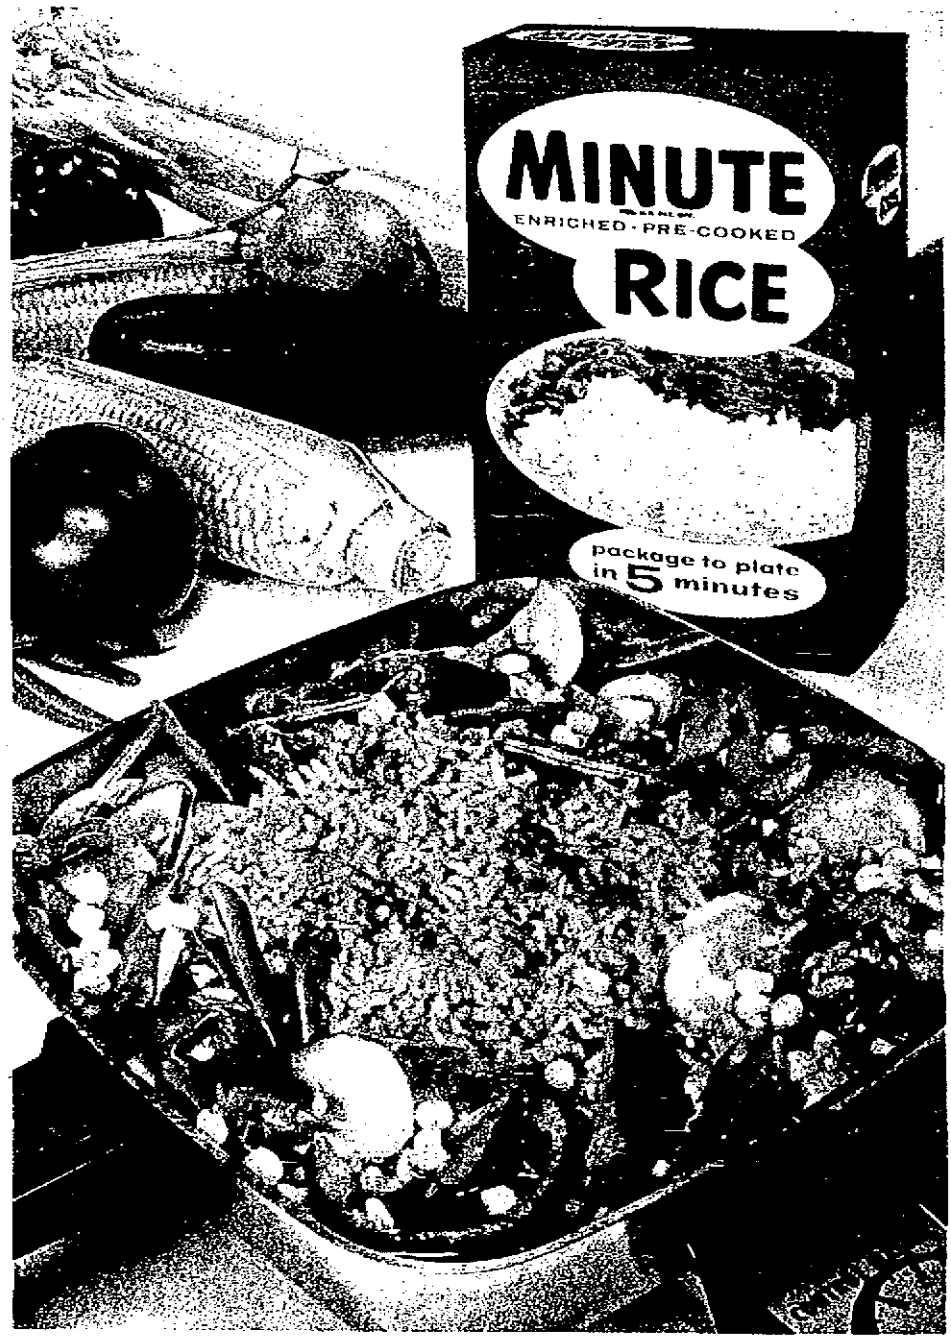

$11.95. 4 Safari hat is topped by dodo bird, costs $11.95. 5 "Beehive" (see cover) is double layer of silk organza on Italian straw, about $16. 6 Red Italian straw and silk organza costs $11.95.

–but they have a practical side, too

"Mop" was designed by Kay Cantonwine two years ago. When it sold well, she designed other hats for beach wear.

Garden Jambalaya

New beat-the-heat casserole takes 12 minutes . . . but only with Minute Rice

When Minute Rice and sun-ripened vegetables get together . . . m-m-m! No heating up the kitchen—because you don't stop to cook Minute Rice. Just pour it—right out of the box—into the dewy vegetables. Simmer for 5 low-heat minutes—the long-grain rice drinks up the crisp green pepper and onion flavors, fluffs up rosy with fresh tomato taste.

Fix it while the cook-out's cooking—it's happy with hamburgers. Or add chopped left-over ham, beef or chicken—you have dinner-in-a-dish.

GARDEN JAMBALAYA

½ cup diced celery • 3 tablespoons butter
4 cups assorted fresh garden vegetables (sliced summer squash, green beans, corn, cucumber, green pepper, or tomato wedges)
2 cups hot bouillon
1 teaspoon salt • ⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons water • 1⅓ cups Minute Rice

Sauté onion and celery in butter in a skillet until tender. Stir in other vegetables, 1 cup bouillon, salt, pepper, lemon juice. Stir cornstarch into water until smooth. Gradually stir into vegetables.

Make a well in center of vegetables. Pour in Minute Rice (right from the box). Pour remaining bouillon over rice, moistening evenly. Cover. Simmer 5 minutes, or until tender. Serves 6 to 8.

When childhood constipation occurs

More mothers use Fletcher's Castoria than any other laxative

Because

Fletcher's Castoria gives the prompt, yet natural-like relief from temporary constipation that medical authorities agree is best for a child's young system. Its pure extract of Senna is considered one of nature's finest vegetable laxative products.

Fletcher's Castoria is gentle, the prime requisite for a child's laxative. It contains none of the harsh drugs which are so often found in adult laxatives, drugs that can upset your child's system.

Fletcher's Castoria is liquid, so exact dosage is sure: from drops to teaspoonfuls as needed. Very important, too, Castoria tastes good. So children take it willingly, even lick the spoon.

Fletcher's Castoria is the only nationally-recognized laxative made especially for children of all ages. So why take chances... the laxative that's "right" for you can well be "wrong" for your child. Get famous Fletcher's Castoria today.

It takes a child's laxative to fulfill a child's needs

A. Mrs. Leland Hayward, the daughter of Lord and Lady Digby, married Mr. Randolph Churchill at 19. He was then 28 and a 2nd lieutenant in the Queen's Royal Hussars. They had a son, now 20, named Winston Churchill in honor of his famous grandfather. In December 1945, the marriage was dissolved. Mrs. Hayward moved to Paris where she was considered one of the great beauties on the Continent. She met producer Leland Hayward in New York and married him in Las Vegas on May 5, 1960, after he had been divorced by his wife, "Slim."

Q. Can you tell me if the White House chef, René Verdon, is a union member?—Vincent Greig, New York, N.Y.

A. Yes. He belongs to Hotel & Club Local 6, New York, of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union.

Q. Does the President's wife still buy her clothes in Paris? —Cam Falk, Detroit, Mich.

NICOLAS EICHMANN

ADOLF EICHMANN

IS THE SON A CHIP OFF THE OLD BLOCK?

Suppose Adolf Eichmann were your father?

by JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON, D.C.

IF ADOLF EICHMANN were your father, how would you feel, what would you say, what would you do in the face of damnable evidence against him as a mass killer of 5 million Jews?

- Would you still love him?
- Would you hate the men who captured him?
- Would you be anti-Semitic?
- Would you still believe in Hitler and Nazi Germany?
- Would you want to forget everything?
- Would you fear for your life?

Nicolas Eichmann, 25, was in hiding here recently for three weeks. He came to Washington from his father's 15-year hideout at Buenos Aires, Argentina, where he lives with his mother, his brothers, Horst, Dieter and Ricardo, his pregnant wife Marta and daughter Monica. He came at PARADE's request to tell the full story of life with Adolf Eichmann, begun with an article he had written for PARADE a few months ago (My father, Adolf Eichmann, March 19, 1961).

I saw Nicolas every day, for 10 to 16 hours. We discussed his entire life in detail, from the time he was born in prewar Germany right up to the present. I was able to look in on his thoughts, to study his reactions as the sickening disclosures piled up in Jerusalem.

And I saw the legacy Adolf Eichman had left. For the son who vaguely resembles him bears the deep and grotesque imprint of a hideous past, as shown by these opinions:

ON HIS FATHER'S GUILT. "It is pure propaganda. The Jews couldn't get the top Nazis, so they looked for a scapegoat. They had to stoop low to find a small lieutenant colonel. If my father had not been alive, they would have found a captain to blame. If there had been no captain, they would have found a lieutenant. If there were no lieutenant, they would have blamed a sergeant. They had to try someone."

ON GERMANY. "I was born in Germany, and I have a German passport, but I do not consider myself a German. I consider myself an Argentine. I have no desire to go back to Germany."

ON WAR CRIMES. "There were not nearly so many Jews killed as has been charged. My father kept the records. There were not 5 million dead. Besides, I have heard that these executions were ordered by top Jews themselves, because they believe Jews should be martyrs."

ON WORLD WAR II. "The suffering during the war was terrible. I can never forgive the British for the way they bombed Prague while we were living there. One of my best friends was killed in the bombing. He was just a boy of 8."

ON THE TRIAL. "I expect the judges to sentence my father to death. But I will appeal to the Nuremberg war crimes tribunal. They are the only court that has a precedent to act upon. And I will ask them to try my father's kidnappers, too, for what they did was illegal."

ON HIMSELF. "I wish I could just change my name and go into hiding. I would like to come to your country with my family, get a good job as an electrician and just lose myself—forget all about the past."

Yet in spite of these opinions, most people like Nicolas (he prefers "Nick" to "Klaus," the German form) the first time they meet him. He seems like a perfectly normal young man. He has curly dark hair, blue eyes, jughandle ears and a long nose like his father's. He is friendly, with a boyish expression, a ready smile, and fluent English, which he learned from GIs after the war. He likes to ogle girls, watch TV Westerns and talk about autos. During his stay here, he spent days trying to figure a way to buy a 1953 Ford and take it back to Argentina. He was crushed to find that the duty was prohibitive.

Mention his father, however, and a chip pops up on Nicolas' shoulder. He is defiant, defensive, full of bitter wisecracks. "My father?" he once responded. "He used to eat Jews for breakfast." Again, discussing the TV show show Have Gun Will Travel, he said, "I should have cards printed, 'Have Gas Chamber Will Travel.' "

Once, with me, he saw President Kennedy from a distance. He said he was impressed and would like to meet the President. Then his bitter humor took over again. "Perhaps," he said, "the President will appoint me his adviser on race relations."

As most newspaper readers know, Eichmann masqueraded even to his own sons as Ricardo Klement, describing himself as their uncle. The truth was not revealed until his capture last May. (Even when their mother gave birth to another son five years ago, according to Nicolas, the boys shrugged it off.)

Yet many of his attitudes, Nick declares, are the result of the influence of "Uncle Ricardo." For instance, his typically German compulsion to work. During his stay in Washington, Nicolas washed my Eichmann's philosophy: "My father was very bitter about the Nuremberg trials. He would often say angrily, 'One day the crowds cheer you, the next day they want to hang you.' He said he was quoting Oliver Cromwell."

Eichmann's pride: "My father liked to boast of the judo he learned in the S.S. He used to taunt me, 'The only violence you know is from comic books. It would be different in a dark alley.' So then I challenged him and threw him."

Eichmann's love: "My father loved Monica, my little girl, who was his first grandchild. He would take her and hoist her in the air and say, 'I always wanted a little girl.' He asks about her in his letters from prison in Jerusalem."

Eichmann's future: "We have received a message from my father—that he was being cared for 'like any other prisoner.' I would like to go to Israel and see him, even in prison. I know that I might be in danger, but I'm not afraid of that."

The last 'victims' of a mass killer: his own family car almost every day, just to keep busy. His father, Nicolas says, was the same way. He never went to a movie, watched TV or stopped in bars on his way home from work. Instead he would come in and immediately get busy on some home repair task.

Nick claims to know little about Hitler and Nazi Germany. He says his father rarely discussed the subject. One night I took him to see Mein Kampf, the grim documentary of Nazi atrocities. Afterwards, he was subdued and silent for a long time. Finally I pressed him for a reaction. "That was all in the past," was all he would say.

At home, according to his son, Adolf Eichmann never mentioned Jews. He was proud that he had been an SS officer, and sometimes he would sing military songs and describe how he had taken the Nazi oath in a great Munich outdoor rally. "I have never violated that oath, and no one has asked me to withdraw it," his son recalls him saying. But when the boys pressed him to tell his wartime experiences, he dodged. "We are living in peace," he would say piously. "Let us be grateful and not talk of war."

NICOLAS CLAIMS his father "believed in God but had his own religion." He had been raised a Lutheran, but roundly condemned Martin Luther and brushed off the New Testament as "full of nonsense." His wife was a Catholic. Little religion has rubbed off on Nicolas. He wears a religious medal. He seems embarrassed if you mention it.

In his son's eyes, Adolf Eichmann was a brave man. "He obviously knew he was being hunted, otherwise he would have told us his real name," says Nicolas. "Yet he never carried a weapon, and he never seemed to be nervous. Once or twice he talked about death, but in a way that a man might tell you where he kept the insurance policies."

In some ways, Nicolas says, he would like to model himself after his father. "He was very strict with us and my mother which is the way I think a man should be," the youth says. "In my house, I am the boss." He also admires his interest in the "finer things." He disclosed, astonishingly, that his father liked to play the violin and paint.

Ever since his father's kidnapping on May 12, 1960, Nicolas has been fascinated with the whole subject. He avidly clips every newspaper article on the trial and reads it again and again. As he pores over them, he will mutter, "How stupid!" or "Those stupids!"—his favorite expressions—about the prosecutors.

Overnight notoriety has given Nicolas a bad dose of the small-man syndrome. He boasts and swaggers, but obviously fears he is a marked man. At home, the Eichmann boys pack .45s. On two occasions in Buenos Aires, Nicolas told me, cars full of menacing young men pulled up alongside him as he was walking. Each time he whipped out his pistol and frightened them off. I asked him if he had brought his gun to the U.S. "I have this," he said, flashing a palm-sized pistol that fires tear gas pellets.

Nicolas is tortured by the possibility that he may have caused his father's capture. One reason is that Lothar Hermann, a blind Jewish attorney in Buenos Aires, has recently claimed the reward for "fingering" Eichmann. Hermann is the father of a girl named Sylvia Hermann, who, years ago, dated Nicolas. He even introduced her to his "Uncle Ricardo." (Said Eichmann: "She's very pretty.")

Nicolas has retraced the kidnapping route again and again. He repeatedly questions anyone remotely connected, seeking to know exactly where and how the whole thing happened. He has concluded that most conjecture is wrong. The capture did not take place on a main street in daylight, but in a field near the family home.

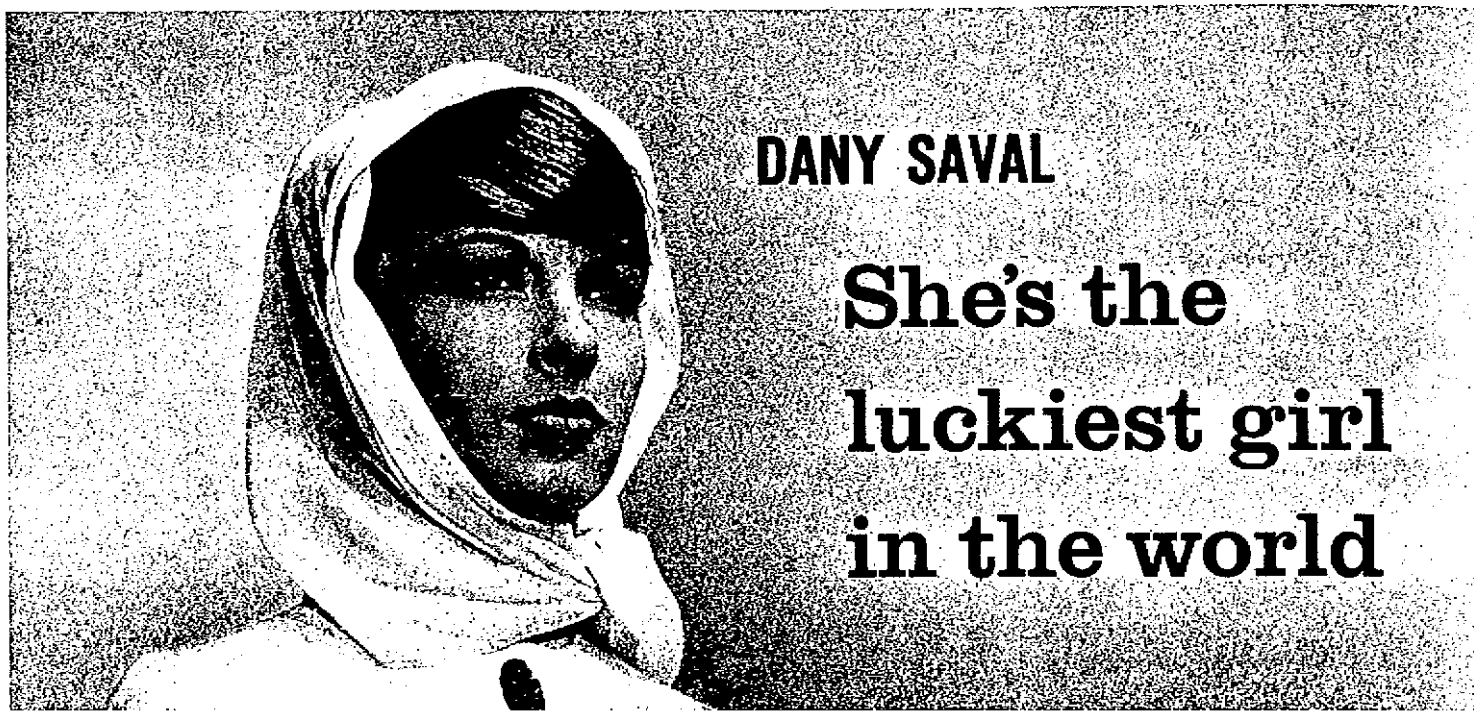

He even has built up a fantasy in which he might have saved his father, except for a quirk of fate. Most Wednesdays, Nick took the mail to his father's home, which was beyond delivery routes. But on the Wednesday of the kidnapping, his daughter Monica had a cold and Nick stayed home. According to the timetable he has figured, he and his father would have been on the same bus, and Nick would have had his .45. "Then what would they have done?" he asks. "What if I had started shooting? Maybe none of this would have happened."

But Nicolas knows that there is no turning back the clock, no retreating into obscurity. Like a dutiful son, he has taken over as head of the Eichmann family. He has not personally heard from his father since the capture, but his mother has; a half dozen letters, self-consciously written with the censor in mind, have filtered back.

WHATEVER THE TRIAL'S OUTCOME, his own plans are vague. He is much impressed with the U.S., and would like to immigrate here with his family. Before his marriage, he once inquired about a U.S. immigration visa. "This is a great country," he says. "There seems to be plenty of work and the wages are good."

But he doubts that he can escape his heritage. He talks about changing the Eichmann name, but doubts his brothers would do the same. When his children are about 14, he will tell them about their grandfather—in full. "How can a man turn his back on his father?"

Yet it would seem to me, after my long talks with Nicolas, that Adolf Eichmann destroyed yet another family after the gas chambers were closed and the last moan came from the concentration camps. That family was his own. ■

HOLLYWOOD.

NOWADAYS ONLY the naive believe anything that emanates from Hollywood.

Practically all the gossip and many of the so-called news stories from here are the inane fabrications of stupid press agents employed by equally stupid stars or studio executives. Most film publicity is used as a vanity-sop or part of a sales campaign.

Of all the legends and myths that press agents have circulated, however, the still valid and truthful one is the Cinderella legend.

Hollywood can take an unknown girl from nowhere, name her, dress her, re-style her personality, cloak her with a particular image, build her into a celebrity. It makes little difference whether the girl has talent, background, training or intelligence. None of these attributes is a requisite of stardom. What count most are personality, sex-appeal and photogenic-ness.

Walt Disney, a shrewd and experienced judge of these qualities, believes they are generated by a stunning, 19-year-old French girl he has named Dany Saval.

Her real name is Danielle Savalle, and Disney plans to put her on the cinematic moon in his forthcoming movie, Moon Pilot.

Poverty-ridden Background

"We hope to make her Hollywood's first space beauty," says Disney, who can promote a film much better than most producers. Actually, Walt hopes to build Dany up into more than that. He's signed her to a six-film contract and has already cast her in two other pictures. This is why Dany goes around Hollywood telling people in her markedly French accent, "I am luckiest girl in the world."

Unlike many American apprentice actresses, Dany is unashamed of her poverty-ridden background. She was born in a slum area of Paris in 1942 after the Germans released her father from a prisoner-of-war camp.

During much of her youth, her dad, a factory-worker, was unemployed. "There was not much for him to do," she explains, "so him and my mother have many babies—five."

At 8, Dany entered show business as a child-dancer, earned $25 a month. She also attended grade school and dancing classes, did odd jobs. When she was 12 she played a boy-dancer in the Comedie Française, eventually came down with tuberculosis owing to malnutrition and physical exhaustion.

Shipped off to the French mountain country, she gradually recovered, came back to Paris, hungry and broke, determined to find work to support herself.

"Was difficult," she recalls. "Is always difficult for dancer. Lucky for me, I do not hunger quickly. I must live so I become Can-Can girl at Moulin Rouge. Is not ballet, I know, but is living. And in Moulin Rouge I meet husband. Nice man. Publique relations. Name, Roger Chaland. We marry when I have 18 years. Then he say to me, 'Dany, best for you in show business is films. I get impresario to interest himself in you.' He meet me to Marcel Carné. You know Marcel Carné, famous French director? He give me first part in his film, Les Tricheurs. Then, I get other film parts, some good, some bad. Not much money but good work, last three years.

Dany strolls about court of Hollywood's Grauman's Chinese Theatre to see footprints and signatures of glamorous stars. She is currently making her first American motion picture, Moon Pilot.

"Three, four months ago," Dany continues, "Mr. Anderson—producer for Mr. Disney—he sees my picture on magazine cover, ask for film on me. He see, like, then come screen test in London. Suddenly I in Hollywood, study English, make Moon Pilot. I play girl from moon. My accent no matter. Who know how moon people talk?

Back to Paris

"Now, for French girl," Dany delightfully declares, "I am rich. Disney pay good money [approximately $300 a week], but still I no live in Hollywood. I go back to Paris where I live in poor district, Montmartre, with poor people. I give my parents some money. Rich people makes me feel bad. I love poor people because I one for so long. That is the truth about Dany Saval. You write him." ■

A mothers' march offers new hope to

CHILDREN of DIVORCE

Target of ire, Friend of the Court Herbert Hauman poses outside child support office. Angry mothers charged he was too "easy" on ex-husbands.

The faces below belong to the children of divorce. For years, they have been deprived, victimized and even starved.

Eight million of them are not adequately supported by their fathers. The taxpayers make up the difference—$615 million in 1960.

But now a new day may be dawning.

Recent innovations add up to a mushrooming reform movement: "Weekend jail" for welshing fathers, a 50-state "Runaway Pappy Act" to corner deserters, a new plan for a nationwide "trackdown" service, a state-by-state drive to overhaul child support procedures.

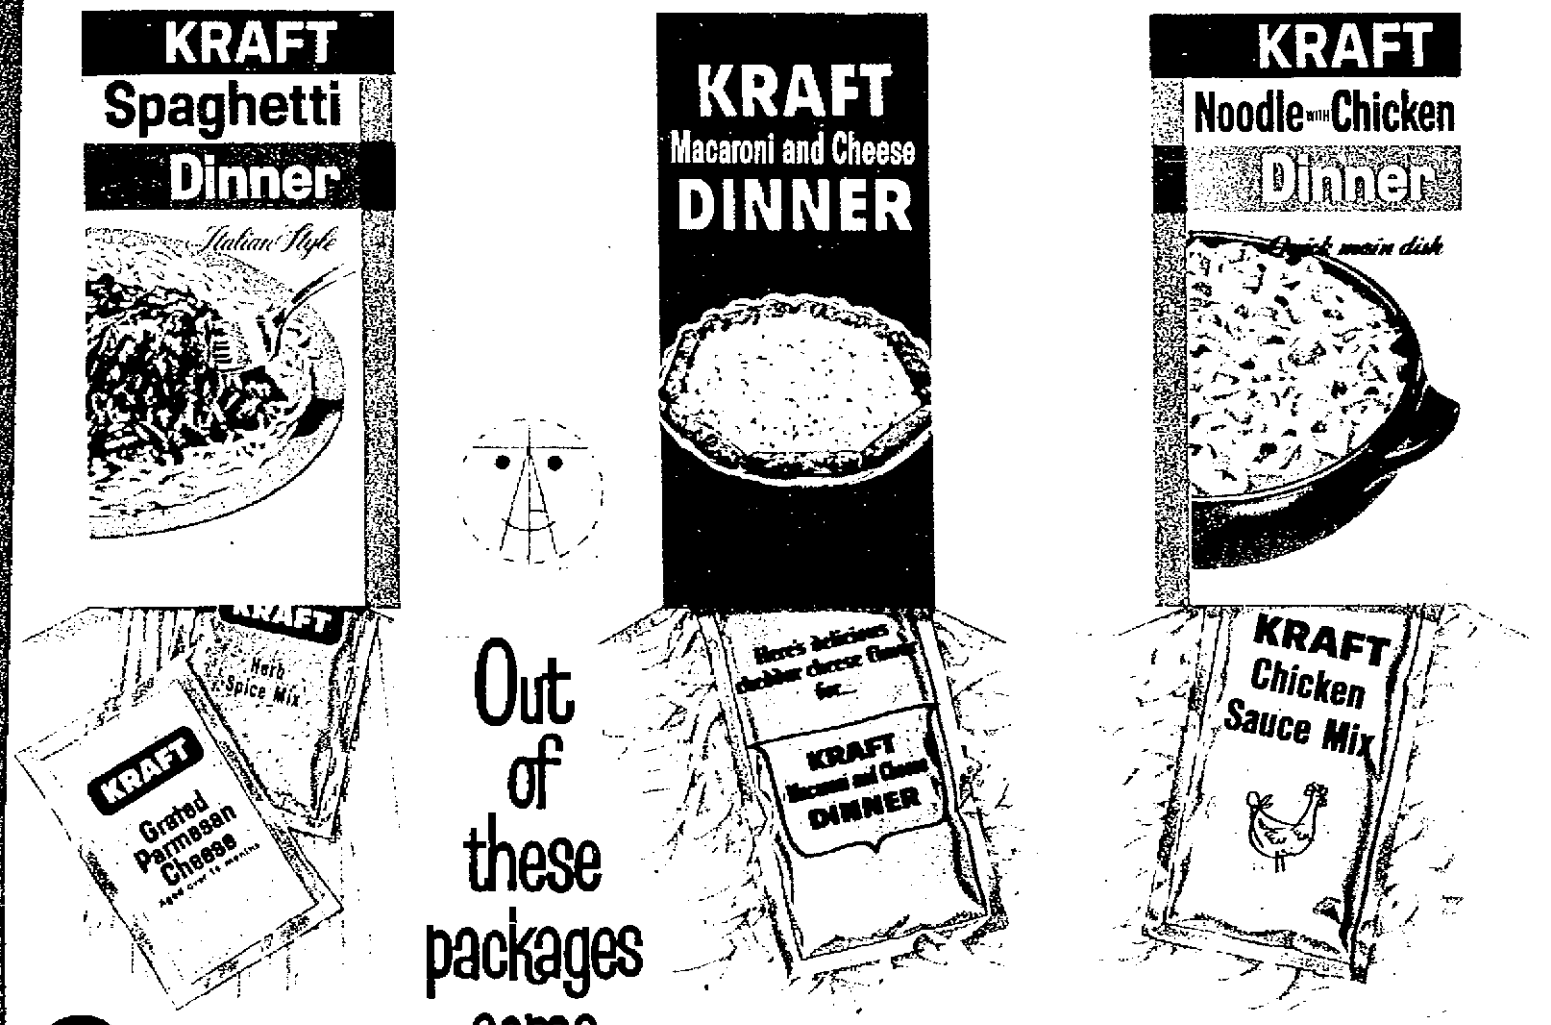

The children's rights campaign has been gathering steam for several years. But recently it received a dramatic push from a militant little band of mothers in Jackson, Mich.

What caused the Jackson "mothers' revolt"? And what were its results?

For the inside story, turn the page.

Real victims of child support mess, above Michigan children are part of group owed total of $100,000 back payments.

So many women are asking this important question.

The answer is—yes. A remarkable new medical discovery called Dioctyl Sodium Sulfosuccinate has now made possible a special new laxative for a woman's sensitive system. We call it Correctol®.

Correctol works two ways. First, its exclusive ingredient takes advantage of the natural moisture in your system. Second, its mild laxative acts gently but most effectively. Working together, Correctol's two active ingredients permit more natural relief than any ordinary laxative can.

Correctol is recommended any time in a woman's life, even during and after pregnancy.

We'd love to have you try it. Write to Correctol, Dept. S, Kenilworth, N. J., for your generous free sample of safe, hospital-tested Correctol, bearing the Good Housekeeping Seal.

Leader and troops: Mrs. Bettie Brown, behind bars above, started Jackson, Mich., protest (r.) against child support laws. Fourteen were jailed.

JACKSON, MICH.

One day last summer, Bettie Brown exploded. Her former husband had remarried and cut his support payments to their two children by half. She had urged Herbert Heuman, the court officer who oversees divorce cases here, to prosecute him or put him in jail. Heuman's efforts at compromise did not satisfy Bettie Brown, who went on radio station WKHM and voiced her complaints over the air.

That was the beginning of a year-long, bitter campaign. Before it was over it had sent 14 women to jail, focused national attention on the question of child support and caused a new look at the subject here.

For, after Mrs. Brown's blast, the station was deluged with calls from other women. When Mrs. Brown suggested they meet to discuss their grievances, 55 packed into her four-room apartment.

Most accused Heuman, whose official title is "Friend of the Court," of being "too easy" on husbands. They also declared that child support was a "national disgrace." Some told pathetic stories.

"I'm too ill to work, I have no relatives to fall back on, my daughter and I haven't a nickel," one woman sobbed. "My husband works right here in town. The Friend of the Court has ordered him 18 times to send my checks, but he never does. But they won't send for him or arrest him."

$2,200 Worth of Status

"My husband hasn't sent anything in a year," said the young mother of two preschool daughters. "I've got a job but I just can't make out. By the time I pay $25 or $30 a week to a babysitter, plus the other bills, I have nothing left. The strain is just wearing me out."

"I know one case where a man was $2,200 in arrears," offered Mrs. Jeannie Kleinfeldt, one of the group's leaders. "Yet his new wife had a new car, a mink stole and a new diamond ring." Mrs. Kleinfeldt alleged that Heuman had replied, "His wife's clothes and appointments are necessary for the man's social status."

The women formed an organization to press for twin aims: Heuman's removal and a complete housecleaning. A delegation called first on then-Gov. G. Mennen Williams. His legal advisor told them to petition their county supervisors. The women dutifully collected 177 signatures, but the supervisors ignored them. Bettie Brown and Mrs. Kleinfeldt asked the state attorney general to intervene. He wouldn't.

"We were stymied everywhere," Mrs. Brown says. "We decided to take our case to the public. We felt we had a constitutional right to demonstrate. There were only 12 of us left, but by scratching around we found 15 more. We thought it would be appropriate to start the day after Mother's Day."

At 9 a.m. on Monday, May 15, 14 women appeared in front of Heuman's office. They flashed signs with ungrammatical slogans like "Who's Friend is the Friend of the Court?" Uncertain how far they could go, they said nothing, but marched in a slow, silent circle.

Even so, a crowd collected. Jeers rang out: "Why don't you stay home with your kids?" Sheriff's deputies guarded against trouble. At 11:30 Judge John Simpson strode out of the Court House and warned them to disperse. They ignored him. He told them to be in court at 1:30.

"I'll go to jail—will you?" the marchers whispered to one another. But nothing happened. The next day the judge sent them an order to limit their picketing. On Wednesday he followed with a "cease and desist" order. On Friday he issued a summons for each picket, ordering her to be in court at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

But by now the women tasted victory. Their ranks had swollen to 80. A support-paying husband, Thomas Collins, had failed to muster up a counter-movement.

Over the weekend, the mothers caught up on laundry, lined up babysitters and got ready for jail. Judge Simpson obliged them at 10:30 Tuesday. He charged each with contempt and set bond at $300. Since none had the money, all went off to jail.

For the newspapers and the TV cameras, it was a Roman holiday. Photos of Bettie Brown behind bars appeared all over the country. The mothers spent their "imprisonment" whooping it up and making jokes. At 4:30 a.m., to the dismay of fellow prisoners, they got up and began singing Old Judge Simpson, Here We Come to the tune of California, Here I Come.

Roundtable Conference

Their hearing was more subdued, but brief. Attorney Benjamin Dajos argued that the pickets had committed no intentional wrongs. "They thought they were within their rights," he said, but were sorry if they had been guilty of misconduct. Asked if they apologized, they chorused weakly, "Yes." Judge Simpson told them to go home and be good.

The next day, however, wives, judges and Heuman all sat down to negotiate. Heuman pointed out that he is often caught in the middle in an impossible job. Heuman pledged cooperation, but stuck to his contention that jailing husbands was no way to collect debts. The wives made a mental reservation to resume demonstrating if necessary.

Meantime, a reform movement is underway. Heuman is studying the possibility of "weekend jail," under which fathers go behind bars at night. He also is exploring use of his office as a clearing house. Husbands would pay in, he would pay out.

Another suggestion comes from Bettie Brown. "Failure to pay child support ought to be made a federal offense," she says. "I know lawyers say that isn't possible. But at the very least the states ought to treat it uniformly. It ought to be recognized that this is a national problem." —SID ROSS

by KEN PURDY

Matches aren't good enough. Changing a tire by the side of the road is unpleasant in daylight, but it's extremely dangerous at night. I have seen a man doing this on a dark night with his wife standing 50 feet down the road actually lighting matches to warn other drivers! Flashing signals that stick to the car with magnets are life-savers. So is the six-inch folding glass reflector, set up in the road. Using two pieces of board and a few feet of reflecting scotch tape, you can make a good reflector in 10 minutes. Carry it in the trunk. Red flares that burn for 20 minutes are cheap. There should be two in every glove compartment—AND a flashlight. Handiest is the kind called a Life-Lite, which you can recharge by plugging it into the cigarette lighter socket.

Caution: Gangsters at work. The automobile isn't as important in crime as it used to be (see photo), or at least does not figure so dramatically as it did during Prohibition, for instance. Still, the police occasionally pick up a car showing illegal and imaginative modifications by someone who apparently expected to be involved in an old-fashioned corner-swiping, tire-squealing chase. One such type mounted a small tank of oil in the trunk of his car, under heavy air-pressure. The idea was that a valve would dump it on the road for pursuers to skid on. (A line ruptured, the oil squirted on his own rear wheels, wrecked him.) A small-time bootlegger mounted a powerful photographic flash in the rear window of his car, to blind pursuers if they got close enough. Trouble was, by that time they knew his license number and the color of his hair. Another mounted a tankful of sky-writing smoke-maker in the engine compartment, to blow out through the exhaust-pipe as a smoke-screen when he pulled a switch. It worked fine, but the inventor never got a chance to use it under actual working conditions. Seems he was arrested just for testing it!

Who does the housekeeping? The three-minute car-wash shops that have sprung up all over the country are performing an extra function; since most of them vacuum the interiors of the cars they clean, they are reducing the incredible size of the load of dirt most drivers lug around with them. A Chicago firm that reconditions 100 used cars a week for resale hauls away, on an average day, 35 steel drums full of dirt and debris taken out of the automobiles being processed.

Quickest beetle. The fastest rear-engine Renault in this or any other country belongs to a Californian. He took the little four-cylinder engine out of the rear and stuffed a Chevrolet V-8 into its place. The new engine occupies the entire back seat—but the car will go from a standing start to 100 m.p.h. in 10.5 seconds!

Fastest growing sport. In 1954 the Wall Street Journal found that automobile racing had passed baseball, 25 million to 16.5 million, to become the country's No. 1 spectator sport. The fastest-growing of the several divisions of the sport is stock-car racing. In 1960 NASCAR (National Association for Stock Car Racing) ran 1,500 events before 12 million spectators, paid $2 million to drivers in prize money. ■

MADISON, TENN.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO if you saw a dog riding nonchalantly atop a convertible car? See a doctor? Maybe, but not if you lived in this Tennessee town near Nashville where Silver, a precocious year-old French poodle, spends his days breezing through traffic atop his master Sidney Brazier's car. The canine acrobat has been doing his outdoor act for nine months now without a spill except for a single slippery try on a hardtop. Only nasty weather lures him inside the car. Then, curiously, he huddles near the heater. ■

Combine unflavored gelatine and ⅓ cup of the sugar in saucepan; add water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine dissolves. Remove from heat; stir in fruit and 4 tablespoons of the lemon juice. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg white. While mixture is chilling, pour ice water into mixing bowl; add instant non-fat dry milk. Beat until soft peaks form (3 to 4 minutes). Add remaining 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Continue beating until firm peaks form (3 to 4 minutes longer). Gradually add remaining ⅓ cup sugar. Fold in gelatine mixture. Turn into a four-cup mold. Chill until firm. Makes six servings.

SMALL STROKES

Can they be prevented?

What are the symptoms?

Who are the victims?

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

A CLEVELAND DENTIST in his 50s was about to sit down to dinner recently. Suddenly, he felt dizzy. He could not speak and he could not pick up things with his right hand. Then, just as suddenly, the symptoms disappeared.

Although he felt absolutely normal five minutes after the ordeal, he was alarmed. He visited his doctor and was given a battery of tests, but they failed to show any cause for the momentary experience.

However, a specialist was called in. He decided on the basis of the symptoms and other considerations that the patient had suffered a "small stroke." The patient was told he must take a pill each day for the rest of his life to try to prevent a recurrence, or the possibility of a "big stroke."

This case history points up one of the most exciting developments in preventive medicine today. A growing number of doctors feel that recurrent small strokes can be prevented in some cases if symptoms are recognized early enough and treatment initiated.

Benefits of Treatment

The importance of such prevention is clear when you realize that an estimated 1,800,000 Americans now living have suffered one or more strokes and that an estimated 175,000 die of stroke annually.

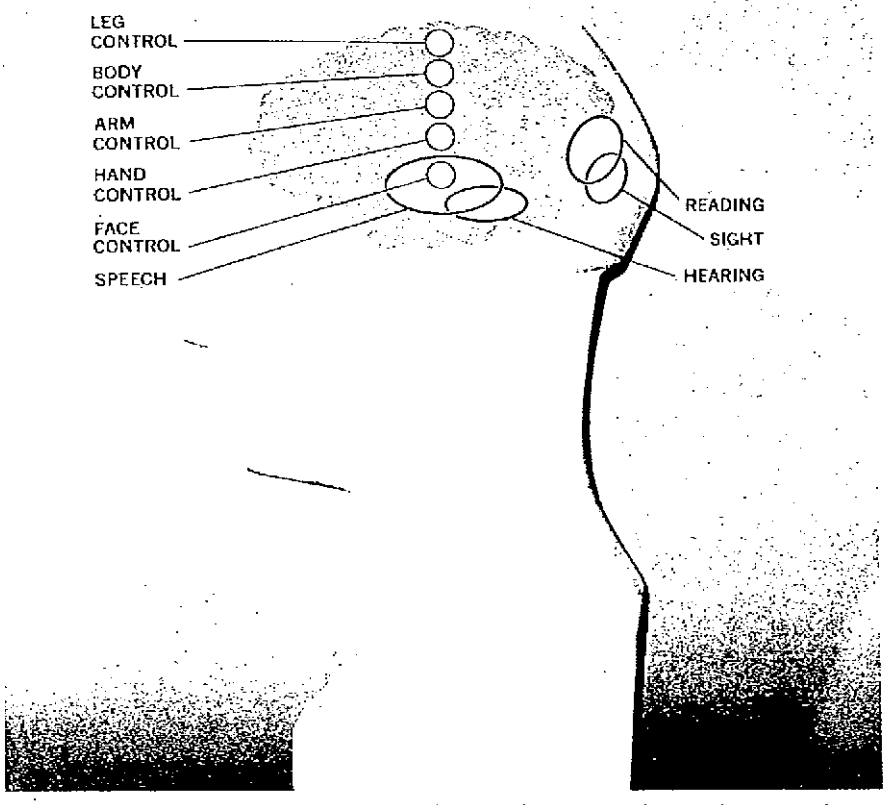

Follow-up studies on small stroke patients are comparatively new. Increasingly, though, doctors agree on two benefits of early treatment of small strokes:

1 Additional strokes may be prevented in 20 to 50 per cent of the cases; 2 The death rate from this disorder may be decreased up to 50 per cent.

What is a small stroke? A stroke occurs when blood supply to part of the brain is cut off. As a result, nerve cells in a particular brain area cannot function. When that happens, your ability to speak, think, move can be impaired.

A small stroke simply produces smaller symptoms and for a shorter period than a full-blown stroke, in which the individual may lose bodily function permanently or die. The small stroke represents a minor shutdown of circulation for a brief period. Often it is caused by a blood clot that results from narrowing of the arteries leading to the brain.

The symptoms (see box, right) include memory loss (even for five or 10 minutes), slurred speech and inability to concentrate. Such symptoms in small strokes are likely to hit and run, and the victim may even feel he has simply imagined the difficulties. However, as time passes, they may come more often if untreated and remain for longer periods. These repeated small strokes may foreshadow a big stroke.

Often, unfortunately, the small stroke remains undiagnosed. A Memphis doctor tells of a local minister who suffered loss of memory every so often and became increasingly irritable. He was moved from parish to parish in the hope that somehow he would "snap out of it."

Finally, a doctor diagnosed his trouble as a series of small strokes. The minister was put on medication and has been free of symptoms for the past three years.

This case illustrates a basic need: if one of your relatives, friends or business associates exhibits the signs of small stroke, you should get him to go to a doctor promptly.

Who are the victims of small strokes? There is no clear answer, but experts believe that persons over 40 get them more often than younger persons; that the tense, harried, overweight individual is vulnerable to the disorder.

How are small strokes treated? When they are diagnosed accurately, the doctor is likely to prescribe life-long use of a family of drugs called anticoagulants, already widely prescribed for heart patients.

Cost of Treatment

These drugs, which should be given only to carefully selected patients, can prevent further clots from forming.

Dr. Irving Wright of the Cornell University Medical Center, New York, calls use of anticoagulant therapy "the most significant advance" in the treatment of small strokes. His view is held by doctors at medical centers from Maine to California.

Anticoagulants are prescription drugs. Widely used are two, Dicumarol and Coumadin, both of which can be taken by mouth. They cost the patient 50 cents a week or less.

Thus, treatment that may prevent serious disability adds up to less than the patient spends weekly on bus fare. ■

Warning signals of small strokes

Here are the symptoms of small stroke. They may last only a few minutes. If they persist longer than a few hours, doctors believe, a big stroke may be imminent.

Difficulty in thinking clearly

Blurred vision

Slurred speech

Loss of memory

Dizziness

Inability to concentrate

Feeling of confusion

Irritability

Weakness or numbness of a hand

Weakness in leg, causing it to drag

Distortion of facial appearance; face may "pull up" on one side

EDITOR'S NOTE: Charlie Manna originally planned to become an opera star. After 10 years of vocal training, he was drafted into the Army where he produced camp shows and became a comedian. Upon discharge, Manna returned to opera, and wrote comedy skits which he inflicted on groups at house parties. At one such gathering, Carl Reiner heard him and brought him to the attention of the William Morris Agency, which has booked him into such major night spots as the Blue Angel, Copacabana and Shamrock Hilton. Television viewers have seen Charlie on the Ed Sullivan, Jack Paar and Garry Moore shows, and record fans have been buying his joke album, Manna Overboard.

My favorite jokes

by CHARLIE MANNA

A MAN IN A $10,000 1961 Cadillac pulled up alongside of a friend in a 1955 Chevy. "Hey, George," he yelled, "what's all those rattles I hear in your car?" Without a moment's hesitation George replied, "That's $9,000 jingling around in my pocket."

AN ATOMIC BLAST reduced the earth to a mass of rubble. The last survivor, an ape, emerged from a cave, rubbing his eyes and looking around. A few days later a female gorilla emerged from another cave. "Say, do you have anything to eat?" asked the male gorilla. Without saying a word, the female gorilla returned to the cave and came out with an apple. The male gorilla took one look at the apple. "Oh, no!" he exclaimed. "You're not going to start that all over again!"

THIS FIGHT MANAGER was talking to one of his fighters. "If I told you once," he said, "I told you a hundred times—I can't get you a fight with Punchy McGurky. YOU'RE Punchy McGurky!!!"

LITTLE JOHNNY developed a nasty habit of using strong language around the house. His mother warned him that if he continued, she'd pack his bag and put him out. Since bad habits are hard to break, little Johnny forgot himself again. Sure enough, his mother packed his bag and put him outside the door. There he stood for an entire hour while his mother watched him from inside. Finally she opened the door and said, "Well, why don't you leave?" To which Johnny replied, "I was just wondering where the hell I could go."

THE VISITING CHILD PSYCHOLOGIST was advising the second grade teacher. "You don't hold the interest of your pupils, Miss Jones. When they come in, I'll prove that they are not paying the slightest bit of attention to what is going on." Presently the youngsters filed in and took their places. The visitor asked the class for a number, and a little girl gave 35. The visitor in large clear figures wrote 53 on the blackboard and called for another number. Receiving 19 he wrote 91, and for 47 he wrote 74. After several moments of this, the visitor glanced triumphantly at Miss Jones, when suddenly a voice called out, "66—let's see what you can do with that!"

A TIPSY PLAYBOY burst out of El Morocco, took a flying leap and landed on the seat of his pants in the street. The doorman rushed over and said, "Are you all right, sir?" The playboy glared at the doorman and replied, "Yeah, I'm all right . . . but who moved my convertible?"

NEW JERSEYITES, who insist their drivers are the world's worst, tell of a policeman who asked an injured pedestrian if he had noticed the license number of the driver who struck him. "No," was the reply. "But I'd remember his laugh anywhere."

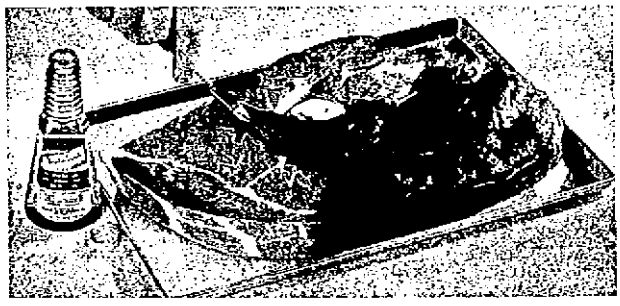

A LITTLE 4-YEAR-OLD GIRL and a little 3-year-old boy walked hand-in-hand up to the front door of a neighbor's house. Standing on her tip-toes, the little girl was just able to reach the doorbell. The lady of the house asked the little girl what it was she wanted, and the little girl said, "We're playing house. This is my husband and I am his wife. May we come in?" Thoroughly enchanted by the scene confronting her, the lady said, "By all means, do come in." Once inside, she offered the children lemonade and cookies which they graciously accepted. When a second tall glass of lemonade was offered, the little girl refused by saying, "No thank you. We have to go now. My husband just wet his pants."

TWO MEN were marooned on an island for 15 years. One day, a giant economy-sized cola bottle floated up to shore. "Good heavens," cried one of the men as he picked up the bottle. "We've shrunk!" ■

It's not hard to figure out why! Every day youngsters do many things which are dangerous... with never a thought to the possible consequences.

Running out from between parked cars, falling from bikes, playing hazardous games, scraping knees, climbing over fences... all this is part of an average day to an active boy or girl.

Youngsters get hurt twice as often as their parents. That's why more and more parents are taking out this Insurance for each one of their children.

In these days when it costs so much to be laid-up by an accident, you cannot afford to let your children be without this protection.

Long Beach dogs check new dog food claims

LONG BEACH, Calif.—Local dogs turned out in force recently when General Mills held dramatic, informal dog food tests at Luau grounds of The Reef restaurant. This test, one of several held in West Coast cities, confirmed earlier kennel tests in which 2 out of 3 dogs switched to New Surechamp Meal Ticket from their regular dry dog food.

2 out of 3 dogs switched to New Surechamp Meal Ticket in General Mills' Kennel Tests

NEW ROLL-SHAPED PRODUCT BACKED WITH $1.00 GUARANTEE

One of America's leading food producers, General Mills, has created a new dog food called Surechamp Meal Ticket with such an appealing and different taste that:

- 2 out of 3 dogs tested switched to it from their regular dry dog food in scientific kennel tests.
- In a series of public feeding tests 2 out of 3 dogs also chose new Surechamp Meal Ticket over their owner's choice of five leading packaged dog foods.
- General Mills guarantees dogs will enjoy the new food and backs the guarantee with the offer of a $1.00 coupon, good toward the purchase of any dry dog food.

Meal Ticket is a greatly improved formulation of Surechamp, a food long popular among West Coast dogs.

Tests prove theories

The feeding tests, General Mills spokesmen say, gave scientific proof to widely held theories that dogs, like people, welcome exciting new flavor in their diets.

Discoveries about the importance of a combination of ingredients, cooking, shape and texture in the enhancement of dog food flavor produced the taste triumph.

Unique new shape

The product's unique new roll shape is of great importance, General Mills officials say. Kennel tests show dogs are especially fond of this new form.

And, certain ingredients not only enhance flavor but add vitamins and proteins to an already completely balanced canine meal.

"EATIN' GOOD" GUARANTEE

Following are details of the product's guarantee, believed to be the most daring in the history of the dog food industry.
